Holds Nationalist Fear Groundless.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—Acceptance of the Stalin formula enabling a big power, accused of aggression, to veto use of force against it for the enforcement of peace has suddenly transformed the issues involved in the Dumbarton Oaks plan for a new league of nations.

The internationalists now contend that the big power veto takes the ground from under the objection the nationalists raised to the authority of the American league delegate to take the country into war without consulting congress, in which resides the sole constitutional power to declare war. Inasmuch, they argue, as one of the five great powers could block the employment of the international police force against it the American delegate would not be confronted with the question of projecting the country into war.

League Virtually Impotent.

In such case of aggression by a big power the league would be impotent to enforce peace under the Stalin formula requiring unanimity of the five big powers for punitive action and would collapse. In the face of such threat of a major war it would be up to congress to decide whether the United States should take up arms.

The league's peace enforcement powers would come into action only in curbing aggression or other disturbance of the peace by a small country in consequence of a unanimous vote of the American and other big power delegates plus two small country delegates. The internationalists hold that in a little war of this sort the American people would not object to the American delegate acting without the express consent of congress.

Only Little Wars.

By the same token, internationalists contend that the Stalin veto formula minimizes American objections to the international police force. Inasmuch as the only league wars will be little wars to curb aggression by small nations, such disturbances could be dealt with regionally—if in Europe, by European armed forces only; if in the western hemisphere, by the forces of the American countries only.

Altogether, the league contemplated by the Dumbarton Oaks plan, as amended by the Stalin veto formula, becomes impotent to enforce world peace in the case of aggression by any nation capable of disturbing world peace and becomes an agency for policing small countries and for settling international disputes by pacific means. As a result the big powers will be not only loath to disarm, but will be motivated to maintain colossal sea, land, and air forces

ROSENMAN SEEKS BRITAIN'S HOARDED GOODS FOR EUROPE

LONDON, March 7 (AP).—Justice Samuel Rosenman, President Roosevelt's personal representative, said today he had discussed with British officials the feasibility of making available to needy western Europeans the huge stores of food, clothing, and raw materials Britain holds as insurance against air attacks.

He emphasized that his mission was "purely fact-finding" and said he had no authority to make commitments, but said he was studying the problem of civilian supplies needed by France, Belgium, Holland, Norway, and Denmark. Rosenman is here with the largest entourage of economic experts the United States has sent abroad since the war's start.

House Votes 347 to 42 for Nurses' Draft

Washington, D. C., March 7 [Special].—The house today approved and sent to the senate a bill for the drafting of male and female nurses between 20 and 44, while the senate decisively defeated an administration sponsored effort to insert compulsory work or fight provisions in pending man power legislation.

The bill for the drafting of nurses passed the house 347 to 42 and provided for the drafting of unmarried women trained nurses and those married after March 15, the only exceptions being widows with dependent children or children under 18. An attempt to postpone the nurse draft for 30 days to allow the army to appeal for volunteers was defeated 161 to 117.

Democrats Desert "Commander."

Thirty Democrats in the senate deserted the administration to vote against the Bailey amendment to the man power bill, which was defeated 60 to 23 in spite of a speech by Majority Leader Barkley [D., Ky.] and a plea by Sen. McClellan [D., Ark.] for "support of the commander in chief." This amendment, sponsored by Sen. Bailey [D., N. C.] provided for the drafting of men between 18 and 45 not holding war jobs.

The senate action cleared the way for consideration tomorrow of the military committee's man power bill, which would authorize War Man Power Chairman McNutt to reduce the labor force of any establishment by any amount, regardless of age, sex, or occupational qualifications, and to prohibit or regulate the hiring of new employes.

Sen. Thomas [D., Utah], military committee chairman, said tonight he expects some version of the committee bill will pass the senate, altho he anticipates a move to put a limit of 50 per cent on ceiling reductions. Thomas' committee rejected a "work or jail" bill which has already passed the house.

Perfect "Loafer Draft."

A "loafer draft" amendment offered by Sen. Revercomb [R., W. Va.] as a substitute for the committee bill was rejected, 54 to 27, the vote following party lines. This would have called for the drafting of men 18 to 45 not in "lawful occupations."

Among the Democrats who voted against the Bailey amendment were such New Deal stalwarts as Sens. Pepper [Fla.], O'Mahoney [Wash.], and Mead and Wagner [N. Y.].

The nurse draft bill was made a part of the selective service act by the house to bring drafted nurses within the scope of veterans' benefits now provided for drafted men. It had originally been offered as a separate law.

Married Nurses Must Register.

It will require all nurses of draft age to register, whether married or not, the date of registration to be fixed by selective service. About 270,000 nurses will be compelled to register, it was estimated, with about 150,000 subject to conscription, 6,000 of them male nurses. The army wants about 20,000 additional nurses by June 30.

The bill gives local draft boards almost exclusive deferment powers, instructing them to consider the recommendations of the WMC and to allow appeals as provided by the original draft law. A proposal to lodge deferment power with the WMC was knocked out of the bill, along with a provision that graduates of the government financed cadet nurse corps be inducted before noncadets are drafted. All nurses drafted will be "tendered" army commissions, but will not be automatically commissioned.

New York, March 7 [Special.]—Mayor Fiorello La Guardia's reputed efforts to return a war shocked naval petty officer to Italy on a charge of seducing a Neapolitan girl were frustrated at the last minute late tonight when the navy reversed an order that would have had the sailor on his way back by plane at 6 a. m. tomorrow.

Frederick Brooks.

The navy's action followed a telegraphic appeal made to President Roosevelt by the navy man's young wife to whom he earlier had declared he was being shanghaied. Whether the President interceded was not indicated.

Veteran of 5 Invasions.

Principal in the case is Chief Pharmacist's Mate Frederick Brooks, 21, a veteran of five major invasions, who is suffering from a delayed psychoneurosis. He has been held under guard in sick bay at navy pier 92. His wife Grace, is 19, and lives at Roosevelt, N. Y. They have been married five months.

Chief Brooks' plight and La Guardia's alleged part in the case were disclosed today after Mrs. Brooks visited her husband to say good-by, and he told her: "I'm innocent. I'm being shanghaied. Keep faith and pray."

Brooks was in St. Albans naval hospital on Long Island awaiting final approval of a recommended medical discharge when he was arrested Feb. 5 after Mayor La Guardia had reported him to navy authorities.

Mayor Asks Probe.

La Guardia wrote to Navy Secretary Forrestal that he had received a letter from Fabio Scinia, a minor government official in Italy, accusing Brooks of seducing his daughter. The mayor urged an investigation and asked to be kept informed of any action taken so he could "send a word of comfort to the unhappy family."

In a statement which the petty officer submitted to the navy, upon directions to answer the charge, he denied all the allegations made by the Italian father. The navy notified the mayor of this last Sept. 15 and announced that under the circumstances it could not act in the matter.

Nevertheless, Brooks was placed under arrest and has been held in the brig more than a month.

Mrs. Brooks charged the mayor had improperly interfered in the case and had condemned her husband without a trial.

The distraught young wife tried without success to gain an audience with the mayor today.

Pvt. Louis C. Zelis, 31, the first Chicagoan to come home from the Japs' Cabanatuan prison camp on Luzon Island since Gen. MacArthur's Rangers raided the place of horror late in January, arrived yesterday at the home of his brother, Walter, 3137 W. 42d pl.

In his three years' imprisonment, Pvt. Zelis, whose normal weight is around 170, dropped to 107 pounds. Thru treatment in an American hospital in the Philippines and at Letterman General hospital in San Francisco, Cal., he has climbed again to about 155. He is to have further treatment at Fitzsimons General hospital, Denver, Colo. He said that overwork and malnutrition accounted for his condition and had caused the death of many of his companions.

Pvt. Zelis was captured by the Japs near Lingayen gulf in January, 1942. Two-thirds of those captured with him had been taken to Japan, he said.

A native Chicagoan, he attended Kelly High school and worked as a heating plant fireman. Zelis had not seen his wife, Mae, since the autumn of 1941.

Mrs. Roosevelt Gets a Crown; It's Too Heavy

Washington, D. C., March 7 (AP).—A jewel-encrusted gold crown, a gold embroidered harem costume, and a Canadian mink coat have been showered on Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

When King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia pitched his royal tent on the deck of a United States destroyer and steamed up the Red sea to pay a call on President Roosevelt last month, the king brought gifts for the Roosevelt family.

Gifts to Wife Unrestricted.

The law of this republic says that the President may not accept gifts from foreign persons without special permission from congress, but Mrs. Roosevelt said there are no legal restrictions on gifts to his wife.

Therefore Ibn Saud sent six delicately spun and embroidered Arabian costumes to Mrs. Roosevelt. Two harem dresses were for Mrs. Roosevelt and the Roosevelts' daughter, Mrs. John Boettiger, who accompanied her father to the near east, and four Arabian princes' costumes presumably were for the four Roosevelt sons.

The crown has reposed in the library at Hyde Park for approximately two years, Mrs. Roosevelt disclosed. Some African potentate—she doesn't recall, off hand, which one—sent it after the President's Casablanca conference with Prime Minister Churchill.

"It's Terrific," She Says.

"It's the most terrific thing you ever saw," Mrs. Roosevelt said. "Nobody could wear it. It's too heavy.

Latest among the gifts to the President's wife was the mink coat, reputedly valued at $8,000, from the Quebec Fur Breeders' Coöperative association. This gift was made known yesterday.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she started to give the coat to a philanthropic organization but the donor indicated such a gesture might be "ungracious."

Defends Train Jaunt.

Asked why she went to Baltimore, Md., by train [round trip distance 80 miles] to see a play when the office of defense transportation has been asking people not to travel for pleasure, Mrs. Roosevelt explained that the play was about returning veterans.

"I don't think that going from here to Baltimore in a coach displaces any one," she said.

"Also I have a special interest in the play. I have urged writers and playwrights to do some things on that theme."

3D ARMY ARMOR DASHES 50 MILES INSIDE REICH; COBLENZ FALL NEAR

LONDON, March 8 [Thursday]—(AP).—The Russians hurled seven armies yesterday into an all-out frontal offensive toward Berlin from bridgeheads on the Oder river 30 to 40 miles to the east, the Germans announced.

Moscow was officially silent, as is customary at the start of a major operation, but unofficial dispatches from the soviet capital hinted guardedly that the German accounts might be substantially correct.

German broadcasts said the attackers, Marshal Zhukov's 1st White Russian army group, jumped off after a gigantic 24 hour artillery barrage and punched into the outer defenses of Kuestrin, west bank Oder river fortress which was under attack from the north, east, and south. Two tank armies were among Zhukov's forces, these announcer said, and the assaults were constantly being extended.

100 Mile Front Indicated.

A late broadcast by the German Transocean agency referred to attacks extending from Schwedt on the north thru Kuestrin to Crossen on the southeast—a river frontage distance of more than 100 miles.

In referring to the onslaught, which they contended was being held generally in check, the Germans for the first time used the designation "east of Berlin."

The Russians officially dealt with other sectors in their regular bulletin and in three orders of the day by Premier Stalin.

One order announced that Zhukov's right wing, which only Tuesday had thrust to the Oder's Baltic sea outlet, had captured Stepenitz, Gollnow and Massow, 15 and 20 miles northeast and east of Stettin. The bulletin listed other towns captured in that zone along the Oder's east bank and the Stettiner haff [lagoon] from 13 miles northeast of Stettin northward to the sea, a distance of 35 miles.

Gain Toward Danzig.

Another Stalin order announced that the 2d White Russian army had captured Starogard, 25 miles south of Danzig, and Mewe, 35 miles southeast, while the bulletin added a list of 200 communities taken by that army in five to six mile advances along a front stretching from the Vistula river to the Baltic near Rueganwalde.

Stalin's third order, recalling a forgotten front, said the 2d Ukraine army had taken Banska-Stiavnica [Schemnitz] in Slovakia, 82 miles northeast of Bratislava.

It also credited the 1st White Russian group wtih final liquidation of an encircled German grouping near the Pomeranian town of Schivelbein, with at least 8,000 of the enemy captured, including a lieutenant general and his staff.

U. S. AID ON WAY TO SET UP NEW POLISH REGIME

Washington, D. C., March 7 (AP).—Elbridge Durbrow, chief of the division of eastern European affairs in the state department, has gone to Moscow to assist Ambassador W. Averell Harriman in efforts to create a new Polish government

The trip was reported by the state department. Harriman, along with British Ambassador Clark Kerr and Russian Foreign Commissar Molotov, is on a special commission created at Yalta to bring about the reorganization of the present Polish provisional government at Warsaw into a "national unity" government.

Yanks Drive to Southern End of Luzon

MANILA, March 8 [Thursday]—(AP).—American ground forces on Luzon have penetrated below Manila to the south coast for the first time while planes, in attacks along the approaches to the Asiatic mainland, have sunk or damaged two enemy warships and 18 freighters, some used as transports.

Yanks of the 11th air borne division and the 158th infantry regiment, moving swiftly, captured two towns on Balayan bay Tuesday. Balayan bay is on the Verde Island passage, across from American held Mindoro Island.

They seized the towns of Balayan and Calatagan, which are in Batangas province some 40 miles south of Manila.

Sink Vessels off Formosa.

MacArthur made these announcements today in his bulletin which also told of the air attacks on Japanese shipping.

Medium bombers hit shipping in Formosa strait, sinking or severely damaging freighter transports, three freighters, and a class A corvette along with two smaller craft.

Patrol bombers and Mitchell medium units sank or badly damaged three freighters and two freighter transports southwest of Hong Kong. They also sank a destroyer, and scored near misses on a 3,000 ton freighter transport.

Seal 19 Enemy Caves.

In the stubbornly held Marikina watershed area east of Manila, 1st cavalry and 6th infantry troops "sealed 19 enemy cave strong points," MacArthur announced, as heavy American fire noticeably reduced the enemy's artillery and rocket barrages.

About 20 miles east and northeast of Manila the heaviest air strikes in support of a ground action ever recorded in the Southwest Pacific featured an assault on the enemy's Shimbu line. In two days heavy bombers, attack planes, and dive bombers pounded the heavily defended mountain line with more than 900 tons of bombs. Heavy Liberators alone made more than 75 sorties.

Japs Firmly Entrenched.

Despite the severe hammering the going was still tough for the Yanks. The Japanese are firmly entrenched from Antipolo to Wawa in the Marikina watershed.

Mopping up of the Manila Japanese garrison has passed the waterfront and gone out into the bay, illustrating the tenacity of the Nipponese.

The 129th regiment of the 37th division Tuesday made 17 amphibious strikes against 17 wrecked ships in Manila harbor. Japanese driven from Manila took refuge in the hulks and continued to fire at targets on shore.

Col. John D. Frederick, Springfield, Ill., regimental commander, said, "these Nips never quit. You'd think when we cleaned them out of the city they would be thru. But now we've got to go out and blast them out of sunken ships. I wonder where they will turn up next."

Black-Out on River

WITH U. S. 1ST ARMY, March 7 (AP).—A blanket of secrecy which will veil the movements of the American armies in a buildup for the crossing of the Rhine became effective tonight with a censorship edict relegating each division to anonymity the moment it reached the river. Correspondents may say that such and such a division arrived on the Rhine on such and such a day, but no more. It is reasonable to expect a stringent clampdown on news from the Rhine front from now until the Yanks cross the stream.

PARIS, March 8 [Thursday]—(AP).—Tanks of Lt. Gen. Patton's American 3d army stormed up to the west bank of the Rhine northwest of Coblenz last night, having plunged more than 50 miles inside Germany in a whirlwind advance that sent the enemy reeling in chaotic defeat.

The German collapse on the 3d army front, started by the 4th armored division's breakthru at Bitburg three days ago, soon developed into a rout with other units of the 3d army plunging eastward and the 1st army swinging southward after the capture of Cologne.

It was the Ardennes breakthru in reverse. The Germans apparently had nothing with which to prevent the American sweep from enveloping Coblenz and Bonn. Dispatches said there actually was no semblance of a front in the 3d army sector.

Resistance Overwhelmed.

Virtually all resistance had been overwhelmed and the German troops appeared concerned only with retreating to safety or surrendering as quickly as possible. Masses of Nazi equipment was destroyed and supply dumps were captured so rapidly that the loot has not been evaluated.

The 4th armored division reached the river just northwest of Coblenz in a drive which carried 29 miles in 12 hours. In its greatest surge since Normandy the 3d army had covered 65 miles in 58 hours, making the western allies' deepest penetration of the reich.

To the north Lt. Gen. Hodges' United States 1st army struck southward along the Rhine's west bank from captured Cologne to a point two miles from Bonn, the 1st and 3d armies together having formed in the past week the greatest allied breakthru since St. Lo.

"Complete Picture of Defeat."

The German army which fled before Patton's 3d "was the most complete picture of defeat the war in the west has produced," said a dispatch from the front. "Its men were beaten, its equipment destroyed."

Thousands of German vehicles and armor were blasted into flaming wrecks, and German prisoners streamed westward in droves thru the 4th division's narrow corridor, many of them unescorted and carrying white flags over their heads.

"Civilians along the corridor watched in amazement as the American armor rolled past hour after hour," said a front dispatch. "Many towns thru which the armor sped were untouched because the Germans were not ready, or were unwilling, to offer resistance."

The city of Coblenz, lying at the confluence of the Rhine and the Moselle and serving as a communications hub for a large area, was "almost within the grasp" of the 3d army tonight, an Associated Press correspondent said.

Was 1918 Headquarters.

Coblenz was the 3d army's headquarters after the last war. It was just across the river on the Rhine's east bank that the Stars and Stripes were hauled down from over the fortress of Ehrenbreitstein by the departing doughboys when the occupation ended in 1923.

There was no estimate of the number of German troops caught in the pocket formed west of the Rhine and north of the Moselle by the American 1st and 3d armies. A stretch of the Rhine's west bank approximately 30 miles long separates the two American forces and the pocket extends almost 30 miles to the west. The disorganized Germans thus encircled face capture or death if they cannot get across the river before the pocket is eliminated.

There are six bridges across the Rhine between Bonn and Coblenz and five still were usable at last reports.

The 50th infantry division following up the 4th armored's breakthru to the Rhine, reached the vicinity of Schwarzenborn, 10 miles northeast of Bitburg and Oberstadtfeld, 17 miles northeast of Bitburg.

The 76th infantry, in a one mile gain to the east, entered Zemmer, eight and one-half miles northeast of Trier and captured Binsfeld and Herforst, 13 miles northeast of Trier. Other elements of the 76th pushed two miles northeast and reached the vicinity of Niederkail.

The 10th armored division pushed one mile and a half to the northeast, entering Mertesdorf and clearing Ehrang and Quint, about four and one-half miles northeast of Trier.

Mop Up in Cologne.

On the northern sector of the 3d's front, the 90th infantry advanced two miles on a three mile front, capturing Buscheid, 12 miles east of Pruem.

The 11th armored, passing thru the 90th infantry, captured five towns and drove 11 miles eastward to the vicinity of Kelberg. The 4th infantry captured Bewingen, Bolsdorf and Dohm, all 11 miles northeast of Pruem.

On this ninth anniversary of Hitler's remilitarization of the Rhineland, American troops had cleared out all of shattered Cologne except the extreme southeast corner and were drawn up firmly along a 90 mile stretch of the wide Rhine from Cologne north to the Dutch border with the exception of a major enemy pocket at Wesel.

Headquarters slapped a blackout on operations of Hodges' 1st army south of Rheinbach, which is 21 miles south of Cologne and nine miles southwest of Bonn. There were official reports, however, of American advances up to seven miles in this area.

Poised for Bonn Assault.

In their scramble to get across the Rhine the Germans were believed to be completely confused about the progress of American tanks, especially in the area south and west of Bonn. Ninth infantry division doughboys were poised for the assault on Bonn, toward which the defeated enemy garrison of Cologne was making a fighting retreat. Alfter and Gielsdorf, just west of Bonn, were in American hands.

The 1st infantry division advanced within two miles of the Rhine at a point five miles northwest of Bonn, capturing 19 German anti-aircraft guns and 14 trucks, all intact and ready for use. The 78th infantry cleared Schweinheim and Kirchheim, more than five miles southeast of Euskirchen.

American troops who rolled into Bruhl, five miles south of Cologne and two miles west of the Rhine, found the town choked with between 10,000 and 20,000 refugees from Cologne.

Push Across Highway.

The 1st army's 104th infantry division went briskly about its task of clearing the last Nazis out of the Marienburg district of Cologne next to the river. The 8th infantry division pushed across the Cologne-Euskirchen highway and captured Meschenich, three miles south of Cologne.

North of Cologne other 1st army units cleared the Germans out of the town of Zons, on the west bank of the Rhine six miles south of Duesseldorf. This was the last Nazi bridgehead between Cologne and Wesel.

Somewhere between 10,000 and 20,000 Nazis were fighting to hold the Wesel bridgehead against converging Canadian, British, and American troops, who had squeezed them into an area of about eight-by-five miles.

9th Army Has Battle.

A field dispatch said an American 9th army armored unit suffered heavily in a sharp tank battle just outside the captured town of Orsenberg, five miles south of Wesel. Nazis in that area were reported fleeing across the Rhine in ferries, rowboats, and anything that would float.

British and Canadian troops smashing at the enemy's Wesel bridgehead were reported meeting the fiercest rearguard action they had encountered since they opened their offensive west of Kleve a month ago.

In their suicidal "nuisance" stand the Nazis fought Canadian forces to a standstill before the stronghold of Xanten, seven miles west of Wesel, and were making a house-to-house stand in Veen, eight miles southwest of Wesel.

DOM CATHEDRAL SENTINEL OVER COLOGNE'S RUINS

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

COLOGNE, Germany, March 7.—Surrounded by a sea of devastation, Cologne's famous Gothic cathedral, the Dom, still stands, the only important edifice in the entire city to have escaped destruction in the R. A. F. and American air raids.

Seven times bombs tore holes in the roof or ripped fragments from its ancient stone work. The floor of the nave and sanctuary is littered with broken stones. But the massive structure is virtually intact and all of its religious treasures are safe, having been removed to the interior of Germany or covered with solid brick shields.

Allied bombing had turned the Inner City into a shambles of twisted steel girders, leveled buildings, and streets heaped with debris. The Hohenzollern bridge approach, a block east of the Dom at the bank of the Rhine, was smashed. The huge Haupt Bahnhof, the main railway station, only a few yards away from the cathedral, is a shattered hulk.

Tower in Fragile Splendor.

Towering in fragile splendor over these ruins the twin spires of the great cathedral stood as a miraculous monument as American soldiers and this correspondent gazed today at what has been described as "perhaps one of the most perfect examples of the most perfect period of Christian architecture."

Standing in the Dom-Kloster square you see that bomb splinters have bitten into the cathedral's west front. The northern spire of the 515 foot high towers has a huge chunk missing from its base, a hole which had been shored in with new brick.

The bomb blast also had torn along the northern side of the cathedral but apparently had not caused any structural damage. There were holes in the dome shaped roof and in the sloping slate roof of the northern transept.

Inside the nave was deep with broken masonry and grayish stone blocks. They had fallen from the roof 150 feet above. Some were chunks taken out of a few of the 56 stone pillars supporting the 400 foot long nave with which the transept makes a cruciform.

Tourist Atmosphere.

I was joined in my walk down the double aisles on either side of the nave by Lt. George Fillman, 2262 Greenview av., Chicago, who said he, too, was "just a tourist." Adding to the tourist atmosphere was the cathedral's custodian, who had a handful of printed English pamphlets to distribute to the curious.

Blasts had ripped apart those stained glass windows which had not been removed previously. Some of the carved wooden stalls also had suffered, but most of them were just covered with mortar and dust.

Back in the transept two armored infantry soldiers, T/5 Eugene J. Binek, 607 N. Noble st., and T/5 John Milas, 519 N. Marshfield av., Chicago, trudged by herding three German male civilians.

"Anybody know where they're rounding up civilians now?" Binek inquired. No one knew. Milas looked around the desolate cathedral interior and tilted his head back to scan the dim ceiling.

"Jeeze, this is a big joint," said the soldier, who, only a few hours before had been killing snipers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COLOGNE, Germany, March 7.—Greek, Russian, and Czech rifles were there, with ammunition. There were stacks of German bazookas and boxes of hand grenades.

Every one, including the anti-aircraft personnel who had occupied the commodious underground shelter, had been ordered to fight to the last. But the occupants of this luxurious bunker, with its portraits of Goering, had ducked out as rapidly as they could before the onrush of the American 1st army offensive.

The concrete and bricks smelled new. Branches were stretched as camouflage over the deep flight of stone stairs, and construction was still in progress, as evidenced by masses of freshly turned earth.

The Latest Refrigerators.

The beautiful headquarters was intact, except for the personal papers of its officers. It obviously had been used briefly by the headquarters of an anti-aircraft regiment.

Half eaten food was there in dirty bowls. Silver individual coffee cups of the regimental mess lined the kitchen cupboards beside the latest and best of electric refrigerators.

The rooms were stacked with radio and radar equipment, and loud speakers for interoffice communications. In one room was an electrical grid map showing all of western Europe, with marked blocks so the approach of allied planes could be traced.

In the office of the commander, shelves held dozens of technical books as well as scores of the usual Nazi ideology. Included was the famous work of Prof. Karl Haushoffer, German geographer who was one of the first to outline a method for Germany to win the world.

Everything for Comfort.

Everything was there conducive to comfort and efficiency, tucked away deep under ground, out of range of bombs, in one corner of the Stadt woods west of Lindenthal. Everything but the men.

They had kept a daily situation map, which was still on the wall, and the last position they'd bothered to mark was Frechen, on the western outskirts of the city. That had been enough.

They hadn't even bothered to take their bicycles. And so hasty was the retreat that a truck loaded with equipment, rifles, and personal belongings of the men stood on the forest edge.

Only the portrait of Goering, the man who said bombs would never fall on German soil, remained behind to greet the 104th division troops.

20 ARMED NAZIS GUIDE 5 YANKS THRU MINE FIELD

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE 63D INFANTRY DIVISION, Germany, March 7.—Teutonic psychology still is a puzzle to Pvt. Ralph Krueger. He will never be able to figure out why 46 German soldiers made no attempt to capture him and four of his comrades and to retrieve six Nazi prisoners, and why some of the 46 even guided the Americans thru a mine field.

Krueger, who lives at Milwaukee, Wis., was with a patrol from the 63d regiment on an attacking mission near the Saar river above Sarregeumines. The patrol seized six Germans, and Krueger and Pvt. Don Wilson, Indianapolis, Ind., and Pvt. Harold Oblinger, Youngstown, O., were ordered to take the prisoners to the rear. Accompanying them were two wounded Americans.

Yells Stop All Shooting

Krueger's group had gone back several hundred yards when machine guns fired on them from a strong point in a house. A slug hit one of the wounded Americans in the right leg. The captive Nazis yelled to the Germans in the house and the firing stopped.

Krueger realized he was outnumbered but he sent one of the prisoners into the house with this message: "If you won't fire, we won't. Either surrender now or let us thru."

Twenty Germans came out but made no effort to disarm the Americans or recover the prisoners. Krueger, speaking some German, again asked the enemy to yield.

"Why should we?" asked the sergeant in command, "we are going to counter-attack tonight."

The German sergeant then made the astonishing offer to escort the Yanks and their six captives thru the mine field. The captives shook hands with their coun ymen from the house and Krueger's group was then conducted thru the mined area, after which the German sergeant returned to the house.

Yanks Do It Again.

Two hundred yards beyond the mines other enemy machine guns opened up. Krueger repeated his routine, sending the same prisoner to the second strong point with a demand for its surrender. Twenty-six Germans came out and looked over the detachment. They wouldn't give up but neither would they try to detain the five Americans and six Germans.

Krueger and his party went on and reached our lines in safety.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Yugoslav radio reported that Premier Tito completed the formation of a new unity government yesterday, naming Dr. Ivan Subasic, former head of the Yugoslav government in London, as his foreign minister. The completed list was handed to Yugoslavia's three new regents who signed a decree formally appointing the government. Dr. Milan Grol was named vice premier and minister for the constituent assembly, said the broadcast.

40 MINUTE RAID MAKES COLOGNE HOSPITAL A RUIN

Last Patients Treated Underground.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COLOGNE, Germany, March 7.—Before Cologne came to the attention of British and American air forces its Lindenburg hospital was the largest in western Germany. Today, the hospital's sprawling acres are a bomb pocked ruin.

Once this hospital had a capacity of 150 doctors, 200 sisters, and 250 orderlies and servants. It boasted accommodations for 1,000 students and drew them from all Europe and even the United States.

Smashed by Bombs.

Lindenburg had escaped damage until last April 20 when bombs destroyed the chapel. The main buildings remained intact, however, until last Oct. 30 and then, under a heavy R. A. F. bomb assault, Lindenburg crumpled.

"The bombing began at 8:30 p. m. and lasted 40 minutes," said Father Anton Gotzens, the hospital chaplain. A hundred bombs fell, destroying every building that had a roof. Thirty children, 1,200 other patients, and 200 nuns were in the underground shelters. It was a minor miracle that only four of the patients were killed, the priest said.

At present, in the hospital's air raid shelters are its last 200 patients, under care of 20 physicians and 20 Catholic sisters. Most of the patients are old people, but 10 are younger civilians recovering from typhus.

200 Cases in Cologne.

In Cologne, the chaplain said, are 200 cases of typhus. The hospital is attempting to maintain facilities to administer vaccine to any who are able to reach its grounds. In the heavily bombed city, where survivors were compelled to live in cellars and unsanitary bunkers, the growth of this disease of filth, carried by body lice, was inevitable.

In one room of a hospital building lay an abandoned swastika armband in red and black, and the brown cap of a Nazi party leader. We asked the priest about these items. He shrugged, smiled and said he didn't know about them.

ALLIES TAKE MILLION GERMANS SINCE D-DAY LANDING IN NORMANDY

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCES, Paris, March 7 (AP).—The total prisoner count for allied armies on the western front reached 1,002,929 today. Of that total, the American 1st army captured 268,140; the 3d army 199,086, the 7th 93,107, and the 9th 89,330. The Canadian 1st army has captured 143,114, the British 2d army 104,336, the French 1st army 85,824, and the French Forces of the Interior 19,992. The total taken by the four American armies was 649,663.

DESSAU RAIDED BY R. A. F. HEAVY BOMBER FORCE

LONDON, March 8 [Thursday]—(AP).—More than 1,250 R. A. F. warplanes ranged over Germany last night, blasting the important eastern front base of Dessau, hammering at vital oil refineries, and showering explosives on Berlin for the 16th successive night.

Dessau, which was described by the air ministry as the main target, is situated about 67 miles southwest of Berlin and about 100 miles behind the German front lines in the east. Heavy bomb loads were dumped on oil refineries at Harburg, near Hamburg, and at Heide in Schleswig-Holstein. Berlin was hit by Mosquito bombers.

The sweeping overnight raids followed daylight assaults by approximately 1,200 American heavy bombers and strafing fighters, concentrated largely on German supply lines feeding the western front.

1,650 Mile Record Claimed for Towed Cargo Glider

CALCUTTA, March 7 (AP).—A world's record for a nonstop cargo glider flight was claimed in India recently when a towed glider covered 1,650 miles from Karachi to an east India base in 11 hours. An ATC transport pulled the glider, piloted by Lt. Bernard R. McGaully, Plattsburgh, N. Y., of the American 1st air Commando group.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

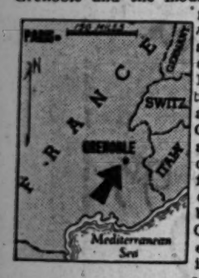
GRENOBLE, CITY OF BRIGHT LIGHTS, BECKONS TO G.I.S

1,200 Yanks at a Time to Play in Alps.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GRENOBLE, France, March 7.—Grenoble and the mountainous region about it were an outstanding center of Maquis [patriot] resistance to the Germans, and Grenoble was the first city decorated by the De Gaulle government for its stand against the invaders.



Arrow points to Grenoble.

The French Forces of the Interior [FFI] still have great prestige in this region, but the resistance groups have been disbanded or absorbed into the regular fighting forces of the nation, Mayor Laffeur of Grenoble said.

The city appears intensely loyal to Gen. de Gaulle. His picture is posted everywhere. There is much political stir and preparation for the elections in April and May. All sections of the resistance movement have set up offices and put out election propaganda. Each urges its own cause, but all ask for unity. Around the Place Grenette I saw flamboyant window decorations of the Communist party, Popular Republican Union, French Women's Union, National Liberation Movement, Front Nationale, Combat, and several other organizations.

Nazis May Adopt System.

The Germans feared the Grenoble FFI, and it is believed they have used the Maquis' methods of guerrilla warfare as a pattern for a proposed movement of resistance inside Germany once the German army is smashed by Gen. Eisenhower and the Russians. As early as 1943, when they foresaw possible operations on their own territory, the Germans began to study the Maquis' tactics in sabotage, sniping, and harassing.

There was much street fighting in Grenoble during the liberation days last summer, but the city bears few scars. There was constant warfare between the FFI and the German Gestapo and Joseph Darnand's militiamen, who aided them during the occupation. The FFI was so strong that it finally besieged Grenoble and forced the Germans out.

Grenoble teems with French soldiers back from the front, along the Alps between Switzerland and the Mediterranean.

City Fully Lighted.

We reached here in a jeep from Lyon about nightfall and found the city lighted up as in pre-war days. Every street lamp was unshaded. Pvt. Le Roy Routh, a Mississippian who drove the jeep, couldn't believe his eyes. It was the first completely lighted town I've seen in Europe since the outbreak of the war.

It is an attractive city with wide streets and modern buildings, spruce and clean. Americans prefer it to any French city they have seen.

In peace days Grenoble was a center of the glovemaking industry and the tourist trade. Neither is likely to be resumed soon, but the town will shortly be turned into a furlough and rest center for American troops. Hotels have been requisitioned to take care of 1,200 soldiers at a time who will spend a week here, Mayor Laffeur said.

Grenoble lies within sight of the Le Dauphin ranges of the French Alps, which will be a playground for the American soldiers during their stay. Just now the mountains are white with snow.

MIDWEST FLOOD PERIL EASED AS HEAVY RAIN ENDS

22 Soldiers Missing

Memphis, Tenn., March 8 [Thursday]—(AP).—Twenty-two soldiers were missing early today in 40 foot deep, swift flood waters of the swollen White river in Arkansas after an assault boat with 25 men capsized. Three men were accounted for, but first reports to Col. G. W. Miller, United States army engineer for the Memphis district, did not indicate whether they were dead or alive. Miller said there was a chance some of the 22 were clinging to roots and trees. Life preservers had been issued them. They had been patroling levee areas.

Cincinnati, O., March 7 [Special].—Colder weather, which put an end to heavy rains, today eased slightly the peril from overflowing midwestern rivers, principally the Ohio.

At Cincinnati the Ohio reached a crest of 69.2 feet, 17.2 feet above flood stage. The weather bureau said no further rise was to be expected, and at last reports the crest was dropping slightly. Forecasters predicted crests of from 15 to 20 feet above flood stage would be reached tomorrow all along the river.

Thousands Homeless.

Thousands have been made homeless along the length of the river, at least eight lives have been lost, and property damage is listed in the millions. War production has been hard hit in several states.

Trains operating between Chicago and Cincinnati terminate their runs in Cincinnati's suburbs. The Pennsylvania road ends at Norwood, 10 miles from here, and the Baltimore & Ohio transfers passengers to buses in suburban Cincinnati. Airplane passengers for Cincinnati are landed at Dayton.

Send Skiffs from Chicago.

Eighteen skiffs were sent by truck last night to the Ohio flood area by the Chicago coast guard district, Comdr. P. G. Pettersen, head of the Chicago base, reported.

At Huntington, W. Va., it was estimated that 20,000 West Virginians are being evacuated from the path of the Ohio. They were in New Cumberland, Benwood, Moundsville, New Martinsville, Parkersburg, Point Pleasant, and smaller communities.

At Wheeling, W. Va., heavy industry was at a standstill because of waters expected to crest at about 49 feet, 13 above flood stage.

Danger of a serious flood at Pittsburgh, Pa., ebbed as the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers reached a crest of 33.4 feet today and then showed indications of receding. River front streets were flooded, but no serious damage was done to Pittsburgh's downtown area. About 20,000 war workers were kept from their jobs.

Reports from Louisville, Ky., said the Ohio will reach a crest of 47 feet early Friday, hold it for 24 hours, and then start falling. Railroads canceled most of their train movements in the Louisville area, and several hundred persons along the river from Ashland to Owensboro had been moved from their homes.

With the Little Wabash river five feet above flood stage, about 50 people were forced from their home at Carmi, Ill.

At Portsmouth, O., a team of 350 state troopers, aided by volunteers, sought to raise a temporary sandbag levee to supplement the city's partly finished flood wall. The Ohio was expected to go over it when it reached 63 feet, 13 above flood stage.

U. S. AND BRAZILIAN TROOPS GAIN 5 MILES IN ITALIAN OFFENSIVE

ROME, March 7 (AP).—The United States 10th mountain division has scored a five mile advance thru some of Italy's most rugged terrain and against heavy German artillery, machine gun, and mortar fire during the last three days, allied headquarters announced today.

Lifting a three day blackout on news of action in the Apennines southwest of Bologna, headquarters said the action was "a most successful limited objective attack" which resulted in the capture of a number of dominating peaks west of the Bologna-Pistoia highway, the town of Castel d'Aiano, 20 miles from Bologna, and 1,200 prisoners.

The American assault was supported by Brazilian troops operating on the right flank of the mountaineers. The Brazilians seized Castel Nuovo, three miles southeast of Castel d'Aiano and a mile west of the Bologna-Pistoia highway.

PATTON SWIMS ICY RIVER TWICE AND G.I.S FOLLOW

Bastogne Hero Tells of General's Feat.

Baltimore, Md., March 7 (AP).—How Lt. Gen. Patton twice swam the 150 foot Sure river in Germany in January under heavy machine gun and artillery fire, inspiring "thousands of troops to follow him," was told today by one of the men who did.

Staff Sgt. Thomas J. Defibaugh, Cumberland, Md., one of the soldiers who followed Patton across the Sure, said:

"There was about a foot of snow on the ground when we got to the Sure river near the Luxemburg, German, and Belgian borders.

"We learned that we had to take the town of Bettendorf on the opposite side and do it quickly.

General Stops Use of Boats.

"The Germans began firing machine guns and artillery at us as we came up to the river bank.

"Just before dawn we started going across in three man boats. The river was swift and cold and pieces of ice were floating in it.

"After a while, Gen. Patton called the boats back and ordered the men to swim across with rifles, bazookas, and everything they could carry because they were 'sitting pigeons' for the Germans in the boats, which sat two or three feet out of the water.

"He figured the men would have a better chance swimming, since they would then present only the tops of their heads as targets.

He Shows Then How.

"To show us it could be done and to inspire the troops, Gen. Patton jumped into the water and swam across to the opposite bank, then swam back. Thousands of troops followed him."

Inspired by Patton's daring, the soldiers fought like madmen for Bettendorf, Defibaugh said, and took it after a bitter day and a half battle that established the Americans on high ground overlooking Germany.

Defibaugh is a member of the 4th infantry division, which helped relieve the pressure on Americans trapped at Bastogne by the German counter-offensive last December. He is touring war plants in the Baltimore area with other heroes of Bastogne.

GREEK REGIME VIOLATES TRUCE, LEFTISTS CHARGE

ATHENS, Greece, March 7 [Reuters].—EAM, leftist Greek party, has accused the Greek government of not respecting the EAM government agreement of Feb. 12.

In a long memorandum handed to the regent, the government and the allied ambassadors, EAM complained against alleged hindrance of the circulation of the left wing press; arrests without warrant; collaboration of government agents with the extreme right wing organization, and the presence of former members of the security battalions [which operated under the German occupation] in the national guards.

Demonstrator Killed.

At Volo, it was reported, EAM demonstrators tried to disarm national guards and seize the prefecture. The guards opened fire, killing a demonstrator and wounding another. As a result, a curfew has been imposed in the town from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m.

At Salonika, anti-EAM demonstrators were reported to have attacked the office of an EAM group and torn down a soviet flag, causing the inthervention of a Russian officer. A government source today said that if the accusation that a soviet flag was torn down is proved true those responsible will be severely punished.

At a meeting last night, gaps in the Greek cabinet were filled. Athanassiades Nova, a former Progressive deputy, was appointed minister of interior; Stavro Nicolaides, former Liberal deputy, was named minister of labor; the retired Adm. Apostolos Carabidas was chosen as undersecretary to the minister of transport, and Dr. Nikitas Tsoutis was made undersecretary for public health.

12,000 Detained by British.

LONDON, March 7 [Reuters].—Twelve thousand Greeks were detained in North Africa by the British authorities, Foreign Secretary Eden disclosed in the house of commons today. Eight thousand were ELAS [leftist] prisoners, sent to Africa during the fighting in Greece, he said.

There had been hunger strikes in two detention camps under British control near Athens, in which 5,000 men were held, Eden continued. He asserted that the strike was quelled after an address by an ELAS official.

"Arrangements are in hand to transfer all these Greeks and it is hoped 150 will arrive in a week's time," Eden added.

ITALIAN CABINET BACKS PREMIER; REDS FACE SPLIT

ROME, March 7 (AP).—Premier Ivanoe Bonomi weathered his second political crisis in three months tonight as the cabinet, in an extraordinary session, convoked after the riot at the royal palace yesterday reaffirmed confidence in the premier who promised a swift purge of Fascists.

The expression of confidence came after a long session in the Viminale palace while rifle bearing policemen, supported by two tanks commanding the driveways sloping up to the palace, guarded the ministers.

A cabinet announcement, issued as the opposition press clamored for overthrow of the Bonomi regime, said the four party coalition government "has agreed there is no reason for breaking up the coalition which first planned and already has begun vast action for intensifying the war and bettering Italy's position in the world." The decision threatened a wide split in Communist ranks.

Red Rift Revealed.

The decision by Communists—whose leader, Palmiro Togliatti, is vice premier—to continue in the government brought into the open wide divergencies within the party. Two Communists were included in the delegation which demanded Bonomi's resignation yesterday following the palace riot.

Communists also had joined with opposition groups in sponsoring a mass meeting in Colosseum square following the escape of Gen. Mario Roatta, former Italian army chief of staff. It was this which provoked the demonstration and a march on the palace by Romans waving red flags and shouting "Death to the king."

Roatta Reported Seen.

One report said Roatta was seen yesterday at Foligno, north of Rome, heading for Ancona or Florence.

The Vatican denied he had taken refuge in neutral Vatican City as suggested in a London dispatch to a Rome newspaper.

Meanwhile, Rome was quiet and tense today after the riot spread last night to crowded Regina Coeli prison. Police and firemen with hoses took three hours to restore order.

EDEN DEFENDS RED ANNEXATION OF KOENIGSBERG

Nazis Should Be Moved, He Tells Commons.

LONDON, March 7 [Reuters].—Foreign Secretary Eden was asked in the house of commons today on what historical or ethnographical grounds the British government agreed to cession to Russia of Koenigsberg in East Prussia.

Replying to a Conservative member, Donald Savory, opponent of British policy in Poland, Eden said that the British government's view was that East Prussia should be detached from Germany and the German population removed from it. In such conditions it seemed that the soviet claim to the city had justification, he declared, adding that he did not know of any considerable Polish element in the city's population.

Savory further asked what steps were to be taken by the allies to "safeguard the rights of the Polish majority in Tarnopol, Vilna, and Lwow."

Poles May Move.

"Figures of the whole province of Tarnopol show that neither by language nor religion are the Poles in an absolute majority, altho they form the majority in the urban area," Eden replied.

He added that under an agreement between the Lublin committee and the Ukrainian soviet republic, Poles in the Tarnopol area had the same right of transfer to the west of the Curzon line as those in eastern Galicia.

Eden declared that the soviet government was taking steps to set free the wife of Tomasz Arciszewski, premier in the London Polish government, whose arrest, while engaged in Red Cross work in Warsaw, was reported last Thursday. Eden added that the Russian authorities had informed the British ambassador in Moscow that they were taking this step "to meet the wishes of the British government."

Special Courts in Poland.

Pressed to reveal whether the soviet authorities had given any reason for the arrest, Eden replied: "I have been given some but I think in the light of the happy conclusion of my representations the house will think it wiser to leave the matter alone."

Special tribunals to hold Polish treason trials were established by the Lublin Polish committee, Eden stated, adding that he had no evidence that the Lublin committee had issued a decree outlawing the Polish army as a whole.

'Photog' Describes the Trip to Volcano.

[The picture of a group of United States marines raising the flag atop Mount Suribachi on the south end of Iwo Island has been acclaimed all over the nation as one of the most dramatic pictures of the war. The photographer who took it is Joe Rosenthal of the Associated Press, a short, jolly, wiry, mustached fellow who will go anywhere to record a stirring action. Here, for the first time, he tells the background of the Suribachi picture.]

GUAM, March 7 (AP).—"See that spot of red on the mountainside," the bos'n shouted above the noise of our landing craft nearing the shore at the base of Suribachi Yama.

"A group of marines is climbing up to plant our flag up there. I heard it from the radioman."

He was plenty excited—and so was I.

The fall of this 560 foot fortress in four days of gallant marine fighting was a great thing. A good story and we should have good pictures.

So in I went, back to more of that slogging thru the deep volcanic sand, warily sidestepping the numerous Japanese mines—on past the culverts where the Japanese dead lay among the wreckage of their gun positions and up the steep winding always sandy trail.

Marines Accompany Him.

Marine Pvt. Bob Campbell, a San Francisco buddy of mine, and Sgt. Bill Janausk of Tacoma, Wash., were with me and carried firearms for protection [which is disallowed to correspondents].

There was still an occasional sharp crack of rifle fire close by and the mountainside had a porcupine appearance of bristling all over, what with machine and anti-aircraft guns peering from the dugouts, foxholes, and caves. There were few signs of life in these enemy spots, however. Our men were systematically "blowing out" these places and we had to be on our toes to keep clear of our own demolition squads.

As the trail became steeper, our panting progress slowed to a few yards at a time. I began to wonder and hope that this was worth the effort, when suddenly over the brow of the topmost ridge we could spy men working with the flag pole they had so laboriously brought up about three-quarters of an hour ahead of us.

Stands on Volcano's Rim.

I came up and stood by a few minutes until they were ready to swing the flagpole into position.

I crowded back on the inner edge of the volcano's rim, back as far as I could, in order to include all I could into the scene within the angle covered by my camera lens.

I rolled up a couple of large stones and a Japanese sandbag to raise my short height clear of an intervening obstruction. I followed up this shot with another of a group of cheering marines and then I tried to find the four men I heard were the actual instigators of the grand adventure. But they had scattered to their units and I finally gave it up and descended the mountain to get the pictures out and on their way to possible publication.

The way down was quite a bit easier, the path becoming well worn and men were carrying ammunition supplies, food, and rations.

I have two very vivid memories: The fury of their D-day assault and the thrill of that lofty flag raising episode.

MILK AND HONEY FOR U. S. MONEY: THAT'S CANADA

They Don't Do So Bad on Meat, Either, Yank Finds.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., March 7.—The cream is thicker once you cross the border into Canada.

That's just one of the scorer of little items which appeal to the American visitor who has been fretting under the war time bans and restrictions of Washington burocracy, together with resultant scarcities.

The dominion has not found it necessary to invoke these limitations on living, even tho it has been formally at war two years longer than the United States. It looks with mild amusement, tinged with scorn, upon what it views as "hysteria" which has prompted a midnight curfew, abolition of conventions and horse racing, curbs on sports, elimination of outdoor electric displays, and rationing of a great variety of commodities.

It is this plentitude of creature comforts and opportunities for pleasure upon which Canada depends for a summer influx of American visitors with plenty of money to spend.

Exchange Favors U. S.

There's a pleasurable surprise for the visitors when he makes his first purchase. He has just finished his breakfast in the diner, receiving for one dollar more and better food than a dollar and a half would have obtained for him on the American side of the border. He has consumed fruit juice, cereal, a thick slice of ham with two eggs fried in butter, toast, and butter and marmalade, a big pot of coffee with lots of thick, yellow cream. He hands a $10 bill to the courteous waiter. He receives back $10 in Canadian currency.

For a moment he thinks there has been a mistake. Then he recalls the 10 per cent rate of exchange in favor of the American dollar which makes every one of his $10 bills worth $11 in Canada. He figures he has had his best breakfast in many months for nothing and royally tips the waiter.

That 10 per cent increase is expected to appeal particularly to the thousands of horse racing fans whom Canada expects to attract to its tracks this year.

Rationing Is Mild.

There are only three edibles rationed in Canada—butter, sugar, and preserves. Butter rationing is a joke by comparison with the American system. Instead of surrendering 24 red points, almost half of an individual's monthly allotment, for each pound, the Canadian householder gets coupons allowing a half pound a week for each person in the family. A family of four is thus permitted two pounds a week and few Canadians use all the butter coupons given them.

The only scarcity is in sugar. Restaurants parcel out two lumps for each cup of coffee. While preserves and jams are rationed, the coupon allowances are generous.

Canadian business men are students of the American public. Their experience with the tourists of the prohibition period indicates that present day visitors will get much the same kick out of purchasing United States rationed foods, without giving up points, as they once did out of buying liquor legally.

Pay Points at Border.

The buyer may not be able to take his purchases back over the border without surrendering ration points any more than he could once bring back alcoholic potables, but the essential thrill of buying something openly which would be a black market transaction back home will still be there, Canadians reason.

That viewpoint can be confirmed from this reporter's personal experience. Like many another husband, he has often been pressed into service for assistance in the arduous labor of marketing in these days of rationing and scarcities and gruff clerks.

There was a nostalgic pleasure in wandering thru a Canadian meat market, gazing on a vast arrangement of beef, lamb, pork, chickens, turkeys, ducks, and cheeses, all available without a ration book.

It was comparable to sitting at a table and drinking openly and legally during the sad years of prohibition.

Prices Compared.

Meat prices were high in some instances, low in others, by comparison with American standards. The following prices, in cents per pound [United Sttes red point values in parentheses], were noted: Roasting chicken, 43; stewing chickens, 36; leg of veal, boneless, 39 [10]; rolled rib roast, 44 [10]; loin pork roast 35 [7]; rolled corned beef, 25 [6]; corned beef, brisket, 19 [6]; porterhouse steak, 48 [9].

Report Division of Austria Control

TELL BIG THREE PLAN TO OCCUPY ALL OF AUSTRIA

Map Zones; No Ruling on Independence.

LONDON, March 7 [Reuters].—Plans for the occupation of Austria by the Big Three—and possibly by France—have been agreed upon, according to well informed sources here.

The whole of Austria and also the city area of Vienna have been divided into three zones of occupation, American, Russian, and British. Those will be administered as separate and autonomous units by the respective powers.

The Russian zone includes lower Austria, the Burgenland and northern Steyermark. That is the highly industrialized area to the north and south of Vienna and includes the important centers of Wiener Neustadt, Bruck, Leoben, and Eisenerz.

U. S. Rules Goering Works.

The British zone is to the south of the Russian. Starting just north of Graz, it includes that city and the rest of Steyermark province not in the Russian zone, and also the whole of Carinthia, the Tyrol, and the Vorarlberg alongside the Swiss border.

The American zone is made up of upper Austria and adjoins the American zone of occupation in Germany. It includes Linz with the Hermann Goering works.

More unexpected is the reported decision to divide the city area of greater Vienna into three zones.

The Russian zone will include the southern areas of Vienna and most of the central area. This takes in the south and east railway stations. Also allotted to the Russians is the southern half of the eastern districts, including the dock warehouses of the Danube port, tho the port itself, it is believed, will be inside the American zone.

Industrial Area for U. S.

The American zone will include the whole of the industrial areas of the eastern districts, including the well known Floridsdorf, Leopoldau, where the synthetic oil plants are situated, and the two airdromes serving Vienna at Aspern and Fischament. It also includes the gas and electric producing centers of Vienna.

The British zone consists of the western districts and most of the northern. It includes the west station and the Franz-Josef station, also the famous Schoenbrunn palace of the Hapsburgs.

The 1st district, including the government buildings, has not been allocated.

Allowance is made in these zones for French participation, should the French desire it. Also, it is believed, there will be some frontier rectification in favor of Yugoslavia.

Independence Unsolved.

As it stands, however, the ultimate problem of Austrian independence remains unsolved and no decision has yet been taken, it is believed in London. Labor spokesmen, however, have expressed the hope that any arrangement made should not cut across the right of the legitimate Austrian trade union and labor representatives to return and reorganize their movements which have been illegal since the Dollfuss dictatorship in 1934.

They may seek assurances in parliament that none of the three occupying forces will seek to impose artificial regimes on the country, but that an opportunity will be given for free elections in all zones. Austrian Socialists and trade union leaders in London already have instructed the underground organization inside the country to contact the Red armies at the first opportunity while maintaining their organization separate from the Communists who are not strong in Austria.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 7.—The first French prisoners of war and slave laborers to be repatriated arrived in Paris today. The men were freed by the United States 9th army Feb. 28 in the advance toward the Rhine. Thirty-five had been prisoners at Stalag 6-J near Krefeld and the remaining 11 had been doing forced labor in the region.

"We learned from German civilians that the Americans were approaching," said the prisoners' leader, "and we hid two days in a cellar. When the Americans arrived and learned we were French they gave us a great welcome and sent us on with a French repatriation officer to Belgium, then Lille, and finally Paris."

The returning prisoners said that the food in the German camp was mostly potatoes ad completely lacking in fats and that replacement of wearing apparel was nonexistent. They said the Germans were pinning their hopes less and less on secret weapons.

2 U. S. BANKERS TO HELP REOPEN BANKS IN MANILA

MANILA, March 7 (AP).—Two American bankers arrived in Manila yesterday, at the invitation of President Osmena, to help the Philippine government unravel the knotty problem of banking rehabilitation.

The commonwealth is without any banking facilities at present. American and British banks were formally liquidated at the outbreak of the war. Some Filipino banks were taken over and operated by the Japanese, or their Filipino puppets. These are technically insolvent.

The American advisers—Donald L. Ballantyne and William J. Lamneck of the Chase National bank of New York—were chosen because of their long experience in the far east. Ballantyne's last post in the orient was as manager of the bank's Hong Kong branch. Lamneck served with the Shanghai branch nearly 10 years.

Rep. Luce to Visit British Troops on Italian Front

LONDON, March 7 (AP).—Rep. Luce [R., Conn.] plans to leave England today. The war office said her trip would include Italy, where she will visit British troops at the invitation of Field Marshal Alexander.

CANADIAN RIFLE STORY ASSAILED AS AID TO NAZIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., March 7.—Within 24 hours after the charge had been made that Canadian army reënforcements sent to Europe had thrown their rifles overboard, the Nazis were using loud speakers to taunt Canadian troops in the front lines, A. G. L. McNaughton, minister of defense, said today.

McNaughton accused John Bracken, Progressive-Conservative party leader who made the statement, of having "done more to injure Canada's reputation than any other political propaganda during the war."

The defense minister reiterated that only one man had thrown his rifle into the ocean and that the soldier had been court-martialed and sentenced to detention for 18 months.

Bracken Charge Renewed.

"He [Mr. Bracken] said again [Friday evening] that Canadian troops proceeding overseas had thrown their rifles into the sea," McNaughton asserted. "He said he stood by that statement. The last time he made it [early in February], it was being blared forth 24 hours later from the Nazis' front loud speakers, a taunt designed to undermine the morale of Canadian troops and create dissension between them and their allies. Fortunately, we had been able to ascertain the truth of the case quickly and had passed it on to our men before the enemy broadcast the falsehood.

"Bracken's gross exaggeration was quickly snatched up and re-exaggerated. The Germans used it for propaganda and it was spread among our friends as well as among our enemies.

Blot on Canada's Prestige.

"The United States senate was told that between 15,000 and 18,000 Canadian troops had thrown their rifles overboard. Denials, however prompt, could not erase the blot on Canada's prestige which till then, thanks to her war effort, was at the highest in her history.

"The damage was irreparable. The unvarnished truth of the insignificant incident that lay behind the Bracken charge was there for all to read. It should have been the occasion for regret by any man in public life that, however honest his mistake, he had harmed the reputation of his country and her armed forces. Instead of regret, there has come from John Bracken a repetition of his charge, with a consequent tarnish applied to Canada's honor."

BRITAIN URGED TO RETAIN TWO ITALIAN BASES

LONDON, March 7 [Reuters].—Frederick Cundiff, Conservative, said in commons today that Britain must have another naval and air base in the Mediterranean zone to stop Malta "being let down as she was in the early part of this war."

He declared that if it was found necessary for this purpose to take territory off Italy, this should be done. If strips of territory around Tripoli and Bengasi were necessary for Britain's protection, they should be taken, he added. "We have fought this war for ourselves and not for the preservation of Italy's colonies," he asserted.

Comdr. Thomas Galbraith urged the maintenance of the present independent naval forces of the British dominions and India. He suggested they be equipped with types of ships to produce a balanced whole with the British navy.

CHINESE TROOPS WIN MAIN BURMA ROAD TERMINUS

American Trained Forces Capture Old Lashio.

CALCUTTA, India, March 7 (AP).—American trained Chinese 1st army troops under Lt. Gen. Sultan have captured the city of Old Lashio, main terminus of the Burma road, and are only two miles from the city of New Lashio, reports reaching here today said.

[A Chungking dispatch announced that New Lashio also had fallen.]

Front line reports said Japanese resistance before Lashio had thinned out considerably as British pressure on Mandalay, 140 miles to the southwest, increased with the capture of Meiktila.

Close on Mandalay.

A bulletin from southeast Asia command headquarters at Kandy said the British pincers were closing in on Mandalay and that troops and armor were only 22 miles from the city on one side and 14 miles on the other.

The American trained Chinese troops stormed into Old Lashio with tank support from the north as the climax to two and a half years of fighting thru the mountains and jungles of North Burma.

Late yesterday afternoon Chinese armored forces under Col. Rothwell Brown, of Miami, Fla., forced their way across the Namyao river and early this morning blasted their way into Old Lashio.

Stilwell Began Campaign.

The Chinese campaign for Lashio was started by Gen. Stilwell and the troops fought over 530 miles from Ledo. The Chinese forces were under the direct command of Lt. Gen. Sunn Li-Jen, a graduate of Purdue and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Elsewhere on the Burma front the official bulletin reported the capture of Japanese positions southwest of Myingyan and said enemy resistance in the Chauk area, 36 miles southwest of the Pakokku bridgehead, was increasing.

YANKS SMASH TO SOUTH END OF LUZON ISLE

Iwo, but the Japanese still showed no signs of cracking on the 18th day of the invasion.

All three marine divisions, on the second day of a renewed offensive to end the bloody operation, registered gains but they were spotty and officers were not inclined to regard them as significant.

The biggest gains were registered on the left side by Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey's 5th division and Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine's division in the center, where the Americans are getting into position to cut the Nipponese garrison in two.

Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Cates' 4th division scored gains up to 200 yards on the right.

Enemy Resistance Heavy.

The progress was stepped up over that of Tuesday, when the all-out offensive to crush the last Japanese organized resistance was opened.

Enemy resistance continued heavy in the less than one-third of northern Iwo still in enemy hands, Adm. Nimitz announced. The resistance was with "small arms and machine gun fire." There was no reference to mortar and artillery opposition.

The rolling barrage which launched Tuesday's attack was the most intense ever put down by the marines in such a restricted area, a dispatch from the expeditionary force flagship said. Big guns of the three marine divisions, corps units, carrier planes, and naval batteries participated for 62 minutes.

Yanks Use Flame Throwers.

The rugged terrain and a slice of the northeast shoreline still held by the enemy prevented general use of American tanks. Employing flame throwers to sear out the Nipponese from their pillboxes, the marines pushed forward slowly against enemy fire that sometimes came from several directions with preregistered aim.

A boost to morale all along the American front was the sight of army fighter planes flying in support from Iwo's southern air field.

Stevedores Delay Vote; London Docks Still Idle

LONDON, March 7 (AP).—Hopes for the resumption by tomorrow of the movement of war materials now jammed on London docks were dashed tonight when stevedores failed to reach a decision at a meeting. Other striking dockworkers—approximately 10,000 are out—said they were ready to return if the stevedores did. The stevedores plan to meet again tomorrow. The strike began a week ago.

SHELL UNEARTHS FORTUNE IN COIN BURIED BY JAPS

WITH THE U. S. 33D DIVISION, Philippines [Delayed]—(AP).—A $500,000 treasure in silver coins, apparently buried by the Japanese after looting Philippine banks, was uncovered by an exploding artillery shell north of Rosario.

It was discovered by an army scout, Pvt. 1st Class Lewis Zerillo, Astoria, Long Island, N. Y., who said: "There I stood, knee deep in money."

Ten Filipinos worked two days collecting the coins and shoveling them into trucks. The heat of the artillery blast had fused some of the coins into chunks the size of a man's head.

Lt. Bernard Donahoe, Dowagiac, Mich., supervised the collection and removal to the finance officer at first corps headquarters.

[This was the second reported recovery of loot buried by the Japanese and uncovered by American artillery shell fire. Another large sum was found in the 25th infantry division's area north of Rizal.]

BRITAIN'S FLEET TO FIGHT JAPS, COMMONS TOLD

LONDON, March 7 (AP).—Britain is determined to range her navy alongside United States naval forces in the Pacific to play "a full and worthy part in the speedy overthrow of the Japanese empire," A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, said in the house of commons today.

He said that this would be done in spite of a renewed threat of a German U-boat offensive that might require strong British naval action in Atlantic waters.

His declaration came as London naval circles denied reports that British war vessels were likely to prove a minor factor in Pacific naval operations. Without referring to the reports, Alexander told commons that "we have been steadily massing forces for the far east, with the great fleet train of supply, accommodation, repair, and amenity ships which they will require to sustain them."

Big Warships Ready.

"Operations already conducted," he said, "are but the beginning of the tasks of the British Pacific fleet and the East Indies fleet, which will continue to be reinforced and supplied so that they may play an ever growing part in the defeat of Japan."

Asserting that "experiences gained in supporting landings [in the European theater] will stand us in good stead in our united operations against Japan," Alexander stated: "A large share of the task of defeating Japan will fall upon the men of the royal and merchant navies."

Alexander mentioned the powerful battleships Queen Elizabeth and Valiant and the battle cruiser Renown as being "among other vessels" ready for action in the far east.

Naval men countered reports that the British fleet was likely to prove an impotent factor in the Pacific because of lack of speed with the assertion that the royal navy has both battleships and carriers in those waters capable of matching American warships.

Expects New Type U-Boats.

Regarding the threat in the Atlantic, Alexander said the Germans were "making great efforts to renew U-boat warfare on a big scale," which he contended shows that they still consider it to be their "best hope of averting defeat against a nation which lives by sea borne supplies."

These efforts, he cautioned, probably will result in the appearance of new types of German submarines. And with improved equipment, he said, "we may be sure they will develop new tactics."

Meanwhile, Alexander declared, the number of U-boats being sunk "continues to increase satisfactorily."

FIND JAPANESE KILLED 2,500 CIVILIANS IN MANILA WALLED CITY

New York, March 7 (AP).—The New York Herald Tribune said tonight in a copyrighted story from Manila that documentary evidence has disclosed that 2,500 civilians were bayoneted or burned alive in the old walled city of Intramuros between Feb. 7 and 13

The newspaper said that witnesses kept a record of the killings in Fort Santiago, where most of the butchery occurred. Excerpts follow:

"Feb. 7—150 guerrillas were disposed of today. I saw one Japanese stab 10 to death.

"Feb. 8—A fresh batch of 1,164 guerrillas were brought in today and placed under guard.

"Feb. 9—They burned 1,000 guerrillas to death tonight.

"Feb. 10—1,000 more guerrillas were put under guard.

"Feb. 13—An American tank came near Jones' bridge [near the northeast corner of Intramuros] and 10 guerrillas who tried to escape were stabbed. At 4 p. m., all the remaining guerrillas were locked up and burned."

First WAC Contingent Arrives in Manila

MANILA, P. I., March 7 (AP).—The first WACs have reached Luzon. They were assigned to headquarters, United States armed forces in the far east. The contingent, led by Capt. Maude Dillistin of Bridgeport, Conn., included six officers and 37 enlisted women. They were taken on a tour of Manila. Another group of 107 will arrive in the next few days.

MAIL FROM HOME BRINGS SADNESS TO 2 TARS AT SEA

Learn Their Brothers Die on Western Front.

BY HAROLD SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH A FAST CARRIER FORCE, March 1 [Delayed]—[Via Navy radio].—Mail from home, eagerly awaited by everyone out here, has borne tragedy for two enlisted men of this fast carrier's crew. They are Seaman 1st Class William J. Mack Jr., 22, of 3930 Redbud av., Cincinnati, O., and Gunner's Mate 3d Class James A. Joyce, 19, Winsted, Conn. Both learned recently that their brothers were killed in action in Belgium early last January.

Tho the two soldiers were unknown to this ship's hundreds of men and officers all feel a sense of loss, for this is a happy ship and the family feeling is strong. The skipper himself, father of four handsome children, told me sympathetically of both cases.

Chaplain Is Chicagoan.

The Catholic chaplain, Lt. Michael J. Conway, former assistant pastor of St. Ita and Visitation parishes in Chicago, praised the fortitude of both his boys in their bereavement. He calls them his boys, tho Joyce is not a Catholic.

Mack got his news only yesterday in letters from his mother, Mrs. Henry Segal, with whom he lived, and his father. The letters told that Pvt. Leon M. Mack, 20, former combat engineer, gave his life while fighting with the armored infantry Jan. 2.

"It's a staggering blow but it was God's will," William said. "Leon and I were very close. He was an honor student at Hughes High school and was intelligent and sensitive. When I enlisted in June, 1942, I was attending the University of Pennsylvania and he was at Massachusetts Tech, but we saw each other every two or three weeks. He enlisted a year later."

Big Brother His Hero.

Joyce, who helps run an anti-aircraft gun, learned last Feb. 9, his birthday, that his only brother, William Jr., 23, an infantry sergeant, had fallen on the western front Jan. 12.

"Bill wanted to get across," James said. "He was on final leave when I last saw him at home in November, 1943. He was my big brother and my hero and it just never occurred to me that he could die even after I heard he was wounded in action last December.

Chaplain Conway, who was ordained in April, 1930, also has a brother in service, Daniel, a navy ensign now en route out this way. Their parents are Daniel and Bridget Conway, 6625 S. Peoria st., Chicago.

HEART ATTACK IS FATAL.

John Atsel, 58, of 143 S. Western av., died in his room yesterday, apparently, police said, of a heart attack.

BUROCRATS CUT SUGAR SUPPLY, GROWERS SAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—Dudley Smith, representing Puerto Rico sugar producers, charged today consumers in the United States have been deprived of about 1 billion 500 million pounds of sugar from Puerto Rico "largely as a result of inconsistent policies" adopted by the OPA and the Commodity Credit corporation.

Smith, testifying before the house committee on insular affairs, asserted that a current strike of sugar workers that has forced a complete shutdown of the industry in Puerto Rico is largely the result of the failure of the OPA and the CCC to compensate growers for war time production cost increases.

The strike was called by labor unions after the growers said they were unable to meet demands for increased wages because of insufficient incentive payments allowed by the CCC.

Smith charged that the strike is now further reducing the United States sugar supply by 15 million pounds a week in addition to the 1 billion 500 million pounds already lost since price regulations were instituted.

AMERICAS LAY WELCOME MAT FOR ARGENTINA

Bid May Stir Trouble in Buenos Aires.

MEXICO CITY, March 7 (AP).—Foreign ministers of 20 American republics, meeting in secret session tonight, approved a declaration inviting Argentina to join the new hemisphere system and the allied nations. Their action may touch off a bombshell in Buenos Aires.

The declaration on Argentina, which officials expect will receive unanimous approval by the inter-American conference, warmly invites that country to move into the new continental system and the allied nations under her own steam.

It is scheduled to be taken up by the steering committee tomorrow morning and acted upon in the final plenary session tomorrow afternoon.

Argentina Tells Stand.

Word that the document was coming out has already produced a reaction in Argentina. Acting Foreign Minister Cesar Ameghino said he has decided to reaffirm his country's "respect for the personalty, sovereignty, independence, and territorial integrity of all other American nations."

The statement stirred mixed feelings here. Since the declaration on Argentina implies that Buenos Aires go to war, some officials saw Ameghino's remark as a move to avoid a declaration of war.

Strip Economic Charter.

The United States' proposed "economic charter of the Americas," stripped of its free trade and tariff reduction clauses upon the insistence of the Latin American delegates, was approved today by a fourth committee after days of heated debate.

The charter now recommends that the various governments take steps to raise the living standard, that trade discriminations be eliminated, and steps be taken to remove trade barriers of all kinds as well as cartels and excessive economic nationalism. It also recommends establishment of an international monetary fund for stabilizing currencies.

The clause asking that governments not intervene in industry and commerce was changed after Bolivia, Chile, Uruguay, Venezuela, and Paraguay reiterated their stand reserving for their governments the right to intervene when national interest so demands.

51,000 CIVILIANS TAKE UP PRIVATE FLYING IN 1944

Doctors, Priests Are Among Novices.

BY FRANK STURDY.

Widespread interest in private flying thruout the country is reported by the civil aeronautics administration, an early indication of the great increase in flying expected after the war.

The CAA reported yesterday that 51,000 student pilot certificates were issued in 1944. In 1943, fewer than 35,000 were issued to flying students, aside from those enrolled in the official war training service program which gave primary training to student army and navy pilots.

Civilians Over 30 Flying.

CAA field inspectors in a national survey reported that youths of 16 to 21 years intending to use their civilian flying experience later in the army or navy and men over 30 planning to use their own planes in business travel predominate among the civilian students.

Women represent 15 to 35 per cent of pilots in training, the CAA estimated. Many are war workers, able for the first time to finance flight training. Others have become interested in aviation because members of their families are in the air forces.

Country doctors and priests are turning to airplanes as a means of serving larger areas, the CAA found. Some enterprising flight training operators have increased their business by sending the airplane to the student, instead of having the student come to the airplane. An instructor and plane go to towns of 500 to 1,000 population where the pilot trains five or 10 students, then returns to his base.

New Fields Spring Up.

Often such students, upon qualifying for private licenses, buy light planes so they can fly to and from larger cities. In the Fort Worth [Texas] region, there were 195 official landing areas on Jan. 1, 1944, and 251 on Jan. 1, 1945. Most of the new fields were in small towns previously without flight facilities.

The closing of the war training service program made available a sufficient number of instructors over military age for teaching civilians, but operators of flight schools have difficulty in getting enough qualified airplane mechanics.

No civilian planes have been manufactured since the start of the war. Private flying and most of the WTS program have been carried on in pre-war planes.

Have Delegation Majority.

The American delegation to the San Francisco conference will represent the internationalist viewpoint overwhelmingly. Secretary of State Stettinius, Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], Rep. Bloom [D., N. Y.], Rep. Eaton [R., N. J.], Comdr. Harold Stassen, and Miss Virginia Gildersleeve are confirmed internationalists. Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] is classed as nationalist who believes in international coöperation. Former Secretary of State Hull, whom the President named as adviser to the delegation, may not go to San Francisco, it is learned, because of the condition of his health.

U. S. Has but 1 Vote.

Altho the United States will have eight delegates, it will have only one vote. The United Kingdom, the British dominions, and India will have one vote each. All other nations, including soviet Russia, will have one vote each.

The Foreign Policy association, which represents the internationalist viewpoint, views the act of Chapultepec, adopted by the inter-American conference at Mexico City, as a welcome successor to the Monroe Doctrine, because the act makes all American republics responsible for the safety of the western hemisphere, but the act also is "a strangely contradictory instrument for a sponsor of the Dumbarton Oaks security program to support."

"It is possible," said the association, "that the American republics might decide that a threat to hemisphere peace exists while the security council of the united nations, under the world organization charter which is to be drawn at San Francisco, would decide that it did not exist. Or if the American republics voted for action and the united nations security council opposed action, would the Americas bow to the greater body's decision? The problem could become acute with respect to Argentina, a country about the meaning of whose policy the United States and Great Britain differ."

The association added that the act of Chapultepec "apparently supersedes the Monroe Doctrine" and pointed out that in the Monroe Doctrine the United States undertook to safeguard the new world; in Chapultepec the American republics together undertake to safeguard it." The association asked whether the new policy would encourage Russia and Great Britain "to renew their interest in spheres of influence of their own."

STASSEN URGES U. S. YIELD SOME OF SOVEREIGNTY

Wants Resources Used to Help the World.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 7 [Special].—Comdr. Harold Stassen said in a speech here tonight that we should delegate a portion of our national sovereignty to a world state and use the productive capacities and resources of America for advancement of all the peoples of the world.

The former Minnesota governor, who has accepted President Roosevelt's bid to be a delegate to the April San Francisco allied nations conference, spoke at a public meeting at the University of Minnesota and his talk was broadcast nationally. He said this was his first and probably only public discussion of peace plans prior to the conference.

Stassen is in Minnesota on a 30 day leave from his navy duties. He resigned from the governorship to enter the navy two years ago and has been on duty in the Pacific as an aide to Adm. Halsey. Since his appointment as a conference delegate he has been referred to as President Roosevelt's choice for leadership of the Republican party, succeeding the late Wendell Willkie as the fair haired boy of the opposition.

Offers Seven Point Program.

Stassen described the coming conference as "a golden opportunity to win a beachhead in the battle for a just and lasting peace," and advanced what he called a seven point program to achieve this objective.

Surrender of some of our national sovereignty was one of his "cardinal points." He warned against "the extreme view" of national sovereignty, asserting that neither this nation nor any other nation can be a law unto itself in the modern world.

"In its place we must develop the new principle of the rights, duties, and responsibilities of each nation to the other nations," he said.

"This is one world," Stassen declared. Recalling that this phrase had been used by the late Wendell Willkie as the title for a book, Stassen said that Willkie was "more than a symbol, the veritable keystone to a living cause and hope for mankind."

With regard to use of the nation's resources to raise the standards of living of the people of the world, Stassen said it would be better that American capital be invested and reinvested in various countries than that it be sterile and stagnant in America. American capital abroad will indirectly develop jobs in America, he said.

Wants World Unity.

"This will require increased investments by American capital in the resources and facilities of other nations, and increased trade with lower tariffs thruout the world," he explained. "We must explode the narrow view that if we develop production in other parts of the world we will preempt our own markets. We will create markets as we develop means to produce."

As his initial point, Stassen proposed we join with our allies "to build a definite and continuing organization of the united nations of the world, based on justice and law, and insured by force."

Other points listed by Stassen were:

That we are citizens of the world and our happiness and welfare is tied up with that of all other peoples.

That we recognize freedom of information is vital to the peace and progress of the world.

That we are and propose to remain a democracy with an economic system of private capital and individual enterprise.

That aggressors in this war shall be stripped of all means to make war and remain stripped, with the United States remaining strong on land, sea, and air, and joining with Russia, Great Britain, China, France, and other allied nations in furnishing police power to the world.

U. S. JURY PROBE IS PROMISED IN NAVY LAND DEALS

Federal Judge John P. Barnes said yesterday he would order a grand jury investigation of the government's procedure prior to the acquisition of 685.2 acres of land in Lake county, now a part of the Great Lakes Naval Training center. The government acquired the land almost three years ago.

The statement was made shortly after Judge Barnes had denied a motion by Assistant United States Atty. Clarence W. Beatty Jr. for a court order to enter financial judgments for two parcels of land, totaling approximately three-quarters of an acre, the last parcels of the total acreage for which the government has not made settlements.

"Word has reached me that prior to condemning the land, government agents arranged with real estate dealers on the north shore to obtain a low valuation of this property," Judge Barnes said. "I want to find out if there has been collusion on the part of the government in this matter."

Proceeds of Benefit

John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, yesterday presented a check for $5,000 to the Red Cross war fund. The donation was the proceeds from the recent "Radio Follies" conducted by the federation's radio station WCFL. Martin H. Kennelly, chairman of the Red Cross drive, accepted the contribution at the CFL headquarters at 666 Lake Shore dr.

Henry F. Tenney, chairman of the Chicago Red Cross chapter, yesterday reported that 238,473 pints of blood have been collected and that the production department had prepared 28,117,735 surgical dressings, garments, and kits.

"It is estimated that it costs the United States $10,500,000 an hour to wage war," Tenney stated, "and the American Red Cross is spending $22,700 an hour to repair the ravages of war."

PARLEY ON VET READJUSTMENT TO OPEN TODAY

Col. William J. Bleckwenn, consultant in neuropsychiatry to the army sixth service command, will speak on "He Takes Off His Uniform," at the opening session of a two day institute on "Readjusting with the Returning Service Man" which convenes today in the Knickerbocker hotel.

Some 300 clergymen, educators, social workers, and medical representatives from the army, navy, and industry are expected to attend the gathering under auspices of the Illinois Society for Mental Hygiene.

Dr. Rudolph G. Novick, medical director of the latter organization, said the conference will devote itself to a study of ways and means by which the community can aid the veteran in the emotional adjustments he will be called upon to make in returning to civilian life.

McGEOGHEGAN IS CLEARED OF BANK ROBBERY

Daniel McGeoghegan, 49, was found not guilty yesterday by a jury of eight women and four men in the Criminal court of Judge John Prystalski on a charge of robbing the State Bank of Clearing of $60,569 in 1930.

Daniel McGeoghegan.

Two officials of the bank identified the defendant as the robber, but McGeoghegan, questioned by his attorneys, James M. Burke and George M. Crane, testified that he had been attending a funeral at the time of the robbery.

Members of the jury refused to comment on their discussions during the 40 minutes they required to reach a verdict, except to say that identification of McGeoghegan by state's witnesses was not sufficiently conclusive to justify conviction.

In his closing argument, Burke pointed out to the jury that there were more than 20 witnesses to the robbery but the state was unable to produce more than two of them. McGeoghegan recently was released from the Indiana state prison at Michigan City after serving a 13 year term for bank robbery in that state.

MAYOR RALLIES C. A. C. TO CITY'S POST-WAR AIMS

Chicago's master plan for post-war public improvements is well advanced and will be carried to completion in the spirit of coöperation, members of the Chicago Association of Commerce were told by Mayor Kelly yesterday at a luncheon in the Palmer House. Among the 600 present were representatives of several community and civic organizations.

"The expenditures for this plan run to 947 million dollars," the mayor said. "Of course, we do not have all that money, and we don't want to saddle any more costs on real estate taxpayers."

Instead the mayor indicated that much of the financing might be done thru federal grants and loans. If such funds become available, he said, "Chicago has its foot in the door if anybody has."

Preceding the mayor on the program was H. Evert Kincaid, executive director of the city plan commission, who dealt in more detail with the body's work. Kincaid said the master plan, always subject to revision, had 324 projects.

A. H. Mellinger, telephone executive and chairman of the meeting, spoke briefly and praised the coöperation that other units, federal and private, had given.

'CON CON' PLAN REACHES HOUSE; PREDICT DEFEAT

Soderstrom Tells Peril of War Hysteria.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 7.—A proposal to rewrite the Illinois constitution was introduced in the legislature today, and Reuben G. Soderstrom, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, predicted it would be smothered by well-founded opposition.

Homer B. Harris [R., Lincoln], majority leader, dropped the resolution into the house hopper. If the resolution receives two-thirds majorities in both house and senate, the question of calling a constitutional convention will be submitted to voters at the 1946 general election. The resolution was referred to the house executive committee.

Rep. Franklin Stransky [R., Savanna], chairman of the executive committee, said the committee has a full docket but that he would try to oblige the sponsor as to a hearing date. Harris said he had no date in mind because of the urgency of the Chicago metropolitan area traction bills.

"Regular Place," Says Green.

Gov. Green was asked at a press conference when hearings will be started on the so-called "con con" proposal—short for constitutional convention.

"I suppose it will take its regular place in line with the rest of the resolutions," he said.

Green and Mayor Kelly, No. 1 leaders of the Republican and Democratic parties, are espousing "con con," but both have pledged that their patronage powers will not be used to force the measure thru.

"I predict that con con will be smothered by the strong and reasoned opposition which has formed against it," Soderstrom said in an interview.

"Not only labor is against it, but the Illinois Manufacturers' association, the Illinois Agricultural association, and the Illinois Bankers' association."

Favors Waiting Until Peace.

Soderstrom said there would be the utmost peril in holding a constitutional convention until war hysteria has been replaced by the calm of peace. Five years after the war should elapse before the proposal is raised again, he said.

"We are in a war of survival against Hitler and the Japs," he said. "The war actually is between a system of government based upon our federal and state constitutions and systems which shun constitutions protective of the people's right at all times. To go tinkering with our constitution now is crazy.

Soderstrom Predicts "Mess."

"I'll bet a hat there would be 1,500 proposals at a constitutional convention held soon. The result would be such a mess that even the leaders of the convention would denounce the new document, as happened after the convention following the World war."

Soderstrom said minorities had better wake up and guard the protection they have now. In the new Missouri constitution adopted last week, whites and Negroes are forbidden to attend the same schools, he said, and in several instances the word "free-holders" is used instead of "citizens." He said the latter change means a loss of some rights for persons who are not property owners.

"About the best thing done in Missouri was to pick up many provisions of the Illinois constitution," he declared. "Is that a reason to change ours? The age of the 1870 constitution is no reason to change it, either. Who wants to change the United States Constitution of 1787, the Ten Commandments, or the Lord's Prayer?"

Favors Amendment Plan.

Soderstrom said he is telling proponents of "con con" that labor would help them in making the constitution more easily amendable. He favors the gateway amendment permitting three amendments instead of one to be instituted at an election.

Most proposed amendments have been defeated because of the requirement that they receive a majority of all votes cast at an election, instead of a majority of votes cast on the proposition. Soderstrom would try to get around the handicap of general indifference by requiring voters to take a small ballot on constitutional matters into the voting booth and mark it before receiving the regular ballot of candidates.

The Harris "con-con" resolution is brief, stripped of the verbiage usually employed to argue in behalf of the proposal. This form was decided upon at a conference in the governor's mansion.

ILLINOIS SENATE PASSES BILL TO UP SCHOOL TAXES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 7.—With only two dissenting votes, the senate today passed a bill to permit, with voters' approval, increased property taxes for school educational purposes outside of Chicago. Sen. Paddock [R., Round Lake] was sponsor of the measure.

The bill provides that school boards may submit to referendum a tax of 2¼ per cent, if they have already authorized the levy of a tax of 1 4/5 per cent.

Paddock said the bill will be held in the house of representatives pending study of bills to change the tax assessment system, which might alter the situation affected by his legislation.

Switch Causes Confusion.

Gov. Green said today he expects the assessment bills to be introduced next week. A report on the matter will be issued tomorrow by a commission headed by Sen. Walker Butler [R., Chicago]. Confusion arose when Assessor John S. Clark of Cook county switched from assessments based upon 37 per cent valuation to assessments upon 100 per cent valuation.

Bills were introduced in the house today to permit local governments to receive state relief funds if they impose relief taxes of 3 mills on the dollar of property valuation, based upon the tax year 1942—rather than later tax years. Sponsors said this change is necessary because of Assessor Clark's action. Otherwise the local relief tax would be 2.7 times as large as the old one.

Permits Adoption Appeals.

Rep. Edwards [D., Danville] introduced bills to permit appeals from court adoption orders to Appellate courts. There is now no provision for appeals in these cases.

To represent the public interests in divorce and separate maintenance suits in Cook county, Sen. Schwartz [D., Chicago] proposed that a proctor and six assistant proctors be appointed with power to investigate cases referred to them by the Circuit and Superior courts and to present evidence and cross-examine witnesses. Air lines were included in the jurisdiction of the commission headed by Sen. Libonati [D., Chicago] which is investigating charges that a black market exists in the sale of railroad and Pullman reservations.

STEAK FEAST GREETS ARMY NURSE, HOME FROM INTERNMENT

Lt. Alice Powers.

Lt. Alice Hahn Powers, army nurse, sat in the home of her sister, Mrs. Cornelius Moynihan, 6328 N. Fairfield av., yesterday, and ate the steak, baked potatoes, and mince pie she dreamed about for two and a half years in Santo Tomas internment camp at Manila.

Her diet at the camp consisted of rice and weak vegetable soup, augmented by vegetables grown in the camp garden. Lt. Powers arrived in Chicago yesterday aboard a United Air Lines plane and will be welcomed officially Saturday at the premier of "Winged Victory" at the Roosevelt theater, for the benefit of army charities.

Lt. Powers' husband, Edward Powers, employe of Pan American Airways, Inc., whom she married Feb. 11, the day before she left Manila, is still in the Philippines.

Another nurse recently liberated from Santo Tomas, Lt. Eunice Young, paid a brief visit to Chicago yesterday en route to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Young of Arksport, N. Y. Both Lt. Powers and Lt. Young were taken prisoner when Corregidor fell.

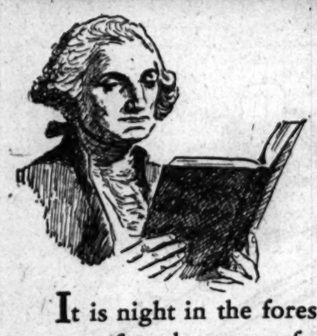
In 1748 that part of Virginia west of the Blue Ridge was still unexplored wilderness. At the age of 16, George Washington was commissioned to survey it. This he did with brilliant success, living for weeks on the country with little or no equipment other than his gun, his surveying instruments, and his books.



The others SLEPT... the future President READ

It is night in the forest. Around the campfire the men of the surveying party talk and laugh or sleep. But close to the leaping flames their 16-year-old leader sits a little apart, reading the history of England . . .

When George Washington was 11, his father died. His mother assumed the task of bringing up a family of ten children.

Every day, Mary Washington read to them aloud from standard works. Much of the extraordinary balance and strength of young George's character is traceable to the influence of this reading.

At school, too, George was strongly influenced by a manual of conduct adapted from an old French book. George himself read avidly, and his eager mind profited always from what he read.

He matured rapidly. As a boy among boys; he was the acknowledged leader. At 16 he was commissioned to survey the wilderness beyond the Blue Ridge. At 18 he was a major in the militia.

All through his life he read . . . to prepare himself for whatever task he undertook. Even when he had reached the pinnacle, as President, he turned to reading for knowledge and inspiration. Speaking of his first inauguration, one recent history says:

"He had based his scientific plantation management on knowledge acquired in part by reading books on agriculture in his own large collection. Now he also looked for such guidance in his public work."

Reading Is Open to All

To George Washington, as to a great majority of the leaders in the founding of the American Republic, the habit of reading was a rich source of those ideas and principles which helped shape the nation.

For reading is, in many ways, the most rewarding of human experiences. When you read you set your own pace . . . stop and start when you please . . . go back and read again.

Only through the unhurried eye of the reader can ideas be absorbed so completely.

The American Weekly is filled with reading as richly varied as life itself, written so simply and interestingly that anyone can understand . . . an absorbing story of human struggle and achievement . . . love . . . heartbreak and laughter . . . the wonders of science . . . the hopeful advances of medicine . . . the power and beauty of literature, art, religion.

The American Weekly, distributed through a group of great Sunday newspapers, brings the priceless boon of good reading regularly into more than 8,000,000 homes from coast to coast.

The manufacturer who associates his product or his company's name with such an influence is tying in with the most powerful known force in advertising.

FIGHT INDICATED AS HOUSE GETS REMAPPING BILL

Opposition by Downstate G.O.P. Expected.

BY ROBERT HOWARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 7.—The Green administration's bill to divide the 26 Illinois congressmen equally between Cook county and downstate was introduced in the house of representatives today, but veteran legislators were slow about predicting its passage.

Rep. Clabaugh [R., Champaign], chairman of the house committee on reapportionment, said he was "open minded" about the new congressional redistricting plan, which was submitted by Rep. Virkus [R., La Grange].

Several downstate Republicans, who would lose two congressional seats and have most of the remaining districts realigned in any reapportionment, indicated they would resist administration pressure. One member of Clabaugh's committee said he has promised to await three hearings on the bill before moving to send the Virkus bill to an unfriendly subcommittee to be bottled up for the duration of the legislative session.

Democrats to Delay Stand.

Sen. Daley [D., Chicago], spokesman for Mayor Kelly and a leading advocate of reapportionment, said the Democrats will not comment until they study the Virkus maps, which create new districts in the normally Republican suburban areas of Cook county. Some Republicans believe they might gain four or five suburban congressional districts to compensate for two given up downstate.

Word has spread that Gov. Green wants the Republican legislators to support congressional redistricting. Illinois' congressional and senatorial districts have not been reapportioned since 1901, despite constitutional requirements for adjustments every 10 years for population changes.

Downstate counties now have 15 of the 25 congressional districts and reapportionment would eliminate the present seat as congressman at large.

Capitol Delegation Expected.

Virkus said hearings would not be asked until he arranges for groups to appear for his bill. A delegation from Washington is expected to be sent to the hearings by congressmen, who do not relish the idea of campaigning in new territory.

The Virkus plan would have the 13 downstate districts range from 278,567 to 316,248 in population, based on the 1940 census. Cook county's 13 districts would vary in population from 287,059 to 326,815.

St. Clair and Madison counties, heavily urban, would be a single district and conceded to the Democrats by the Virkus bill.

Prominent Republicans said further changes would be necessary to give proper recognition to Congresswoman Sumner [R., Milford], one of the most prominent figures in Washington. She represents the historic Uncle Joe Cannon district. As originally drafted, the reapportionment would have eliminated her district. The current scheme would take Kankakee county from her district and add to it Douglas, Coles, Crawford, Jasper, and Effingham counties, making a gerrymandered district extending to the gateway of Little Egypt.

Strong sentiment existed in Springfield that the drive for reapportionment should not mangle existing districts to the extent that it would jeopardize the careers of such defenders of Americanism as Miss Sumner.

Approves Home District.

Clabaugh expressed approval over his home district, even tho it would mean that his new congressman, Rep. McMillen of Decatur, would be placed in a primary fight against Rep. Arends of Melvin. In two other cases, two Republicans would be in the same district, altho Rep. Heidinger of Fairfield is not expected to run again, which would leave Rep. Vursell of Salem with a clear field. Rep. Chiperfield of Canton and Rep. Johnson of Macomb would be in the same district.

Rep. Church of Evanston, the only metropolitan Republican, would have the northern part of Cook county for his new district. Lake, McHenry, and Kane counties would be a new district without an incumbent congressman within its borders.

The nine Democrats from Cook county districts would have individual districts, but the solidly Democratic territory immediately around the Chicago loop, where population centered in 1901, would lose its importance under new districts designed to recognize the population shifts toward and beyond the city limits. As a result, the Republicans would have a chance to carry additional Cook county districts.

Proposed Downstate Districts.

GREEN TO ASK BUDGET BOOST OF 81 MILLIONS

Springfield, Ill., March 7.—Gov. Green today indicated at a press conference that the biennial state budget to be submitted to the legislature in two or three weeks would call for total appropriations of approximately 601 million dollars. For the current two-year period, appropriations were more than 520 million dollars, or about 81 million dollars less. The proposed budget sets an all-time record.

Pay raises of 15 per cent will be provided for all state employes getting less than $250 a month, while those over that figure will get 10 per cent extra, under a final decision reached by the governor and the state budgetary commission after a lengthy conference last night. County department directors will have their pay increased from $6,000 to $8,000 a year. Part of the raise would restore the salary cut made in 1933.

State distributive aid to schools was limited to an increase of 9 million dollars a biennium instead of the 10 millions originally requested, but an additional $400,000 will be paid by the state to provide each county superintendent of schools with a supervisory assistant.

Officials of school organizations said state school aid is now approximately 38 million dollars a biennium. The amount of the increase to be given was one of the last budgetary decisions reached, they said today.

Richard Yates Rowe, secretary of the budgetary commission, said that at least two weeks would be needed for printing and other preliminaries in getting the biennial analysis of state finances ready for submission to the assembly.

Sen. Peters [R., St. Joseph] was elected chairman of the budgetary commission, an honor which also had been sought by Sen. Downing [R., Macomb], appropriations chairman.

PREDICT FEWER CIGARS AT LOW, MEDIUM PRICES

There will be fewer low and medium priced cigars of well known brands on the market despite recent office of price administration attempts to remedy the shortage with price increases and roll backs, cigar manufacturers asserted yesterday.

The increased demand for cigars of any quality has resulted in "war baby" plants springing up in garages and attics, stealing labor from regular cigar plants by offering higher wages, it was said by Joseph F. Hornstein, member of the Jose Arango & Co., cigar manufacturers, 19 S. Wells st.

Other reasons for the shortage are lack of effective enforcement of OPA regulations, lack of new cigar machines, and high costs of raw materials, other cigar makers said.

FALL DEATH HELD ACCIDENTAL.

Joseph Gordon, 60, of 5240 Sheridan rd., was killed accidentally early yesterday in an attempt to lower himself by a sheet from his room on the third floor of the Edgewater hospital, 5700 N. Ashland av., a coroner's jury found at the inquest.

MISSOURI HOUSE DELAYS ACTION ON SUPER-STATE

Jefferson City, Mo., March 7 [Special].—Action by the Missouri house on a resolution proposing to set up a super-state in which America would surrender its sovereignty was postponed today.

It had been expected to go to a vote this afternoon but was put over until next week to await the return of Speaker Howard Elliott from Washington, D. C. Elliott is expected to speak in favor of the resolution. Led by Roy Hamlin of Hannibal, Democratic minority floor leader, opponents of the super-state resolution are preparing for a floor fight.

The resolution proposes reducing the army, the navy, and the air forces to a constabulary.

ALLOTMENT CHECKS TAKEN.

Mrs. Betty Schmaleeck of 2807 N. Leavitt st., reported yesterday to police that her purse, containing two allotment checks amounting to $100 and two endorsed money orders totaling $45, was stolen from a baby buggy outside a store at Lincoln and Ashland avs.

APPLE TANSY

Whites of 6 eggs
Yolks of 3 eggs
2 tablespoons rosewater
Juice of ½ lemon
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon grated nutmeg
2 tablespoons sugar
6 apples
2 tablespoons butter

Beat eggs well. Add rosewater, lemon juice, sugar, salt and nutmeg. Peel and core four apples and cut in fine pieces. Add to first mixture. Peel remaining two apples, cut crosswise in thin slices, and fry in butter until brown. Set in a place to keep warm. Now melt butter in skillet, and put in apple and egg mixture (it should be fairly thick). With a silver spoon pat it down to form a round cake. Let it cook slowly until brown on one side; then turn and brown on other side. (You may have to add a little more butter). Turn onto warm platter and place the fried apple circles on top. Sprinkle with sugar and a little rosewater. Serve hot.

American soldiers are fighting in the muck and mire of freezing fox holes. They know they have a job to do . . . they are doing it despite great peril and incredible hardships.

We here at home know that we have a job, too. We must keep our fighting men supplied with an abundance of everything they need — and bituminous coal is necessary in the manufacture of almost everything they are using in winning the war.

Bituminous coal is vital in the processing of steel. The four most important basic war chemicals, phenol, toluene, ammonia, naphthalene are made from bituminous coal. It is used in the manufacture of high explosives such as TNT, picric acid and tetryl. The sulfa drugs that have saved countless American lives and many of our anesthetics come from bituminous coal. These are some of the vital reasons why we are asked to use coal more carefully this winter. With these facts in mind, what true American can squawk about keeping the fire a little lower in the furnace this winter?

Wartime demands are an extra burden on your coal dealer. He is doing the best he can to keep you adequately supplied. Tell him, well in advance, what your requirements will be and let him make deliveries when he can. At this time, accept cheerfully the grade of coal he can deliver — we Americans are not squawkin'.

The way to a Hungry Husband's Heart

Just a typical statement in homes using modern equipment where 910,000 Chicagoans (more than 98%) are "Cooking with Gas!"

WHEN that man who comes to dinner pulls up his chair to a hamburger steak that's been flame-broiled in a modern Gas range, you'll know you've found the way to a hungry husband's heart.

For tricky pastries requiring accurately controlled, steady heat . . . for roasts (remember them?) that must be browned to perfection outside while retaining just the right moist goodness inside . . . for simmer to super speed cooking on the top burners, there's nothing like a Gas Flame!

Plan to buy a modern GAS range when appliances are again available. Enjoy Gas Flame cooking. Meanwhile help our Government conserve fuel—don't use more than you need. If you'd like to see what's in store for you in kitchens, ranges, and other modern Gas equipment, visit our 122 S. Michigan Ave. Office. And if you have any cooking problems, take them to Martha Holmes, our friendly cooking consultant. She'll be glad to help.

CHICAGO PILOT TELLS OF HIDING 5 WEEKS ON PHILIPPINE ISLE

Ensign Rellis.

Ensign Eric F. Rellis, 24, navy pilot who is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Rellis of 5123 Deming pl., related yesterday how he spent five weeks with Filipino guerrillas last year in the Jap-infested Philippines after his plane was downed by anti-aircraft in the Manila bay region. Rellis said he scored two hit on a Japanese transport before his crippled plane crashed in the water.

Rellis, his nose broken in the landing, stepped into a life raft with his gunner and soon was met by guerrillas in sail boats, who took them to the beach, where an armed band of guerrillas waited. Eventually six more Americans joined the party, and during the five weeks they were moved from shore to plain to mountains and back again, always one jump ahead of the Japs, until arrangements for evacuation were completed.

A native Chicagoan, Ensign Rellis attended Schurz High school and Wright Junior college before entering the navy in April, 1941. He worked up from the ranks, transferred to aviation, and went overseas last June. He wears the Asiatic ribbon with four battle stars, and the Philippines ribbon with three. A brother, Pvt. Lawrence, 21, is in Belgium.

WMC ORDERS BANKS AT NEWARK TO 'FREE' 10% OF EMPLOYES

Newark, N. J., March 7 [Special].—The Newark area war man power commission revealed today it had issued a "request" that an estimated 175 banks release 10 per cent of their workers for war jobs. Such a request is tantamount to an order.

The banks affected, in Hudson, Union, and Essex counties and a small sector of Bergen county, employ a total of 6,500 persons. Types of employes affected are senior tellers, specially trained secretaries, clerks, watchmen, and guards.

"I can't understand how banks can be classed as less essential," asserted Lewis Hanson, president of the Hudson County Bankers' association. "Our banks are already undermanned. The association will appeal the move."

Newark bankers opposed the move on grounds that [a] their man power had already been trimmed "to the limit" by the draft; [b] the banks are loaded with extra work, such as handling of war bond transactions, rationing and plant "pay rolls; and [c] employe investments in pension and insurance plans—considerable among bank employes—would become invalid if the workers switched jobs.

CURFEW SPAWNS DRINKING DENS, SURVEY SHOWS

Failure as War Measure, Clubs and Cafes Say.

Major disruption of Chicago's entertainment business, with little saving in coal, electricity, or man power, has resulted from the midnight curfew that went into effect Feb. 26, a Tribune survey yesterday disclosed.

Another effect has been the mushrooming of speakeasies and back rooms where liquor is sold at sharply increased prices, and a tremendous rise in bottled liquor sales that may have increased the total volume of liquor consumed, the survey showed.

Chicago under the curfew is faced with an era of sneak drinking that in the first 10 days of midnight closing has shown an alarming degree of activity, the survey makers said.

The survey was made in all sections of the city by experienced investigators. No section of the city was found free from establishments that put the stools up on the bar, asked patrons to move their cars a block away, and then adjourned to a back room where drinking—minus its entertainment features—carried on until the wee small hours.

Liquor Prices Skyrocket.

Upstairs flats were in evidence where a glass of beer and a shot of whisky were standard fare. Prices were increased in proportion to the risk of detection by city police, who have been asked by the federal enforcing agency—the war man power commission—to coöperate in reporting violators, the investigators said.

Up to last night, a total of 41 violations of the curfew had been reported by volunteers to the WMC, which has been directed to turn them over to city police for investigation and report. So far, no violation has been confirmed by the police, William H. Spencer, WMC regional director, said.

Package liquor stores reported post-midnight sales had increased 200 to 300 per cent, with drinkers buying a bottle to take home or to a flat or hotel room.

Receipts Drop 40 to 60 Per Cent.

A sampling of night club records of receipts made by the investigators showed business decreases ranging from 40 to 60 per cent. Added to the operators' woes were difficult adjustments made with the performers' and musicians' unions.

James De Lisa, owner of the Club De Lisa, 5521 State st., reported that receipts had dropped from $30,000 a month to $17,000.

The establishment's pay roll is $15,000 a month, De Lisa said, and it has $5,000 overhead, resulting in a net loss of at least $3,000 per month.

The business on the south side, one operator said, has been injured by chartered so-called civic organizations, which have started operations as after midnight clubs. Business failures will add to the number of illicit establishments needed to entertain the public, he added.

Many Employes Fired.

Accompanying the drop in receipts has been a wholesale discharging of employes, who theoretically would be channeled into war plants. In practice, those dismissed have been older women, older men, 4-Fs, and others physically unfitted for war work.

Of 169 of the persons discharged, only two have gone to work in war plants, the survey showed. These were found among the 17 persons discharged from the Rio Cabana, 400 N. Wabash av., where receipts have dropped 50 per cent.

"We're just as patriotic as any one else," one club owner said. "If we could see a saving of coal and electricity and man power, we'd be only too happy to coöperate in any way we could. But we don't understand why our licensed businesses with large investments should be crippled when we can't see a saving of any kind for the war—only increased crime and delinquency for Chicago."

Contend Coal Is Not Saved.

Operators in all parts of the city insisted no coal was saved by the midnight closing because by midnight fires always were banked. Paul Small, manager of the Casino, 7500 S. Halsted st., said he kept his thermostat at 68 degrees until the cafe filled up, then turned off the heat, and watched patrons' body heat push the mercury to the high 70s.

Other clubs, including the 5100 club, 5100 Broadway, use natural gas in heating, or are in leased premises where heat is supplied. The Latin Quarter, 23 W. Randolph st., which leases from an all night restaurant firm, was an example of the latter.

An after-midnight tour indicated that some places increase use of electricity by burning bright lights to show that the premises are really empty.

Where Surveys Were Made.

The 5100 club, owned by Byron Massel and Henry Weiss; 20 per cent of the employes have been discharged, receipts have fallen 40 per cent.

Rhumboogie cafe, 343 E. Garfield blvd., owned by Charles Glenn; discharged 16 persons and suffered a 65 per cent drop in receipts.

The L & L cafe, 1316 Madison st., owned by Daniel Lardas; dismissed 12 persons as receipts dropped 60 per cent; bartenders agreed to work a four hour day for $40 per week instead of eight hours for $65.

The Silver Frolics, 3937 Madison st., owned by Benjamin Orloff, discharged four entertainers; business has dropped 50 per cent.

Singapore restaurant, 1011 Rush st., operated by Thomas McDonald and Frank Howard; has dismissed 30 employes and receipts have dropped 50 per cent.

Rio Cabana, operated by Bert and Chuck Jacobson; has discharged 17 men as business dropped 40 to 50 per cent.

The Latin Quarter has laid off 30 of the staff of 150; receipts 70 per cent of normal.

Most of the clubs that have maintained shows reported that these would have to be curtailed.

STEEL BALLS PERIL WORKER WHO QUIT CIO

Elmer H. Churchill, 1700 Humboldt blvd., a war worker who quit a CIO union because he believed it was dominated by Communists, has been the target of large steel ball bearings thrown at him from behind his back while he sat at an open polishing wheel, Judge Donald S. McKinlay was told yesterday in Superior court.

Elmer H. Churchill.

Harry Morgan.

Churchill, Harry Morgan, 36, a turret lathe operator, and 82 other employes in the Chicago Flexible Shaft company, 5600 Roosevelt rd., rescinded their memberships in local 1150 of the CIO United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers of America. They challenged the union officials' efforts to make them spread what they considered un-American propaganda.

Resists Dismissal Efforts.

Morgan has filed a petition for a permanent injunction to restrain the union from seeking to have him fired under the provisions of a closed shop clause. His attorney, William J. Grace, appeared before Judge McKinlay yesterday and obtained permission to add the names of Churchill and nine others to Morgan's petition. Hearing on the petition was set for March 19.

"The seriousness of this situation is evidenced by Churchill's case as an example," Atty. Grace told the court. "Ball bearings and other objects have been thrown at him while he was at his work."

Letter Is Shown.

A copy of a letter written by Irving Krane, business manager of the union, threatening Churchill with action intended to jeopardize his employment if he did not return to the union, was filed with the court. Churchill was notified that if he did not resume his membership in the union within seven days [his notice was dated Feb. 20] his name would be submitted to the company for action under the contract on "union security."

The union has sent similar notices to other employes, Grace said.

"Threats contained in the letters are unpatriotic and amount to threats of sabotaging the war effort and interfering with the contribution of these employes and their employer," he stated in his petition.

MUSSOLINI'S FINISH.

As the historians of fascism know, Mussolini's famous march on Rome took place in a sleeping car. He crossed the Rubicon in the Milan-Rome wagon-lit and a derby hat. For 20 years he sat on top of the world and Italy. And he went out in a manner that satisfied the traditions of opera bouffe quite as completely as his method of seizing power. He was hauled away from Rome and power as a prisoner reclining in an ambulance. As the driver picked up speed the great dictator who had preached the idea of living dangerously muttered nervously, "He drives too fast."

Two accounts have recently been submitted of the last days of fascism. Frederick C. Painton, an American journalist in Rome, wrote a version for Harper's magazine which he said was based upon a secretarial script of the meeting of the Fascist grand council which voted Mussolini out of power. Dino Grandi, who had been a Fascist leader since the start of the movement and who subsequently was Italian ambassador to Britain and minister of justice, sold his story to Lord Beaverbrook's London Daily Express, and it has subsequently been reprinted in this country.

From both accounts emerges the picture of a pack of cutthroats operating a swindle upon their credulous countrymen and an international confidence game which bulldozed most of Europe. It is ludicrous in retrospect that Mussolini's Halloween grimaces and fire eating orations should ever have scared anybody, but the gentlemen in London and Paris who sized him up as a low fellow of no breeding with a gutter vocabulary decided that he was sufficiently unpredictable to be dangerous, and therefore decided it was best to humor him. As Neville Chamberlain once remarked with some dismay, the world would have been an easier place "had Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini chanced to have been at Oxford."

When the Americans and British conquered Sicily and the next indicated step was the invasion of Italy, the big shots of fascism forced Mussolini to convene the grand council in Rome on July 24, 1943. The mobsters knew the game was up and the only purpose of the meeting was to throw Mussolini overboard. The discussion which led to the overthrow of the dictator by a vote of 19 to 7, with one member abstaining, was conducted with the quiet dignity of a meeting of Al Capone's old board of directors.

The dictator whose word had been law for 20 years heard himself called "rascal, roadside juggler, clown, imbecile." Mussolini said he would remember these insults "at the right moment." Later he was to have Gen. de Bono and Count Ciano, his own son-in-law, both of whom voted to remove him, shot in the back—the fate reserved in Italy for traitors. But a curious paralysis of indecision overcame him. All around the meeting room in the Palazzo Venezia Mussolini's armed guards were stationed. He had only to step to the doorway, summon them, and order the arrest of all his opponents to quell the revolt. He didn't do it. At dawn, after 11 hours of name calling, those who had voted to depose him made their way down the grand staircase. The soldiers were fast asleep on the steps.

Victor Emmanuel, the pint sized king, received the news with satisfaction. The house of Savoy was returning to power. He summoned Mussolini to the palace the next afternoon. Gen. Ambrosio, the army chief of staff, had hidden 50 carabinieri on the palace grounds. Mussolini's own bodyguard of 150 were constrained to wait outside the palace gates. An ambulance was drawn up at the palace door. The king informed Mussolini that his successor—Marshal Badoglio—had already taken office. The sawdust Caesar ranted and left. Capt. Vigneri stepped up.

"Duce," he said, "the king has instructed me to escort you to protect you from the mob." He tugged Mussolini toward the ambulance. At the door Mussolini resisted. A shout would have brought his guards and the shooting would have begun. Il Duce's life might be the first to go. He hesitated. Vigneri shoved him savagely. Mussolini sprawled into the ambulance and fell on a stretcher. The drive began. On Sept. 12 Hitler's parachutists freed Mussolini, who had been held at Ponza. A tired old man of 60, the erstwhile dictator withdrew to northern Italy and proclaimed a "republic." He lingers on, waiting, like Hitler and the other war makers, for the day which will finally end his capacity for making trouble.

Count Grandi, the thug with drawing room manners, waits in Lisbon for events to catch up with him. His whole account of the finish of fascism is a series of distortions intended to negate the responsibility of his actions for 20 years. He was the man who moved the resolution of removal at the grand council meeting. His story now is that he was always a constitutionalist, a democrat, who loathed fascism and war, and who patiently waited the chance to strike down the edifice of dictatorship. When it's a question of necks, Grandi is careful of his own. "We or they," as Mussolini used to say.

In varying degrees these scenes of the end of the tyranny in Rome will be reënacted in Berlin and Tokyo. The rats will scuttle for safety when the ship founders. There will be recriminations. Every tyrant, big or small, will say that every one but himself was to blame. The evil and the misery caused by these men will long outlast their lives. Death will extinguish them, but they have bequeathed an atmosphere of poisonous menace to our times. It will not die with them. The focus of infection will merely shift.

EMBATTLED FARMERS.

The Evening Times of Monroe, Wis., reporting on the progress of the New Deal's farm census in its locality, states, "A few Green county farmers, suspicious of the motives behind the federal farm census, have barred the enumerators from their farms or have refused to yield any information concerning their farming operations." The county agent, Edwin Baker, thereupon called for assistance from a gentleman named Smithback, who is chief state enumerator. Mr. Smithback spoke of the fiasco in very aggrieved tones.

"In some Wisconsin counties," said he, "farmers greeted census enumerators with axes and shotguns, displaying a belligerency which, said Baker, showed a lack of understanding of the motives behind the census. The enumerators, Baker wants to assure the farmers, are not getting information for tax purposes, are not snooping, but are carrying on a regular five year census."

At the time an appropriation of $6,784,000 was voted to complete this project, which is to cost a total of 15 million dollars, two million of which had then been obligated, THE TRIBUNE said it was a silly waste of money, the only conceivable purpose of which would be to keep a flock of burocrats busy sorting statistics. The Monroe Times, on the basis of visible evidence, supports our conclusion.

"What befuddles the enumerators and other officials, of course," it says, "is when the farmer bluntly says: 'Why, when most of this information [all that is pertinent] already is in the hands of the triple A, does a government which is pleading for man power, pleading for conservation of cars and tires and traveling, send 12,000 men out in cars to traverse the countryside, to get information which already is on file?"

Why, indeed? It is encouraging that the spirit of Lexington still lives among those whom the burocrats would seek to reduce to an integer in an abstraction called "60 million jobs."

FREEDOM RESPECTED.

The senate has acted wisely in refusing to enact the punitive provisions insisted upon by the administration in the man power regulation bill, which started out as a "work, fight, or go to jail bill." The British, as Secretary of War Stimson said in one of his infatuated moments, have a forced labor system for the duration and that seemed to him a sufficient argument why we should have one, too.

Mr. Stimson obviously never subjected the operation of the British system to critical examination, but we can gain some insight into the grief which the senate has now spared us by taking a look at it. The latest evidence is the report that there were 170 strikes in Britain during January, which cost 104,000 working days. Our own strike record was none too good, but we have a far larger labor force and we would not suffer in comparison.

The British enacted their law on May 22, 1940, just after Dunkirk. In 1944 the British strike rate was 16 per cent higher than our own. More than 3,600,000 man hours were lost. We lost 7 million man hours, but on the basis of comparative working populations we should have lost 9 million if our strike rate were the same as Britain's under compulsion. In Britain the percentage of absenteeism was 10 per cent; in this country, 6 per cent. Three per cent of our absenteeism is caused by illness, so in the matter of questionable absenteeism we had a rate of only 3 per cent, against Britain's 7 per cent, and the difference cannot be attributed wholly to the effect of bombing.

In five years under its compulsory system Britain has directed one million persons to go to work. The crown prosecuted 5,400 for refusing to go to work, and of those 4,700 were put in jail. England can do that sort of thing if it chooses. It has no prohibition of involuntary servitude in any constitutional sense, and the war powers of the government are such that subjects have been confined for years without hearing or without charge under the defense of the realm act. In this country the powers of the commander in chief are military only. They do not govern the actions of citizens, and the senate has shown great prudence and a respect for the constitutional safeguards in rejecting the pernicious doctrine that they could be stretched.

The senate decision, in combination with Judge Philip L. Sullivan's courageous opinion in the Montgomery Ward case, is a landmark in this war in the protection of the rights of citizens and in overcoming the doctrine of a "divine right of Presidents" which exists neither in the Constitution nor in tradition.

Editorial of the Day

[New York Times.]

The government will now cooperate in the threatened strike of long distance telephone operators in the New York area. The regional office of the national labor relations board announces that it will conduct an official government strike vote on Jan. 25 among the 5,400 union and nonunion employes of the long lines department of the American Telephone and Telegraph company. The question on which the government will ask the employes to vote is this: "Do you wish to permit an interruption of war production in war time as a result of this dispute?"

All this is being done in strict conformity with the Connally-Smith act, which specifically legalizes a war time strike if it is taken after such a government sponsored ballot. By sponsoring such a ballot the government by implication not only permits but sanctions a strike called as a result of it. It says in effect that it is perfectly all right for the long distance telephone operators [or any other group] to interrupt war production in war time if that is really what a majority of them want to do. This fantastic situation is the result of an absurd provision in an ill considered act which congress has been too stubborn to revise even when its absurdity has become plain to everybody else.

ALMA MATER ON RHINE.

The shattered city of Cologne had a university whose halls may be rubble now, but it did not rank among Germany's major seats of learning. Founded in 1919, it was a mere rookie of the higher education. Cologne's ancient tradition as an ivory tower town was inherited by nearby Bonn, where a university of the first rank was founded in 1818. German student life flourished there in its finest feathers.

* * *

The founder of this famous school is commemorated in its formal title, which is not the University of Bonn, but the Rhenish Friedrich Wilhelm university. He was the same king of Prussia who founded, nine years earlier, the Royal Friedrich Wilhelm university, generally known as the University of Berlin.

* * *

The Hohenzollern influence caused Bonn to become the favorite school for scions of the Prussian nobility and other sprigs of the "von and zu" titles. Kaiser Wilhelm II. spent the two final years of his studies there, and the much-mentioned crown prince of World War I. followed his example, but with a lighter heart. The newspaper gossips of that period gave the crown prince a reputation for collegiate conduct which may have inspired "The Student Prince" of the American operetta repertory. Anyway, between Kaiser Bill and his gay gossoon, Bonn's university got international publicity.

* * *

The site is favorable for college life of the romantic American tradition. The town has been called perhaps the prettiest on the Rhine; it is not too populous [93,000 according to a pre-war estimate], is well treed, and commands a beautiful view of the scenic Siebengebirge [Seven Mountains] across the river. Evanston, with its Northwestern university campus, may serve for a reasonable comparison.

* * *

Bonn's university was housed in the former castle of the electors of Cologne, the most conspicuous and finest piece of architecture in the town. The structure was enlarged in 1930. Here, then, according to American standards, is—or was—a member of the German Ivy league from the social point of view, and also a Big Tenner in scholarship.

I PROMISE YOU.

I promise you that Spring will come again,
In pageantry of April loveliness;
Arrayed in regal amethyst and gold;
Refuting Winter's long-imposed duress.

I promise you that Love will come again,
In all the virgin tenderness of Spring;
And we who languish, winter-worn, heart-hushed,
Shall thrill once more to passion's flowering.

I promise you that Peace will come again,
As springtime follows winter; as the day
Draws back Night's curtain and reveals the sun,

Before the Ration Stamp Era.

Coupons played a part in furnishing our household with incidentals, in the old days. I remember Ma had a mason jar filled with green tickets, standing next to the kitchen clock. At each weekly visit the coffee man urged her to buy an extra pound of coffee or tea to bring her closer to that prized set of dishes.

We kids saved all types of coupons—gum, soap, and trading stamps. Each week-end we pestered Ma and the neighbors to let us go to the store for them. This meant more coupons. Weekly we walked uptown to the premium stores. How our noses were glued to the windows as we looked longingly at the array of knickknacks and contemplated all the things 500 coupons would get us—a four-bladed, bone-handled jackknife, fishing rod, reel, tackle, footballs, baseballs, etc.

Once in a while the clerks would let us have a 500 coupon item for 450—if we promised to bring in the balance later. "O, sure, Mister, we will," we answered honor bright, but we never did, and the clerks knew we wouldn't. After all they, too, once were coupon collecting kids.

Yes. VACCINATION AGAINST LOCKJAW.

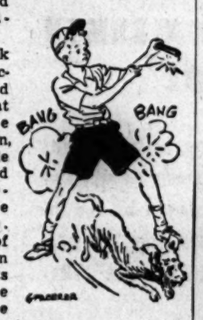
DURING periods of conflict a rise in the incidence of tetanus [lockjaw] may well be expected. For this reason, every man and woman in the armed services, and all civilians in combat areas, should be immunized.



Dunkirk had its victories and one was that after the evacuation, not a single vaccinated person developed the disease. Likewise, of the million inhabitants of France who were inoculated, not one encountered this malady. The 12 victims in the British expeditionary forces had not been safeguarded.

The affliction has been known for centuries. Hippocrates, Greek father of medicine, was familiar with it. Morgagni, in the 18th century, noted the condition after apparently trivial accidents, such as the bite of a sparrow. Lister, in the 19th century, was worried by its appearance in the hospital wards of Glasgow. Since the causative bacillus was discovered in 1890, research physicians have been working on antidotes.

These organisms are found normally in the soil, particularly around farmyards. As a rule, they gain access to the body thru puncture wounds from bullets, shrapnel, Fourth of July fireworks, nails, knives, swords, etc. But in any type of mishap in which the tissues are crushed, as in compound fractures, traffic accidents, and the like, we must be alert to this menace.

Unfortunately, it is not possible to tell in advance what lesion will cause trouble. Any and every abrasion may provide a ready avenue for the inoculation of the germ. For this reason, every lesion—no matter how trivial—should receive proper first aid, followed by the administration of tetanus antitoxin.

The employment of antitetanus serum subsequent to infection is termed "passive immunization." There are a few obstacles to its use: Now and then, it fails as a preventive; it may produce annoying reactions in patients sensitive to horse serum; and it protects for only 10 to 14 days. The dose may need to be repeated.

Active immunization, however, is quite different. This prophylactic plan is carried out with modified tetanus toxin [toxoid], which brings about the slow but almost sure production of neutralizing antibodies. If an accident occurs to some one who has had active immunization in the past, an injection of toxoid instead of the serum may be utilized. This is a strengthening measure. In all other cases, however, the serum is indicated. Sometimes a booster dose annually in the susceptible person is wise.

Tetanus toxoid works like diphtheria toxoid, giving protection over many years. In fact, with children, the two substances are usually combined at the time the youngster is going thru his course of vaccinations.

We have all read in the newspapers how few of our boys are dying of infected wounds in World War II. Part of the credit for this satisfactory situation must go to the precautions that have been taken against this noxious invader.

EVENING SNACKS.

Mrs. G. S. writes: My son delights in nibbling on crackers and sometimes eats one-fourth pound in one evening. Is this likely to cause any disturbance?

REPLY.

As long as it does not interfere with sleep or leave crumbs in the bed. I would judge that no harm can result from this habit. Crackers lack most of the nutrient elements necessary for health and should not be used as a substitute for other foods.

TEMPERATURE OF MILK.

Mrs. A. K. writes: Is it all right to give a child cold milk directly from the refrigerator or it is better to heat it?

REPLY.

Heating is not necessary. The chill can be taken out by allowing it to stand several minutes before serving or by pouring it into a warm glass. The child can be trained to sip the fluid and hold it in the mouth until it reaches body temperature.

FOOT DEFORMITY.

Mrs. C. E. K. writes: My son was born with a hammer toe. Is this inherited?

REPLY.

Hammer toe, especially when the second digit is involved, is usually inherited. This condition may be acquired, however, following injuries or infections causing contraction of certain tendons.

Thought of the Week.

Mrs. Roosevelt in accepting the $8,000 mink coat given her by the Quebec fur breeders said the gift seemed to her "symbolic of what we hope will happen all over the world."

No woman will contradict that.

Pretty Please.

The editorial of the Feb. 24 issue of 83d Spearhead, publication [when and if] of the 83d infantry division, carried two quotations in large black type at its head. One said: "Please treat this home as you would your own." The other said: "We have done you no harm—do not harm our little home."

The two signs, in English, are greeting allied troops as they push on into Germany. They are being found in almost every house.

Writes the 83d Spearhead:

"We wonder if the Germans actually think we're such a bunch of suckers as to fall for this line of spit. How about the Poles and the Russians? Would they fall for it? Are they? No!

"Then why should we?

"You answer that one.

"It must be with a terrible sense of guilt that the Germans put up these signs. Why should they think the softy soldiers of decadent democracy would destroy their little homes?

"You don't suppose they think we'd do such a thing without provocation, do you? Or do you suppose they feel guilty about destroying half of Europe . . . and think we intend to destroy all of Germany?

"They're guilty all right. Guilty as hell. And they know it. They're scared stiff. The war's right in their front yard. The shoe pinches. It's on the other foot. And they know that, too.

"These Germans, every one of them, waved deliriously at their mad Fuehrer only a few weeks ago. They swelled over their victorious armies. They blessed their heroic sons, tools of Hitler's dirty work. They gave him a rousing O. K.

"Ah, they're a cagey lot, these Germans. They're smart, and they're going to play us for all they're worth. It's damn near the end of the line in more ways than one for most of them. They know it only too well.

"So when it comes to signs, we've got one of our own. It's a good one, and we'll plaster it on every house we see."

"Under New Management—

A Soldier Writes.

"Perhaps you will air one of our pet peeves," began the letter from an infantryman in Europe.

"In a conversation no one would answer a remark by saying, 'Have nothing to do for a few minutes, so thought I would drop a few words to see how you are getting along. Fine, I hope.'

"Numerous other absurdities that our loving friends and families put into letters could be listed. Now, listen here, all you letter writers: Millions of us can only converse with you thru the written word, which is inadequate as a medium of expression at which many are not proficient. But why make it worse thru carelessness and laziness?

"If a correspondent voices an opinion on a subject, let's express our views in return. Let's not feel that we 'owe a letter,' but an answer to the contents. There would be less of that feeling of mental paralysis when we 'take our pens in hand.'

"As I roger out, I say again: Let's write as we talk."

Chicago, March 5.—In your report of the dispute between the Chicago Federation of Musicians and the Cafe Owners' association, you quote a union spokesman as saying: "We will not deal with an association. We will deal with any operator on an individual basis. If they have any complaints, let them come to us and make them."

Collective bargaining has long been one of the fundamentals of the labor movement. I wonder how the musicians' union would explain their refusal to bargain collectively. H. F. WILLIAMS.

SEEKS ENLIGHTENMENT.

Chicago, March 3.—Will some one who belongs to either the CIO or the AFL please tell me what benefits he gets from his affiliation with either organization that could possibly offset what these so-called unions are doing to our fighting men? In this morning's paper appears an article about a strike in a Detroit war plant in which 35,000 workers are out. The article says: "Affected plants were gripped by a virtual paralysis of production of parts for tanks, B-29 Superfortresses, anti-aircraft guns, ambulances, rockets, heavy and light trucks, and other material."

How much longer are the American people going to be dominated by these gangsterlike unions? The cream of American manhood is fighting and dying in a hellish war while these unions permit strikes that deprive our fighting men of the weapons and equipment they need at the battle front. I am not a nonunionist, but how about forming an American union? M. C.

AMERICANS AND OTHERS.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—Now that we have an assistant secretary of war in John W. McCloy who can select an officer for the army who is 49 per cent Communist and 51 per cent American, the writer wonders just how he can determine this status. Being educated in a small Indiana town, we were taught you were an American or otherwise.

NO USE OPPOSING HIM.

Chicago, March 2.—I wish the people who keep knocking the President would wake up and come to the conclusion that no matter what they say it will not do them any good, because as long as President Roosevelt exists he'll be elected "again, and again, and again."

SECESSION FROM THE EAST.

Fort Thomas, Ky., Feb. 24.—Reading a tale of the old south during the antebellum days, we came across a term all but forgotten in today's political turmoil—secessionist. And we wondered how soon New Deal propagandists—who are, in fact, internationalist propagandists—would dig this term from musty archives and burnish it up brightly for application to the people from west of the Alleghanies and south of the Mason and Dixon line who would secede politically from the alien-minded east to turn the government in Washington back to the American people.

To those of us whose fathers and grandfathers fought to prevent the south from seceding from the Union and rejoining the British empire, it will be something of a novelty, to say the least, to find ourselves fighting side by side with the sons and grandsons of the old time secessionists to prevent the whole dad-blamed country being turned over to the British and Russians. But we will welcome these new allies in our fight to save the republic, for they think the same as we do.

Lincoln's people and Jefferson Davis' people have a job to do jointly, and the sooner they tear down the mythical barriers by which the east keeps them divided politically, the sooner this nation will get back on its proper course. But Jeff's folks will not vote for a Republican as such any more than Abe's folks will vote for a Democrat as such. It will need a new banner to accomplish the desired result.

LEWIS R. KIMBERLY.

GROWLING AT SWITZERLAND.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—Will you define fascism? People talk about it and around it, but no one is definite. If Italy was fascist, how can Switzerland—a democratic republic for over 600 years and the only country that has lived by the golden rule; which has been a permanent neutral since 1815; where the individual carries democracy in his heart—be fascist?

Russia accuses her of being fascist, but is it not because Stalin has cast his greedy eyes on her and wishes to include her with Lithuania and the others as part of the spoils? If F. D. R. throws Switzerland to the Russian wolves, then are our boys fighting for the four freedoms and to keep democracy alive? G. SULZER.

NO LONGER AN OPIATE?

Hinsdale, Ill., March 3.—By what stretch of the imagination can Mr. Roosevelt call communistic Russia Christian? He surely must mean Russia is to be considered Christian when he said in his report to congress that there is "no room for Nazis and Christianity." What indication have we that Russia has changed her mind about religion being an opiate for the people?

TOWNS RESENT IDLE OBJECTORS OUT FOR 'DATES'

Refuse to Work, but Ask Bigger U. S. 'Pay.'

BY FRANK HUGHES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Germfask, Mich., March 7.—Eighty conscientious objectors in civilian public service camp 135 near here, supported on public funds and the majority of them refusing to do any work whatever, have so angered residents of the Upper Michigan peninsula that every town within a radius of 20 miles of the camp has been closed to them

Only about 20 of the assignees at Camp Germfask are willing workers, according to Harvey Saunders, camp project director, and Paul Voelker, camp manager. The other 60, while not often refusing to go out on projects, stall and play at the job, complaining that light objects are "too heavy" for them to lift, chipping at trees they are supposed to cut, and gathering brush by the twig instead of the armload.

Selective Service Project.

Most of these objectors admit they are not affiliated with churches and are sitting out the war on grounds of "conscience." They are recalcitrants turned out of camps run by and supported by religious sects whose members have spiritual objections to war and whose assignees are genuinely willing to work, if not to fight. Camp Germfask is run by the selective service system which has given the camp staff no authority or disciplinary power whatever.

The conduct of the objectors in town on Sunday night liberty leaves, together with their refusal to work, have brought so many protests from townspeople who have lost sons in the war and have others on the battle fronts that Munising, Manistique, Newberry, Germfask, and several other communities have been placed out of bounds to them.

W. A. Harrington, pastor of the First Baptist church in Manistique, said four or six of the Germfask objectors used to come to his church, and two to another church, the rest of the truckload going to taverns or theaters.

"Just Pacifists."

"My sympathy is completely with the true religious conscientious objector," the Rev. Mr. Harrington said, "and until this episode I never knew there was any other kind. But the majority of the men at Germfask are just 'pacifists.' I am convinced of this by my own observations and by communications from the men themselves."

The Rev. Mr. Harrington told how church members found two married objectors who attended the Baptist Young People's society trying to "date" young church girls, becoming insistent when the girl refused.

He said he had to ask the objectors to stay away from the young people's meetings and that he visited the camp in an effort to do something for them. The objectors told him they "couldn't guarantee any hearing" for him if he attempted to conduct a church service in their camp and complained because the government didn't furnish "liberty girls" to make their leaves more pleasant.

Manistique Fears Trouble.

William J. Sheahan, prosecuting attorney for Schoolcraft county, said he asked Norman Nelson, camp director, to place Manistique out of bounds because he feared a breach of the peace. Some of the married objectors attempted to date girls in the high school library at Manistique, he said.

"These men are paid $5 a month by the government, in addition to board, room, and clothing," Sheahan said, "and they complain they do not have any money. But if one of them is arrested, I'll bet they could raise up to $5,000 bond for him within 10 hours. They have a lot of money back of them."

Attorneys furnished by the American Civil Liberties Union fly to the defense of objectors caught by the law, Sheahan said, and are ready with bond and funds for appeal.

Steal Camp Equipment.

Both Sheahan and Saunders, the project director, told how recalcitrant objectors, determined to prove that Camp Germfask is a failure and win the right to return to civilian life, stole oven doors off kitchen ranges, broke into storerooms and spoiled food, broke and made off with dishes, plugged up toilets, and removed and buried eating utensils in snow banks.

All of the men are physically fit for army duty, but 18 to 20 report sick every day, they said, arguing with army doctors who pronounce them fit, and malingering in their bunkhouses.

C. A. Johnson, manager of a huge wild life refuge at Seney, about four miles north of the camp, said that it was intended to furnish labor for the wild life service, which formerly had as many as 500 CCC and WPA workers and is now trying to keep up with a staff of five. The refuge hasn't got a single man day of work out of the 80 objectors since last November, he said.

EX-MICHIGAN SOLON ADMITS TAKING BRIBE

Shea on Stand in Trial of Naturopathists.

Mason, Mich., March 7 [Special].—Henry F. Shea of Laurium and Lansing, former Democratic state senator, testified today at the trial of seven defendants charged with a bribe conspiracy that he accepted $500 for his services in introducing a 1939 bill to license naturopathists.

The charges, growing out of Judge Leland W. Carr's one man grand jury investigation of legislative corruption, pertain to alleged expenditures of some $4,000 to purchase legislative influence in a futile attempt to pass the bill.

Shea, a witness for the state, described meetings in March, 1939, which led up to the bill's introduction. He said Chester M. Howell, Saginaw, former Republican senator who has pleaded guilty to the warrant along with four naturopathist defendants, had told him that Harry F. Williams, Wheaton, Ill., former lobbyist for the naturopathic group, was hunting for a sponsor. Shea said he conferred with Williams about the bill and told him it would "cost some money to get it passed."

Shea said Williams told him he had $500 and made a payment to him in cash, part of which, the witness said, was divided with Howell.

The defense counsel spent most of the day cross-examining Williams, star state witness, who had testified to bribing all of the four legislative defendants, with the full knowledge of the three naturopathist respondents.

Witness Leaves State.

Walter North of Battle Creek, counsel for Martin W. Hildebrand, Battle Creek chiropractor; Henry Platt, counsel for Mihkel Sherman, Detroit naturopathist, and Frank L. Blackman, counsel for Sen. Carl F. Delano [R., Kalamazoo], sought to draw conflicting statements from the witness regarding his stories of bribe payments and identification of checks and other exhibits.

Kim Sigler, special prosecutor, revealed that another prospective state witness, Fred Grabo, Kalamazoo chiropractor, had left the state "about Feb. 23," presumably for the south and probably could not be produced as a witness. Sigler indicated the prosecution would finish its case tomorrow.

EDDIE STURCH, DEMOCRAT AID, GOES TO JAIL

Eddie Sturch, ex-convict and Democratic political henchman in the 42d ward where he likes to be regarded as a "tough" character, yesterday surrendered to Chief Bailiff Joseph Lelivelt of the Criminal court to begin serving a jail sentence imposed Feb. 5, 1943.

Sturch was convicted of hurling whisky bottles in a N. Clark st. saloon and annoying the patrons Dec. 2, 1942. He was tried before Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski and his sentence of three months in jail and a $2,500 fine was upheld by the Illinois Supreme court last Jan. 17.

CORPUS DELICTI PROOF SOUGHT IN FIRE KILLING

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Police were sifting ashes yesterday in search of a bone or other relic necessary to prove the corpus delicti to substantiate the confession of Joseph Nischt, 30, a janitor, that he killed and cremated Mrs. Rose Michaelis, 58, of 6855 Clyde av. Nischt's attorney, James M. Burke, said that unless some portion of the body is recovered, there can be no corpus delicti and consequently Nischt cannot be punished for the crime.

Judge Michael L. McKinley, a veteran of the Superior court who spent many years in the Criminal court, often as its chief justice, explained that corpus delicti is a Latin phrase meaning body of the crime. Actually it means proof of the crime, he added, and is used in trials other than for murder—for instance, in a larceny charge there must be proof that something actually was stolen.

Based on Common Law.

"There is no statute mentioning corpus delicti," Judge McKinley said. "It goes back to the common law [which we derived from ancient English law]. Under our procedure, before there can be a murder trial there must be an indictment in which a person is definitely charged with the killing of another human being, whose identity, if known, must be given in the indictment.

"Then, before a conviction can be obtained, there must be, first, proof of death. Then proof that a certain individual's life was taken—the individual named in the indictment. The dead body must be identified as that of the person named in the indictment."

Judge McKinley said that in 34 years on the bench he never heard of a case anywhere in this country in which the supposed victim of a murder was found alive after the supposed murderer had been convicted and imprisoned or executed. There is no case of that kind cited in Illinois records, he said.

Applies in Other States.

Defense attorneys have harped on the necessity of proving the corpus delicti in murder trials, it was recalled, on the theory that in other days there had been numerous such miscarriages of justice. The same common law provision applies in most other states, Judge McKinley said and, therefore, it would tend to prevent any such wrongful verdicts.

Atty. Thomas D. Nash, one of the most successful practitioners of criminal law of a decade or two ago, who now specializes in civil practice, recalled that he once had obtained the dismissal of a murder charge against a defendant when the state couldn't prove the corpus delicti.

"It was in 1923," Nash said. "The defendant was Michael Eulo. The state couldn't prove that the man he killed ever had lived; therefore Eulo went free."

Luetgert Case Cited.

The Luetgert case was cited as one of the legal guides in proof of death. Adolph Luetgert, a Chicago sausage manufacturer, was charged with the murder of his wife, Louisa, in 1897. The state charged he had destroyed his dead wife's body in a sausage vat by covering it with arsenic and potash. The proof, in this case, was a sesamoid bone, said by experts to have been part of a woman's foot, and a ring which bore Mrs. Luetgert's initials and was identified as hers.

In the Carl Wanderer case, in 1920, involving the death of the "ragged stranger," whose identity never has been discovered, it was necessary to prove that the dead man once had been alive, and this proof was obtained from a witness who saw the man accompany Wanderer into a hallway. Wanderer was hanged.

"In this case we may be able to prove the corpus delicti by Nescht's confession, plus some circumstantial evidence," said 1st Assistant State's Atty. Wilbert F. Crowley.

"The corroborating evidence may be some article of clothing, something produced by a chemical analysis of the ashes, or some other means of proof. We don't need just a bone to establish the corpus delicti. We can prove it by anything that will establish death."

FIND CERONES GUILTY; EACH GETS 5 YEARS

Elder Brother Is Given Fine of $10,000.

Frank Cerone, 32, of 5048 Marine dr., owner of a sports publication and reputedly a former associate of Eddie Vogel, slot machine operator, was sentenced to five years in prison and fined $10,000, and his brother, James, 25, was sentenced to a like prison term, when a jury of six men and six women found them guilty yesterday in the federal District court of Judge John P. Barnes of violating the selective service act.

Judge Barnes imposed the sentences, the maximum in the case of the elder Cerone, immediately after the jury returned its verdict. The jurors deliberated 35 minutes.

Bail Plea Is Denied.

Frank Cerone was charged with bribing two naval petty officers assigned to the induction center at 166 W. Van Buren st. to obtain fraudulent rejections for his brother and several other draft registrants. James was accused of draft evasion.

Defense motions for a stay of execution, for a new trial, and for setting of bail were overruled by Judge Barnes.

Hear Ex-Petty Officers.

Earlier the jury heard testimony by Albert Stephenson, former chief petty officer who was reduced in rank to apprentice seaman and sentenced to six years' imprisonment by a court martial, and by John P. Curran, also a former chief petty officer and now a treasury department employe, that Frank Cerone had paid them bribes.

Curran, who had been approached by Stephenson and asked to aid in the fake deferment scheme, had reported the matter to his superiors and had been instructed to play along with Stephenson.

SINUS SUFFERING LINKED TO LACK OF RIGHT SLEEP

New York, March 7 (AP).—A person's manner of life, his eating or his sleeping, may be the cause of that individual's sinus trouble, a report by Dr. Sam E. Roberts of Kansas City states.

Dr. Roberts, in his report, deals with what he calls a new sinus syndrome [group of concurrent symptoms]. These symptoms are sinus headaches and snuffiness, fatigue, and pains in various parts of the body. The report appears in papers of the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otalaryngology.

Fatigue and Illness Linked.

"Fatigue," he writes, "has been present to some degree in 87 per cent of our adult patients who consult us for chronic trouble, and complete exhaustion in 50 per cent."

Dr. Roberts' conclusions are based on 4,000 persons observed over a long period of time.

"You would be surprised," he declares, "as I was, to learn that most of our patients get less than seven hours sleep—many only four or five. You could not expect them to have a healthy mucous membrane or an alert brain and be free from aches and pains with so little rest.

"I was surprised, and I believe you would be, when you found that 31 per cent of your patients took some form of cathartic at more or less regular intervals, either self-prescribed or advised by a druggist.

Mineral Oil Use Criticized.

"Again, you could not expect your patient to have a healthy mucosa when all cathartics interfere with absorption and assimilation of foods. When the lubricating type is used, such as the mineral oil preparations, it prevents the absorption of vitamin A, essential to the health and physiology of mucous membranes."

Dr. Roberts thinks the sinus trouble is due to a disturbed balance of colloidal chemistry of the body. He says physiology and metabolism are fundamental factors to be considered in treating this type of sinus trouble.

STRIKE CALLED BY SERVICE AIDS OF GARY SCHOOLS

More than 20,000 school children in Gary may be confronted with cold classrooms in 21 schools this morning as the result of a strike threat voiced last night by local 123-A of the Building and Service Employes' union, AFL.

The strike call was issued by F. M. Oberg, business agent, who said that 130 school custodians and janitors will be affected. They will provide enough heat to prevent damage to pipes and furnaces, but not enough to warm buildings, he said.

The Gary school board refused to renew a contract that would provide for an aggregate increase of $5,000 per year to the union employes. The board holds that under a ruling last year by former Indiana Atty. Gen. James Emmert it has no authority to enter into a contract with any union. Emmert held that a school board could negotiate a union contract, but that it would not be valid.

TWO ARE SLAIN IN FIGHT OVER JOINING UNION

Victims were Lou Samuels, 38, of 2221 Dearborn st., recording secretary of United Liquor and Food Service Employes union, local 1249, and Elmo Jones, 45, of 5508 Michigan av., Negroes.

James Gerrard.

Their slayer was James Gerrard, 49, Negro, of 5933 Michigan av., a bartender in the Indiana av. tavern. He is a member of the CIO union and also of the Bartenders' AFL union.

Gerrard said that Samuels and another man quarreled with him about his AFL membership and also about another Negro bartender whom they were trying to force into the CIO group. Samuels hit Gerrard, and Jones, a patron, tried to intercede. Gerrard then grabbed a revolver and fired at Samuels, killing him and, accidentally, Jones also.

Toothpaste-tube Radio

Ingenious Yanks, penned in by the barbed wire of a prison camp on Luzon during Jap occupation, wanted news by radio. They constructed a set from tooth-paste tubes, scraps of wire, and other odds and ends. It worked! News from broadcasts was printed on Jap stationery and circulated throughout the camp.

Learns English Hard Way

"Well I'll be dawgoned," says Bob Burns, "Now I'm an English teacher." Yessir, Bob got a fan letter from a European refugee, saying that he's learning English faster by listening to Bob than through any other radio program on the nation's airlanes.

Bob's comment: "He's going to feel pretty put out when he finds out that what he's been learnin' ain't English at all, but just the plain Ozark language."

THESE PANTIES THROW NO DUST IN WIFE'S EYES

So Writer Warren and Woman Face Court.

As long as Raymond H. Warren, 52, sticks to writing such things as the life of President Lincoln or history, the writer's wife, Marion, 53, is happy, she told Judge Jacob M. Braude yesterday in Women's court, but she doesn't like it when he starts writing books about chorus girls and the Greenwich Village way of life. Nor does she believe panties are used as a dust cloth.

Warren, a tall man with a distinguished air, spectacles, and a mustache, was arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct. A co-defendant was Miss Caroline La Due, 32, a former chorine at the Star and Garter and now a telephone operator.

Mrs. Warren accused her husband of neglecting his research into and overconcentrating on his investigation into the spicy private lives of chorus girls and other characters associated with the world of Little Bohemia.

Couple Arrested in Studio.

The couple was arrested Tuesday night in Warren's studio at 147 W. Oak st. Mrs. Warren said she found them there and called Chicago av. police.

She told the court that she was to have met her husband at 7 p. m. Tuesday to see him off for Springfield, where he was to delve into historical material.

He failed to show up, however, she said, so she went to the studio and there he was with Miss La Due. Both, she asserted, were intoxicated and draped over a chair were silk panties.

Panties' Identity at Issue.

Miss La Due indignantly denied ownership of the panties. Warren maintained stoutly they weren't panties, but a dust cloth.

He also affirmed that he looked upon Miss La Due merely as the repository of a boundless store of reminiscences that would look well in his book. Mrs. Warren retorted that Caroline was the seventh "other woman" in Warren's life.

Judge Braude ordered Warren, a former press agent for the late Gov. Horner, and Miss La Due examined by Dr. David B. Rotman, Municipal court psychiatrist, and continued the hearing until March 14.

Pre-Adolescent Boy's Behavior May Require Parental Patience

(Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

Are you having the Trouble? Any time from nine years on, the Trouble begins.

If may take the form of the Gang, a word that can strike terror to a woman but which makes a man grin reminiscently, because he knows that the gang interest can be made a constructive instead of a destructive force in a boy's life.

The Trouble may take the form of bad manners. Or perhaps I should say, instead, no manners. It may take the form of rough speech, and battered, tattered clothes.

The Trouble is nothing more nor less than the development of latent masculinity and virility in the 10 year old boy, combined with an unconscious fling at the freedom of childhood. Oddly enough, this disturbs fathers often quite as much as it does mothers.

It may take the form of a distaste for anything that seems effeminate, which may even reach absurd lengths. Have you ever seen a son who, when asked to hold a pocketbook while you put on your coat, held it with a gingerly grip [fearing probably to look like a polite sissy], allowing as little of it to contaminate his hands as possible?

Even mildly proper table manners signify, to him, a fastidiousness that smacks of the feminine, and are therefore tabu. In desperation, we find our requirements of manners for him shrinking beyond what we thought was the irreducible minimum. Doors are never shut; they are slammed. One does not walk downstairs; one catapults downward thru the stair well.

All of these actions and attitudes are the gestures of a bigger impulse or urge than little childhood holds.

Parents who have daughters instead of sons, or who are bringing up a son after a batch of daughters, often do not understand or realize the differing urges in the growing boy. They may see, if they are without the inner vision, only the hobble-dehoy, clumsy, rough, pre-adolescent boy, while those with vision are conscious of an emerging manhood. Having this vision helps parents to tolerance and patience.

JOURNEY UNDERGROUND

(Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.)

By Flight Officer David G. Prosser

SYNOPSIS: The author enlisted in the Canadian air force in 1941, at the age of 20, and won his wings as a navigator. In 1943 he transferred to the American air force. On his ninth combat mission, Prosser's Flying Fortress was shot down over France and the crew bailed out. Prosser landed alone in a field, seriously injuring his ankle. As he limped along a forest road he met two men, Jacques and Marceau, who took him to Marceau's home and furniture making shop where he was hidden in the attic to await the healing of his foot. He met Marceau's mother, Mere Louise, and his wife, Renee, who repaired an old black suit coat and lengthened a pair of light blue cotton trousers for Prosser to wear over his uniform. Marceau arranged, thru his brother-in-law, who worked at the district police station, to get Prosser a false identity card. On Sept. 16, 1943, 13 days after he was shot down, Marceau took him by train to Paris and bought him a railroad ticket to Nevers, 135 miles south of the capital. Prosser boarded the train feeling terribly alone.

INSTALMENT XI.

The train, more than 15 minutes late in starting, finally pulled out of Paris thru a dull and dreary industrial district, and then thru the suburbs which were not much cheerier. I continued to look out of the window, but merely to see this part of the French countryside, which I had not visited before. I began to think more and more of the pleasure just a few puffs of a cigaret could be, and eventually giving way to temptation, I went to the W. C. for a very short smoke. When I returned to my place in the corridor, I saw a very sturdy looking suitcase with no owner in sight. My painful ankle impelled me to waste no time in sitting on it.

"A very rural looking man . . . glared at me as if I were a usurper of his property."

I began to feel hungry, and the thought of those hard boiled eggs that Mere Louise put in my sack made me even hungrier, but I was afraid that the French had some special manner of eating them, and that I would betray my nationality if I were to eat them in my American way.

While I was chewing my crust, a very rural looking man came into the corridor and stood on the other side of the suitcase. He looked as if he were unquestionably the owner of my seat, and he glared at me as if I were a usurper of his property. He made me rather uneasy, and wishing to avoid any sort of argument I rose to my feet with an effort to be as inconspicuous as possible. He quickly grabbed the case, moved it up the corridor, and took a firm stand between me and the valise.

I began to think more and more about those eggs, for the bread had done little to assuage my hunger. Altho not very pleasant, the W. C. did offer the only secluded place where I could eat my eggs without the fear of being apprehended for my strange eating habits. After five more minutes of indecision my hunger forced me to take this course of action. I made my way by the people to the W. C., and when I had closed and carefully locked the door, started my feast. Many bits of shell slipped out of my hand while I was eating, and by the time I had finished the floor seemed to be covered with them.

I returned to the place where I had been before, and stayed there until the odd man who was on his way to Vichy came up and stood beside me. As he had spoken to almost every one in the corridor, an immediate action to save myself from this fate had to be taken. I spread my newspaper on the floor and sat on it. I soon discovered that in this position the trouser leg of my uniform was visible; I could not have been more worried or uncomfortable. Squirming and stretching, and surreptitious pulling of my blue civilian trousers failed to hide this bit of army material, but the problem was solved by an unending stream of people trying to climb over me to the W. C. When they stopped rushing by, saying, "Don't bother to stand up," and kicking me or stepping in my lap, I had a chance to scramble to my feet and make effective clothing adjustments.

Finally I felt that I had pulled these bothersome underpants sufficiently out of sight, and for about half an hour I absently gazed out of the window. By slow degrees, I became aware of a woman who was staring at me. I was terrified, and trying to be more nonchalant than ever before in my life, I rose to my feet and left that part of the corridor.

When I felt I was fairly well out of her sight, I stopped in front of a compartment door and began to ponder, "Should I leave the train at the next station, or will it be safe to go on with that certainly suspicious woman so near?"

I was prevented from reaching a decision by some one nudging my side—I quickly turned around to see only a kindly looking business man pointing to a seat in the compartment. He said, "En avez vous besoin?" [Do you need it?] I mumbled yes and took the seat.

A pleasant young girl sat directly across from me reading a novel. As we neared Nevers her interest appeared to wane, and many times I caught her glancing at me, but I do not think her motive was suspicion. The remainder of the passengers was made up of workers and small business men, with one more prosperous bourgeois next to me. He looked a man of integrity, ability, confidence, and decency that I thought would characterize a resistance leader.

However, I decided that asking any one on the train was too dangerous, for there was no escape, particularly with all those Germans in the rear carriages.

Just as we approached Nevers, I noticed the sleeves of my battle dress poking out from underneath my jacket sleeve. Surreptitious pulling and adjustment was of no avail, and I had to go to the W. C. twice before I could be sure these military cuffs would stay out of sight. Renee certainly had not shortened the arms and legs of my uniform enough.

Finally the train reached Nevers. This was the town in which I had hopes for underground assistance. The first view was not reassuring. The station platform was thick with Germans—Wehrmacht, tank corps, luftwaffe, and some strange looking men in black uniforms which I first thought were those of the Gestapo, but later learned were worn by German military rail movement personnel.

Making a great effort to be nonchalant, I walked to the ticket barrier. On the next track there was a train loaded with German troops. The soldiers looked motley, but in the first class carriages there were many of the well uniformed Prussian type air force officers. I hurried on toward the barrier, and when I felt sure there was no one inspecting identity cards there, quickly walked thru, giving up my ticket. I walked out of the station into the square and stopped in front of a post about eight feet high with 10 different signs written in German, giving the directions to the field commander and other agencies which I had no desire to visit.

It was in a state of near despondency that I walked down the main street of this little town looking for a place to eat. After the train trip I was quite hungry, and remembering Marcel's advice, I set out in search of a little workmen's cafe.

After a five minute walk, I found myself out of the restaurant district. I was glad of this, and turned down a little side street thinking that there the possibility of finding a cafe frequented by workers was greater. I had become almost desperately hungry, so after another five minutes' unsuccessful search, I asked the first person I saw, "Ou se trouve un petit restaurant?" [Where could I find a little restaurant?] His appearance impressed me as being that of a peasant, young bank clerk; but a minute passed, and he had made no answer. I was about to repeat the question, when he said in German, "Ich verstehe nicht." [I don't understand.]

How terrified I was! It seemed certain to me that the hand he pulled out of his pocket was holding a pair of handcuffs, but it was only being raised to greet some friends of his who approached us and led him off to luncheon. One of them glanced back at me, and it was only then that I collected myself and realized I would look a little odd if I continued to stand there, as if dazed.

It seemed obvious that the only restaurants were centered in the area near the station, so I went back to the main street and looked around again. In spite of all the care I took to choose a low class cafe, I was very deceived by the outside of one, and once inside discovered it was the best place in town, with orchestra stand and dance floor.

None of the staff paid the slightest attention to me, and I shuffled about from one place to another without getting any service, but as angry as I was, I did not dare to complain, but tried to look helpless enough to arouse some one's pity. Eventually, a waitress did lead me to where another man was sitting, and asked me what I wanted. Just as I was about to say, hors d'oeuvre, I noticed the lapel pin of my tablemate. It was a Nazi eagle—its owner was either a German or a French collaborator. Whether I was so frightened that I could not open my mouth, or whether I realized the danger of exposing my American accent, I don't know. I was too confused and upset to do anything but throw my food tickets on the table. The waitress snatched up a few and rushed away.

I did not have to say one word during the whole meal, which, considering my company, was a great blessing, altho the man left within a short time and the meal was not quite so pleasant as I had first anticipated. Other Germans, all civilian administrators for the department, were sitting around a table. The only other difficulty I had with the luncheon occurred when the check was presented. I could not read the French figures and thought the amount might have been anything from 50 to 500 francs. I meekly put a 100 franc note on the table, but I had not made a mistake, for it was accepted and much change returned. I tried not to leave the fantastically high tip that we Americans tend to do in foreign countries, and then left the cafe.

Symphony Aids' Work Praised at 10th Anniversary Luncheon

BY JUDITH CASS.

CELEBRATING their 10th anniversary yesterday at luncheon in the Casino, members of the woman's committee of the Chicago Symphony orchestra must have felt halos shining around their heads after listening to the words of praise heaped on them by Edward L. Ryerson, president of the orchestral association; George Kuyper, general manager of the symphony, Désiré Defauw, conductor, and Mrs. Telfer MacArthur, president of the committee.

Mrs. MacArthur related the history of the organization, which at first only sold subscription tickets and later turned to assisting with raising money for the orchestra's deficit as well. Concrete evidence of its success was shown in a comparison of the figures for 1940, when the committee raised $17,950, with last year's sum, which had climbed to $28,900.

The committee evolved gradually from 1928, when Mrs. Clyde M. Carr was invited to become a member of the orchestral association, its first woman member. In 1934 Mrs. Frederic W. Upham and Mrs. Henry Sturges, then Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, joined the association. They were the first and second heads of the committee, which now has grown to 250 members, operating in 15 city and suburban communities. With so many women devoting their energy to the orchestra, Mr. Ryerson suggested renaming the committee the women's committee, which Mrs. MacArthur laughingly agreed shall be done as soon as the woman's committee stationery is used up.

Mrs. MacArthur yesterday welcomed three new community groups into the fold, a Barrington group, headed by Mrs. Paul B. Magnuson Jr.; a Kenilworth one, headed by Mrs. Arthur Wakeley, and a Lake Forest one, with Mrs. William F. Peter, as chairman. She also welcomed two new vice chairmen of the committee, Mrs. Frank D. Mayer and Mrs. Edward Morris; a new member, Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, and a new publicity chairman, Mrs. Robert McDougal Jr.

Mr. Ryerson will preside at a luncheon meeting of the Friends of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra at 12:30 p. m. Monday in the Crystal room of the Palmer House, after which the drive for sustaining members for next season will begin.

On the Calendar.

Members of the junior auxiliary of Children's Memorial hospital are busy collecting hats under the direction of Mrs. Roy Flannery, assisted by Mrs. Philip D. Armour Jr., to be sold at the annual spring millinery sale March 16 of the White Elephant Rummage shop at 27 E. Ohio st. Four days later the shop will hold its annual book sale, for which the committee expects to have 2,000 volumes, new books as well as rare editions, ready for purchasers. The books are being sorted and marked by Mrs. Augustus K. Maxwell and her assistants, Mrs. William B. Greenlee and Mrs. Joseph King.

Mrs. Charles K. Foster has succeeded Mrs. James C. Hutchins as president of the auxiliary board of the hospital, which annually cares for 3,500 children in the hospital and 9,000 in its clinic. Mrs. Hutchins is remaining on the board as vice chairman of the finance committee, of which Mrs. William O. Hunt is chairman.

Altho not all the past presidents of the English Speaking union who have been invited to sit at the speaker's table at tomorrow's meeting will be able to attend, Mrs. John Zane, widow of the club's past president, and Samuel Rinsker, who held the office a few years ago, will be on hand to hear Frederic Eggleston, Australian minister to Washington, discuss "Australia and the Pacific." Also at the speaker's table will be Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Hecht, Mr. and Mrs. Laird Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ballard, Miss Eloise ReQua, and Mrs. Ralph Chapman.

News of Births.

Capt. and Mrs. William Donald Regan [June Peacock] are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter, Terry Kathleen, Feb. 27 in the Evanston hospital. Capt. Regan flew here from his marine air base in El Toro, Cal., the day after his daughter's arrival and will be here until next week. The baby is a grandchild of Mr. and Mrs. William Gilbert Peacock of Evanston and of Mrs. William D. Regan of Pendleton, Ore.

Flowered 'Balloon' Hat Hits New High in Headgear

This flowered "balloon" hat, an original by Tatiana du Plessix, reaches a new high because of the outline. It is made of American beauty roses fastened to a skull hugging straw and of flesh colored veiling for soft contrast. It is available in a Chicago shop.

Spring Toppers Most Exciting in Five Years

BY REA SEEGER.

New spring hats designed with great imagination and true creative ability stress the new silhouette and unquestionably are the most exciting creations of the last five years. Tatiana du Plessix, a French maker of unusual millinery creations, presents in her current collection hats that are not only sensational in structure but super-flattering and feminine. They are important models because they're going to change the silhouette of dress or coat, suit or ensemble, as well as reduce the size of accessories, especially bags.

Du Plessix hats add six to eight inches to the height, especially those called "balloon" hats. They're made of huge flowers fastened to a straw disc in regulation globular outlines, hence the name. These must be seen to be completely appreciated, and, tho it takes the spirit of adventure to try them on after years of microscopic dinks and skull caps, or nothing at all, the effort pays startling dividends. You really acquire a new and elegant distinction. The so-called "posture hats" sound a bit gymnastic, but they're lovely, flowered affairs. Felt, straw, and sheers make these charmers.

The best hat trick is the scarf model. You'll find them of straw or of felt, made very simply and equipped with bands thru which contrasting colored scarves of chiffon, silk, or of veiling are pulled in various arrangements. These are extremely versatile because scarves can be changed to blend or accent any suit or costume. Dramatic profile hats come in three widths or sizes, small, medium, and very large, and are made of straw, ribbon, felt, or fabric.

Typical headdress hats are composed of many small bows of satin ribbon or flowers. One white lilac creation and the very chic model of shiny black satin ribbon are outstanding examples of this face or brow framing idea. Striped ribbon trim, achieved by sewing three colored narrow ribbons together, and the painted white dotted ribbon trim on another are bright examples of this resourceful designer. Du Plessix originals are displayed in a Chicago shop.

New Cotton Allotment Set for 6 to 7 Million Children's Garments

Washington, D. C., March 7 (AP).—The war production board announced today that cotton fabrics for 6 to 7 million children's garments will be allotted manufacturers within a few days. The yardage will be in addition to that previously allotted for low and medium priced children's clothing, WPB said.

About 12½ million yards of outing flannel, print cloths, broadcloths, poplins, lawns, and chambrays will be channeled into 14 types of children's garments. Manufacturers will not be required to apply for priority aid, since the fabric will be allotted in proportion to the yardage each manufacturer already has received.

The new allotment will provide children's dresses, overalls, and coveralls, toddlers' dresses, infants' dresses, jacket type pajamas, one piece pajamas, two piece button-on pajamas, infants' gertrudes, infants' kimonos, infants' gowns, creepers, rompers, and crawlers.

Thru the Looking Glass

The art of hair styling has made long strides recently toward the simple, easy-to-care-for type of coiffure which is practical for everyday wear. Elaborate hair styles that required the services of a hair dresser to put it in shape are being discarded for the kind that milady can comb herself, and we all can be thankful.

Right now one of the loop beauty salons has at the disposal of its customers the consultation services of an expert hair stylist who is a firm believer in this trend toward the simple, becoming coiffure.

Not for him a static, currently modish coiffure given to each customer with slight variation, regardless of its suitability to face and feature. Each of his coiffures is individually styled to suit the needs of the customer. We should add here that this expert also belongs to the school which thinks hair should be styled with an eye to adaptability to the types of hats a woman ordinarily wears.

Many of his coiffures are worked out with the new "circular" cut, evolved by a group of experts in the hair dressing field and which operators at this salon are trained to give. Hair styled after this manner is shorter, easy to comb, and keeps in place, flattering and youthful in effect. These are casual, comfortable hair-dos that even the most butter-fingered woman can manage herself.

And if the word "shorter" scares you, rest assured that you won't be shorn like a spring lamb, for here is a stylist who believes that if hair is more becoming when it's longish in effect, it should be left that way.

Girl Shared by 2 Brothers Out of Luck

Q.—"There are two boys in my problem, both brothers. One is 19 and in the army, and the other is 18 and in the navy. When the soldier was home I went out with him several times, and when the sailor came home a week later, I went out with him almost every night. The soldier wrote serious letters when he got back to camp, and the sailor not so serious. When the soldier came home again several months later, I had one date with him, and he broke the next one. After five days I called him to straighten the matter out but he had no explanation. The sailor happened to come home on a surprise leave then and he didn't call me either—after all those letters he wrote. I was supposed to see the soldier off at the train [he asked me that the first night he was home; he also asked me to go steady], but when I called him up about it he thought it would be better if I didn't. So both went back to their stations without my seeing them again. Now what I want to know is this: Did they both refuse to see me because each knew the other liked me and they wanted to be kind to the other?"

A.—Brother, don't mind sharing shirts, ties, and even the last of their folding lettuce—but they won't share girl friends. Chances are 10 to one that these fellows compared notes and then the soldier said to the sailor, "Well, she's all yours," and the sailor said, "No, thanks—I think I'll get one that's all my own." Next time either pick fellows who aren't brothers—or be smart enough to censor your own mail.

Q.—"A year ago I met a young fellow and got to like him, and I thought he liked me, too. He was shy, but finally he asked me over to his house to play cards one evening. I'm a shy person, too, and I am afraid the evening didn't quite turn out as well as expected but I kept on liking him. I am busy because I am a junior in high school and do outside work, too. Anyway, I didn't see him again, but about a month ago his mother and father came to dine at our restaurant and told me that their son had gone into service and I asked them for his address. They gladly gave it to me. That very night I wrote him a letter—just told him the general happenings round home and things like that. I was almost sure he would answer but already a month has gone by . . ."

A.—A month in the army can be a very short time. Wait a week or two. If you don't hear from him then you might send him a card on his birthday or the next holiday or else just write to him once again. You know he is shy—it might take two letters to make him realize what a wonderful friend you really are.

Kappa Kappa Gamma Dinner Is Postponed

The joint dinner meeting of Chicago Intercollegiate Alumnae association of Kappa Kappa Gamma with the sorority's Business Girls' group, originally scheduled at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow, has been postponed until the same hour Tuesday night. The gathering will be held in the Chicago College club.

White Collar GIRL

She Learned to Listen.

She was a painfully shy youngster, hiding her timidity in silence, until she discovered that by listening she could make people like her. Today, one of the extremely few women advertising media directors in the country, Eugenie Stamler is profiting by her rare ability to listen. In conversations she finds she gets the most from her business contacts by not interrupting, by hearing the other person thru, by making mental notes to hold in reserve until the one who is talking is thru. When she does talk, it should be reported, she has one of the most beautiful speaking voices this white collar interviewer ever heard!

The diffident girl, who now holds a position with responsibility for the expenditure of impressive sums of money, wanted to be a lawyer but decided she was much too bashful to plead a case in court and surely would be relegated to desk work. So the idea of law was discarded and her first job out of school was assistant space buyer in an advertising agency. It was a two-part job, because it included bookkeeping.

One Girl Office.

The agency, a small one, saw some troubled times so that Eugenie became the only employe. Left to her own devices and initiative, she rented out space and made enough money to pay for her own office, her telephone, and her salary until the agency got back on its feet once more.

During this time her ambition was mixed with admiration for her boss—ambition, admiration for a good boss, and a number of good breaks all were jumbled together. She began to contact clients. When her employer retired, one of the clients, a large cigaret account, moved her along to another agency where the account was placed, and there she is today, head of a department employing some 25 or 30 space buyers, director of all printed word advertising for the agency.

"There is no part of it that I don't like," she says.

Live and Learn.

For girls with a career-eye on a job such as hers she enumerates the qualifications: "A basic knowledge of mathematics, a knowledge of markets, and an understanding of disbursements because when you are spending a lot of money—and not your own—you have to be careful."

A knowledge of people, she says, also is necessary, gained either by door to door selling or counter selling. "Get as good an education as you can," she advises, "and then don't stop studying."

With all her intuitive sense—and good common sense—one characteristic stands paramount. This soft spoken woman advertising executive knows not only how to listen—she knows to whom to listen. For, on her first job, an offer came from another agency, at three times the salary she was getting. Did she take it? Why not? Because her boss told her, "You're much too young; they will expect too much of you; you are not ready."

Today she is well repaid for listening to the sane, helpful voice which told her to wait another chance for success. It came!

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

Just a Matter of Understanding.

Photographers, usually most coöperative boys in town, have a mad on at Bob Hope because he wouldn't let them shoot all thru the show he did for Look awards. Lens boys claim Bob was uncoöperative. If they'd put themselves in his place they'd have done exactly the same thing. It was his show. He was a busy beaver, fitting in many voices during a half hour, which is no mean feat. The bulbs can blind you, and Bob said to them, "After it's over we'll give you everything you want." . . . I asked a friend who'd returned from the South Pacific if he'd seen Jerome Zerbe. Answer was, "No, but I think you'll appreciate this story. While taking some pictures on a destroyer he was topside. There were planes coming over. Jerry paid no heed but stooped over to get some new bulbs out of his little black bag. And the only one who missed being injured was Jerome." That was one time he stooped and conquered.

Up Here for Sunshine.

The Buddy Lightons are back from their Arizona ranch for one week only, to show Darryl Zanuck the script of "Anna and King of Siam." Talbott Jennings, who's been working on it with Buddy, remained at their ranch. The snow's so deep up there they had to get a plow to get 'em out. . . . The Cookie Fairchilds are about to welcome a little maestro. . . . Vincent Minelli is preparing for his marriage to Judy Garland by building three extra rooms on his hillside home. The house is going higher and higher, but there still isn't land enough to build a swimming pool—unless they plant one in the cellar. . . . Anita Loos, who's doing the screen version of "The Gay Illiterate," says the leading character is just a small time girl who made good in the big city. . . . Dale Evans bought one of Roy Rogers' horses. Roy's army bound.

Wouldn't You? Sure You Would.

I was talking to a Red Cross member from San Francisco who was smiling over a communique from the army. She was asked to round up 65 jars of cold cream, lipstick, powder and powder puffs, and have them at the Letterman hospital the following day for 65 nurses who had been prisoners at Bataan. When they arrived in Honolulu they were asked what they wanted most in the world. They replied, "Lipstick, cold cream, powder, and powder puffs." Sure, it was waiting for them. . . . Ken Murray got a letter from a G. I. in Hawaii: "You know so much about Hollywood, smarty-pants—where does Lana Turner live?" . . . Joe Reichman met an old friend at the Biltmore bowl, and said to him, "What's wrong with your wife? She's wearing a patch over one eye." "O, no!" said the guy. "That's her new hat." . . . Seen on the bottom of a menu: "Mary had a little lamb—wish we had one, too."

ON THE AISLE

Burton Holmes got his "Yucatan" lecture on in Orchestra hall last night by the skin of his teeth and adventurers in the audience liked it that way. It seems last summer Ted Phillips got so bewitched with Guatemala, next week's show, that he couldn't get to Yucatan. Mr. Holmes hurriedly sent Guy Haselton, but between one delay and another, the crucial films didn't get here until Tuesday. Mr. Holmes was delayed by flood waters in Cincinnati, so when "Yucatan" went on the screen last night he had had just three hours to cut and assemble, and no time at all to prepare a lecture.

Well, you know Mr. Holmes. In his second 50 years of amiable chat which somehow holds so much painless information he isn't going to be upset by a little thing like no lecture. He went right along with his business, and put the audience on the staff, if not the pay roll. In a few minutes it was established that anything applauded would not be cut. That will leave quite a lot of "Yucatan," but it will be more compact and fluent for the week-end customers.

It isn't the finest of the Holmes lot, but it is a colorful tour of the flat, riverless country with its sharp contrasts of light and shade, and it saves for its climax the ancient Mayan empire of pyramids, human sacrifice, and the great stadium with renowned acoustics which, alas, take sound as well as color and motion to reveal their wonders to an audience.

Ballet Notes.

But don't get excited—they are New York's now and not ours until next season. Ballet Theater opens a month of performances in the Metropolitan Opera house April 1, with Antony Tudor's "Undertow" its major novelty. This is the psychological murder ballet suggested by John Van Druten, which Toumanova will dance to music by William Schuman and in costumes and setting by Raymond Breinin. Agnes de Mille has revised "Tally-Ho," and Leonide Massine's "Mile. Angot" is on the list. Argentinita will be a guest with her troupe, and Markova and Dolin are expected over from "Seven Lively Arts" for a special show or two. Thomas Beecham will be guest conductor. Ballet Russe, meanwhile, is offering Balanchine's revival of "Mozartiana" and Ruth Page's "Frankie and Johnny," the latter billed so often it must be drawing. Mary Ellen Moylan, who was a shooting star in Chicago, is having a special success for herself.

Stage Notes.

The Theater Guild says its next Shakespeare will be "The Winter's Tale," due to tour before going to New York. The guild will have to pull something out of the hat to fill its Chicago subscription quota of plays. . . . Two naval reserve officers, Lt. Comdr. Richard Barthelmess and Lt. Richard Lockridge, have written a play about anti-submarine warfare called "E. S. F." It means "Eastern Sea Frontier," and the navy has cleared it.

Inquiries.

About a certain play title—"It's wind, but is it searching?" About Brailowsky's recital — "You said notes spilled from his fingers. I would have said his fingers dripped notes." Well, liquid, anyway. About me—"How could you write that about 'Harriet?' Didn't any one ever tell you about the Civil war?" Ma'am, I was born on the border, where they are still fighting it.

That some consumers do not understand the meaning of the term "enriched flour" is plain when a letter like this comes in: "I always had good luck with my bread until recently. Do you think my trouble is in using enriched flour?"

Enriched flour is different from the flour we used to get in only one way—it is better. The baking quality is exactly the same, but there are more minerals and vitamins in the flour. In the milling process much of the food value of the grain is lost. "Enrichment" is the process that restores it. Baking failures cannot be ascribed to enrichment. Another cause should be looked for.

Many of Chicago's finest restaurants are doing big business in sea food now that there are no steaks to offer patrons. Pompano, red snapper, soft shell crabs, lobsters, and shrimps dominate menus. Roast beef, rare, can't be missed much when there are such delicacies to take its place.

Plainer fish like smelts, herring, mackerel, and cod are getting more attention, too, now that meat counters are bare. Perhaps our tastes will change, and when meat comes back again we'll leave it on the butcher's cutting block! Ha! I don't think so, either!

Two cucumbers and 1½ pounds of halibut make a good dinner for six persons. Add a green vegetable, fruit salad, hot biscuits, and a simple dessert to complete the meal.

[Serves six.]

2 tablespoons fat
1½ pounds halibut
Salt, pepper
⅔ cup evaporated milk
2 large cucumbers

Melt fat in baking pan. Add fish and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Add water and milk. Pare cucumbers, cut into halves crosswise, then quarters lengthwise. Lay around fish. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour.

There'll be more food for civilians after the war with Germany has been won. Until then we can expect less meat, fewer chickens, smaller supplies of cheese, sugar, canned vegetables, lard, and butter. For a while there'll be fewer potatoes, too. It is likely that most of us will have changed our eating habits quite radically within the next few months, if we haven't already. There is plenty of food to eat, but not the kind we've always had.

THE QUESTION.

WHERE ASKED.

THE ANSWERS.

Richard Mooney, 10, of 521 Chestnut st.—Because she's kind to me. She treats me well. She likes me very much. She lets me go wherever I want to. I think she's the best because she treats every one in my family right. She loves us all and has no favorites—that's why we all love her and think she's swell.

Jenny Wright, 10, of 2044 Lincoln av.—She's the best because she's my mother. She buys my clothes, takes care of me, gets me up for school in the morning, gets me ready for mass on Sunday, etc. She wouldn't rather have any one else for a daughter and I certainly wouldn't rather have any one else for a mother.

Josephine Tamborello, 9, of 867 Sedgwick st.—When I want something to eat she makes it for me. When I can't find my clothes she helps me look for them. Mother buys me clothes, is nice to me, takes care of me, and keeps my clothes clean. I think she's the best because she loves me more than any one else could.

Margaret Nolznd, 13, of 860 Cleveland av.—God gave her to me to love and she's my mother. She's a good cook and takes care of us like any mother would do if she loved her children. She gets us ready for church and school, washes and irons our clothes, and does everything you ask her to. She asks nothing in return.

Donnie Albinese, 8, of 167 Institute pl.—I love my mother dearly because she is good to me when I am sick in bed. She takes good care of me other times, too—buys me clothes and toys and gives me money. She bought me a blue sailor suit and I get to wear it on Sundays. I wouldn't want any one but her for a mother.

Leo Silbestrini, 10, of 209 Locust st.—My mother is very pretty. If I need money, I know I can get it from her. I get to go to movies. Mom cooks for me and boy, can she cook! Of course, I haven't known any one else's mother like I know mine, but if I had my choice I'd take mine because she must be the best.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 spade	Pass	Pass	2 hearts
3 spades	3 no trump	Pass	5 diamonds
Pass	5 hearts	Pass	6 hearts
Pass	Pass	Pass

Today's hand is of a special interest in that it demonstrates the number of mistakes that can be committed by a foursome on one hand. West opened with one spade, North passed and East quite properly made no effort to keep the bidding open. South bid two hearts [the proper procedure with a hand this good is to double]. West bid two spades. It is this type of bidding that the average player cannot resist. With a partner who has announced that he is trickless to bid again with this holding is not only barking at the moon, but invites disaster. North's failure to double this bid is the outstanding error of the deal. The collection of 800 points would have been routine. When this juicy plum had escaped their grip, North and South finally arrived at a reasonable contract of four hearts.

West cashed the king and ace of spades and shifted to a diamond, which declarer won in dummy and took the heart finesse. When this lost he was obliged to give up another trump trick and resign himself to down one.

It should have been a simple matter to fulfill the contract. The heart finesse was pointless because West, beyond any question of a doubt, held the king of hearts. The only hope to make the hand, therefore, lay in the chance that West had only two hearts and that the king would fall on the second round. The proper play, consequently, was the ace of hearts followed by a small one, and the rest of the tricks could be claimed.

TOMORROW'S PROBLEM.

Meat Every Day —For Health's Sake

"Feast or famine" may appeal to some, but the wise homemaker stretches her family's red points so she can serve meat every day of the week. This makes menu planning easier, satisfies the family's appetite and assures her family of getting a daily supply of highest quality body-building proteins. Today's meat is a real point stretcher—one you'll be proud to serve because it's so tasty.

B-V MEAT LOAF . . . STRETCHES RED POINTS

3 tsp. Wilson's B-V
¼ cup hot water
1¼ tsp. salt
3 tbsp. onion, minced
1 lb. ground meat, all beef or ½ beef, and ½ veal

Combine bread and milk and let stand while preparing remaining ingredients. Add B-V (dissolved in the hot water) and remaining ingredients in the order given. Mix very thoroughly and pack into a 4-cup, well-greased ring mold. Place up-side-down in a shallow baking pan and bake in a 325° F. oven for 30 min. Remove mold and continue to bake at 350° F. for 25 minutes.

EFFICIENCY PLUS

The meat loaf may be molded early in the day, and those delicious little potato balls may be made out of cold, boiled potatoes and baked the last 25 minutes with the loaf. It's another "jiffy idea" for these busy days. Complete the menu with cole slaw, bread and butter, a beverage and apple cobbler.

Rich, Brown Gravy

Naturally you'll want lots of good, rich, brown B-V gravy, too—the gravy with a truly delicious meat flavor. Serve B-V gravy liberally on bread, too, for B-V gravy is not only good to eat, but it's good for you as well . . . it's a good source of iron and copper, so essential to the formation of red blood cells, as well as the important B vitamins, riboflavin and niacin.

MARCH IS NATIONAL BREAD & GRAVY MONTH

Franconia potatoes, we call those potato balls pictured today. They're simply browned potatoes—browned in delicious Wilson's B-V—and may be any size you wish. Here's how to make them: Cut leftover potatoes into desired size, or leave whole. Roll in mixture of 2 tbsp. B-V dissolved in 1 tbsp. hot water to which 1 tbsp. melted fat (Wilson's Bake Rite or Certified Bacon drippings) has been added. Transfer the well-coated potatoes to baking pan in which 2 tbsp. fat has been melted. Bake in 350° F. oven for 25 min., turning 2 or 3 times to brown well. Allow one hour or more if you start with uncooked potatoes.

Sincerely,
George Rector

VON STEUBEN TO FINALS; ROUTS SOUTH SHORE, 52-35

'44 CHAMPIONS BEATEN IN 4TH QUARTER DRIVE

Title Game Set for Saturday at Lane.

Defeat, its first in 27 league games, came to South Shore High school's senior basketball team yesterday afternoon as 4,000 school fans packed De La Salle gymnasium to watch an underdog Von Steuben quintet rout the Tars, 52 to 35.

The defeat knocked the Tars from the City league play-offs and advanced Von Steuben to the finals for an all-north section meeting. Von Steuben, which finished second in the north race, will meet Senn High school's Bulldogs, north section champions, in the title game Saturday. Senn, victors in the University of Chicago pre-season tournament, advanced to the finals by defeating Lindblom Tuesday. Senn is undefeated in league competition, while Von Steuben's only loss was administered by the Bulldogs in regular season play.

New Team Almost Does It.

South Shore, coached by Tony Maffia, last season won the league title and placed third in the state tournament in Champaign. This year it was without a regular from the 1944 championship squad, but managed to win the south section title undefeated, and entered yesterday's game as favorite.

Don Cottin, South Shore forward, started the Tars off to an early lead with a free throw after one minute and forty-five seconds had elapsed in the first quarter. Von Steuben went into the lead on Forward Dick Karzen's field goal, and from there the lead seesawed thruout the first half.

South Shore held a one point advantage, 10 to 9, at the end of the first period. Play continued to be contested closely with the score tied six times before the half ended. With seconds remaining in the second quarter and the score deadlocked at 18 all, Karzen scored a basket to give Von Steuben a 20 to 18 half time lead.

Fendley Out on Fouls.

Starting the third period, Von Steuben maintained its advantage and by the conclusion of the quarter had run up a 38 to 27 lead. Thirty-five seconds before the period ended, Jake Fendley, star scorer and sophomore forward on the Tar team, left the game on fouls. From there on the South Shore offense lagged and Von Steuben had little trouble.

Fendley, who regularly plays center, had been expected to hold Gene Schanbaum, Von Steuben center and leading scorer, in check, and the contest was expected to produce a scoring duel between the two. Each scored 15 points, Fendley on six field goals and three free throws, Schanbaum on five field goals and five free throws.

Winner to State Finals.

The Von Steuben-Senn title game will be played at 2:30 p. m. Saturday afternoon in the Lane Tech gymnasium. The winner of Saturday's game not only will be City league champion but will represent Chicago in the state tournament next week in Champaign, and will meet the Catholic league champions in Chicago Stadium April 7 in the feature contest of the annual charity double header sponsored by Mayor Kelly.

Action in the City league prep race will swing toward the juniors today with Marshall's Commandos in the role of favorites, meeting Gage Park of the central section in the first semi-final game. The round will be completed tomorrow when Tilden of the central section meets the west section Tuley team. No play-off date for the junior championship game has been arranged, but it will be played probably next week.

CAVARRETTA, 9 OTHERS MISSING AS 6 CUBS LEAVE FOR FRENCH LICK

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs' "Chicago party," an indeterminate group numerically until a few moments before the train pulled out of the Dearborn station at 9:15 o'clock last night, was scheduled to arrive at the team's training base at French Lick, Ind., before dawn this morning. What the early birds will do today in the way of preparing for the National league championship race will be up to Manager Charley Grimm [who has been at the spa several days] the weather man, and that brook turned torrent—Lost river.

The indeterminate number grew into six at train departing time and Traveling Secretary Robert C. Lewis made it seven. Some of the players arrived at the station before Robby and just as fears were being voiced that maybe the traveling secretary, too, had decided to delay his departure, he hove into view.

Hanyzewski—and Five Others.

Ed Hanyzewski was the only established Cub among the half dozen. More important than who went probably was the failure of Capt. Phil Cavarretta to show up. He had been one of the 16 invited to join the party. Cavarretta had a conference earlier in the day with General Manager Jim Gallagher, but there was no announcement at either end of what transpired.

Cavarretta does not have a telephone in his Evanston home and while Gallagher has a telephone he sometimes chooses not to talk over it. It was presumed that the veteran first baseman, a 4-F who is engaged in war work, later will make his decision on playing this season. Cavarretta's .321, his best in a 10 year Cub career, led the team last year. It was reported from Nashville, Tenn., that Charles Gassaway, rookie Cub southpaw, will remain on his job with the Tennessee highway patrol.

Also missing last night were Pitchers Paul Erickson, Bob Chipman, and Ray Prim; Infielders Pete Elko, Don Johnson, and Bill Schuster, and Outfielders Andy Pafko, Harry [Peanuts] Lowrey, and Frank Secory. This made 10 negatives in all to six positives.

Two Chicagoans in Group.

Joining Hanyzewski and Lewis were five rookies, Pitchers Al Nusser, a Chicago semi-pro, and George Hennessey, 32 year old minor leaguer; Catcher Joe Stephenson, obtained on waivers from the New York Giants; Outfielder Virgil Garriott, who hit .286 for Los Angeles in 1944, and Infielder Johnny Ostrowski, a Chicagoan up for his second spring test with the Cubs. He batted .282 for Los Angeles last season.

Others on the Cub squad have been instructed to report to French Lick direct from their homes.

A workout will be conducted today, outdoors or indoors, and the training start will be almost two weeks earlier than the pushoff at

Senators Fail to Get Quorum for First Drill

Washington, D. C., March 7 (AP).—It wasn't much like pre-war days when big league teams trained down south, but the Washington Senators today at least made a start towards another baseball season. They held the major leagues' first spring drill of the 1945 campaign in weather that was chilly and on ground that was damp at their College Park, Md., camp.

Only three men, Pitchers Dutch Leonard and Roger Wolff, and Catcher Al Evans, were on deck, but enough coaches and town boys chased around to increase the number in uniform up to a dozen or so. Later, John Niggeling, veteran knuckleballer, arrived.

Sullivan in Service.

A check of the Senators' roster disclosed that most of last year's regulars should be available, with the principal exception of Shortstop Johnny Sullivan, who has been accepted for military service.

Stan Spence, slugging outfielder, and Mickey Haefner, pitcher, are the most vulnerable, being classified 1-A. But the Senators figure, barring tighter man power controls, they can bank on these seasoned players:

But Each Has Two Legs.

PITCHERS—Leonard; Wolff, recently reëxamined and again rejected, bad foot; Niggeling, 40; Marino Pieretti, west coast rookie, draft status undisclosed. [They may also have Alex Carrasquel, South American, and Bill Lefebvre, relief hurler, giving them seven experienced moundsmen, counting Haefner, with whom to start.]

INFIELD— Joe Kuhel, first base, 39; Fred Vaughn, second, recently operated for on leg injury; George Myatt, shortstop, plate in knee; Harlond Clift, third, rancher with knocked down shoulder, and Gil Torres, utility, Cuban.

OUTFIELD—George Case, deferred for six months following shoulder operation; Jake Powell, 35, plate in head; Spence, until called, and George Binks, 4-F, who batted .374 last year for Milwaukee.

GOLDEN GLOVES STARS RETURN FOR TITLE BIDS

Finals Tomorrow in Chicago Stadium.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Most of the 32 survivors of the 18th Tournament of Champions, one of the most stirring in the history of the Tribune Charities, Inc.'s amateur boxing show, are due in town today to get set for their final thrusts at national acclaim, diamond studded golden gloves, and places on Chicago's Intercity team, their objectives in tomorrow night's finals in the Chicago Stadium.

Twenty-nine of the finest fighters from 15 out of town centers and Chicago's own candidates—Jackie Boyd, flyweight; Bernard Paige, lightweight, and Luke Baylark, heavyweight—will comprise the field in tomorrow night's program of 24 bouts, 16 semi-final engagements, and eight championship battles. All of the higher priced tickets long have been disposed of but there are plenty of reserved seats available at $1.20. It is probable the big west side arena will house one of the largest crowds in the history of the event.

Seven Stay Here for Week.

Seven of the 29 quarter-final winners, four members of the Los Angeles Times' team, and three of the Fort Worth Star Telegram's squad, remained over from the Tournament of Champions and got in some hard training. The Californians are Aldo Lu Pari, flyweight; Roscoe Scally, lightweight; John Garcia, middleweight; and Adolfo Quijano, light heavyweight. The Fort Worth boys are Hector Marquez, bantamweight; Gilbert Garcia, welterweight; and Corp. Tom Attra, light heavyweight who won the 1942 title.

Today's first arrivals will be Kansas City's five man squad, the top outfit in the battle for the coveted team trophy. They'll pull in at 9:15 o'clock this morning in Dearborn st. station. The team consists of Frank Rivera, flyweight; Bob Jarvis, bantamweight; Jack Darthard, featherweight; Ray Spurlock, middleweight; and John Harding, heavyweight.

Next to reach Chicago will be the two man Oklahoma City Daily Oklahoman's team of Virgil Franklin, featherweight, and Dick Smith, middleweight. They're due in the Dearborn st. station around noon. At 1 o'clock the Fort Wayne Journal Gazette's lone survivor, Lightweight Bob Crosley, will arrive.

To Receive Special Awards.

Then at 3:30 p. m. three Columbus [O.] Dispatch boxers and the Muncie [Ind.] Star's middleweight, Bob Pyke, will arrive on the Pennsylvania. The Columbus survivors are Sam Patton, bantamweight; Pvt. Frank Tunstill, featherweight, and Bill Guerry, welterweight.

Other arrivals later in the afternoon and evening will include the Cleveland Plain Dealer's threesome of Ted Fittipaldo, 112 pounds; William Stevenson, 126 pounds, and Lalo Berezzo, 147 pounds. Then there will be the Omaha World Herald's heavyweight, Corp. William Zuke and Sgt. Truman Swingle, defeated welterweight who will receive the Barney Ross sportsmanship trophy; the Peoria Journal Transcript's light heavyweight, Sgt. George Siebert of Chanute field and Pvt. Max Klemm, heavyweight, also of Chanute field, who will receive the Joe Louis sportsmanship trophy. Pvt. Klemm was beaten in the quarter-finals.

Also due tonight is the Sioux City Journal's representative, Welterweight Robert Wilson. The Milwaukee Journal's heavyweight survivor, Paul Thomas, will get in tomorrow

All of the boxers will be weighed in and examined at noon tomorrow and the semi-final pairings, under the direction of Harry Berz, will be made immediately thereafter.

BIG 10 TO SPIN COMMISSIONER WHEEL TODAY

The directors of athletics of the Western conference will meet at 10 o'clock this morning in the Sherman hotel. The session is a continuation of the series of meetings to name a commissioner of athletics for the conference to succeed the late Maj. John L. Griffith.

The faculty committee of the conference, governing body of the Big Ten, is scheduled to meet tomorrow afternoon. The directors' choice for commissioner, it is understood, will be submitted to the faculty men for approval.

A Garden.

When spring comes trooping in again,
Awhile with us to dwell.
I want to plant each seed and bulb,
And give them best of care;
I want to linger there.

And others just as fair;
Where pansies with their faces bright,
Look up and seem to smile——
A place where I may be alone
And meditate awhile.

I want to have a garden,
A place where one may see,
The miracle of bursting life,
In plant and shrub and tree.
And all my friends shall have a part
In all a garden brings—
Of buds and flowers and happiness,
The joy of growing things.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Chicago Blackhawks last night completed, at long last, their escape from the National Hockey league cellar by defeating the New York Rangers, 6 to 3, before an audience of 12,596 in Chicago Stadium.

The victory moved the Chicagoans one game ahead of the New Yorkers and into a technical tie with the Boston Bruins. They are now deadlocked with the Bruins in points at 31, but if the season had ended last night the Bostonians would have held fourth place in the league and would have won the last place in the impending play-offs for the Stanley cup. The Bruins' role in the big show would have gone to them off of the fact that in the event of a point deadlock the team scoring the most league decisions gets the spot in hockey's world series.

Two Games with Boston.

The Boston boys, who have now lost four straight matches, will entertain the Blackhawks in the most vital contest of the season in the Boston Garden Sunday night. At the moment the Bruins have won 14 games, the Hawks 12. The Sunday battle will do considerable to clear up the chaos which recently has existed about which team—Boston, Chicago, or New York—will join the top threesome of Montreal, Detroit, and Toronto in the play-offs. Granting that the Hawks might still lose to Boston on the Sabbath, they will have a chance to catch up again here against the same Bruins on next Thursday when they will be hosts to Boston in final regular league game here.

Now that those tenterhook statistics have been related, we can go into the recital of last night's argument with the Rangers. The 6 to 3 score enabled the Hawks to square their season series with the visitors, each winning three and tying four. It also produced one of those strange debates in which the puck might have been the flattened tin can of your boyhood's shinny games. The only item lacking was for one of the boys' mothers to holler, "M-u-r-r-g-a-t-r-o-y-d! Your dinner is ready! Come in from that awful game!"

The two teams batted the puck up and down the ice, with apparently a mutual disregard for defense. In at least six of the nine goals the respective goalies, Mike Karakas of the Hawks and Ken McAuley of the Rangers, were helpless, their defensive support showing an obvious disregard for the shots which were poured at them. The rear guards managed to crowd into the official scoring on six occasions, two of them on goals by Bob Dill and Bill Moe of the Rangers. The other four were on two

TEAM BALANCE MAY DETERMINE BIG TEN HONORS

Michigan, Illinois to Renew Conference Track Feud.

Team balance, the presence of athletes capable of supporting the star performers with second and third place points, well may decide the championship in the 35th Western conference indoor track meet in the University of Chicago fieldhouse Saturday. Michigan, the defending champion, and Illinois are expected to battle for the title, with Ohio State, Minnesota, and Iowa likely to have something to say on the way it goes by the manner in which they cut into the favorites' totals in certain events.

William Buster, a newcomer at Illinois, ran the 60 yard dash in 6.2 seconds in a dual meet with Indiana. Altho in subsequent meets he has not equaled this mark the competition may force him to duplicate it Saturday. Mark Brownstein of Minnesota, Ben Harvey of Purdue, Bill Madden of Northwestern and Julian Witherspoor of Michigan, veterans of the 1944 meet, and two newcomers, Walter Long of Ohio State and Ike Johnson of, Iowa, promise to give him a battle. Long took honors at the triangular meet at Bloomington last Saturday with :06.3.

Hurdles Competition Open.

George Walker, a freshman high hurdler at Illinois, and Bill Seibert of Ohio State will be pushed by Bob Cranston of Minnesota and Wilmer Jackson of Ohio State. Dave Nichols of Illinois, high hurdles champion of the 1944 Big Ten outdoor and N. C. A. A. meets, probably will be hampered by the leg injury which has kept him inactive for the last month.

Every low hurdle scorer in major meets last year is gone. Jackson of Ohio State was timed in :08 at Bloomington Saturday. However, he will have plenty of competition from Walker of Illinois, Ray Tharp of Minnesota, W. Seibert of Ohio State, and possibly Johnson of Iowa.

If Bob Kelley of Illinois is entered in the quarter mile, he may prove a standout. However, Cal Martin, a freshman from Indiana, will be a contender, with Dick Forrestal of Michigan, who placed fourth in the 1944 meet, Marce Gonzalez and Joe Johnson of Illinois, and Wallace Desterhaft of Purdue.

He's Tops in 880, Too.

Kelley is defending champion in the half mile. He is outdoor Big Ten 440 and 880 champion as well as top man in the N. C. A. A. 880 and National A. A. U. 800 meters. George Vetter of Michigan has shown speed, as has Dick Barnard, also of Michigan, who took third place in the event in 1944.

First three men in the mile last year were from Michigan and are on hand to take part in the event again. The Hume twins, Bob and Ross, shared the 1944 title in 4:24.5. This year they have made 4:23.9. Barnard placed third last year. Bob Hume took the two-mile event in 1944 with a time of 9:49.9 and his supremacy doesn't seem to be perilled.

NIGHT BASEBALL SAFE, DECLARES OFFICIAL OF WPB

Washington, D. C., March 7 (AP).—There is no disposition to place baseball or other night time sports under the brownout ban, a war production source said today.

With the opening of the big league season a little more than a month off, reports have circulated that the government intends to curtail night games in order to conserve lighting.

"The use of recreational lighting was discussed when the brownout regulation was drawn up," the WPB said, "but it was reasoned that if persons did not attend ball games and such events, they would consume a lot of lighting in their homes."

Changing conditions conceivably could alter the WPB's thinking along such lines, this source said, but added, "There is no pressure and no disposition" to do so now.

BROWNS' ROOKIE PITCHER, KINDER, CALLED IN DRAFT

St. Louis, Mo., March 7 (AP).—One of the St. Louis Browns' brightest rookie prospects was withdrawn from the roster today when Pitcher Ellis Kinder notified Vice President Bill Dewitt he had been accepted for military service.

Kinder was purchased this winter from Memphis of the Southern association where he was an unanimous all-star choice in 1944. He won 19 games and lost six.

Kinder, the fourth Brownie to enter the service since last season, took his induction physical at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga. He is 30 years old.

Howie Schultz Slated for Military Service

St. Paul, Minn., March 7 (AP).—Howie Schultz, Brooklyn Dodger first baseman and Hamline university basketball star, has been accepted for military service, he was notified today, after a review of his case by Washington selective service officials. He previously had been rejected because he is 6 feet 7 inches tall, one inch over the army limit.

McKeever Recommends Pat Filley as Assistant

Ithaca, N. Y., March 7 (AP).—Ed McKeever, who becomes Cornell university's head football coach April 1, has recommended Pat Filley, one of his Notre Dame proteges, for appointment as his assistant. Filley played guard for the Irish and served as captain in 1943 and 1944.

Hawks Tie for 4th; Defeat Rangers, 6-3

Three Goals in 116 Seconds.

The Hawks set some sort of a record by scoring three goals within one minute and 56 seconds of the first period for a 3 to 0 lead. The Rangers answered that by batting in a pair in one 39 second span of the final minute of the same session. New York then tied it up early in the second period, but the Hawks made it 4 to 3 before that session was over, and added two more within 94 seconds of the last period.

This burst of scoring was in keeping with the Hawks' recent record, in which they have picked up seven points in four games. In that same stretch they have registered 14 goals in 15 minutes and 45 seconds of important playing time.

Coach Johnny Gottselig, acting manager of the Hawks in the absence of Paul Thompson, can now look back on four games of stewardship in which he hasn't lost a battle, the Hawks having tied Toronto and beaten the Rangers twice, with a victory over the champion Montreal Canadiens sandwiched in between.

Mosienko's Goal Breaks Tie.

The authors of three rapid first period goals were Pete Horeck, whom Gottselig regards as the prize rookie of the year; Les Ramsay, and Clint Smith. The times on their scores were 6:04, 6:29, and 8:00. Then came the fast Ranger pair at the end of the same session by Hank Goldup and Dill. Moe then joined Dill early in the second period to prove that defense men can score, and made the score 3 to 3, but swift Bill Mosienko, the Hawks' leading scorer, sent Chicago ahead in the 19th minute of the same bracket.

Both teams continued to play juvenile hockey thruout the last period until Don Grosso stole the puck and scored unassisted for the Hawks. With only 73 seconds remaining, Horeck, with assistance from Butch McDonald and Cully Dahlstrom, beat McAuley for his second goal of the night.

JAMES MASKER LEAVES POST AT SWIFT'S APRIL 1

James C. Masker, dean of Western conference football officials, will retire on April 1 from his post as general office employment manager for Swift & Co. after 38 years of service with the organization.

The retirement will be Masker's second in two years, for in 1943 he hung up his white pants and striped shirt after more than 40 years as an official on collegiate football fields. Masker has not forsaken all connection with the sport, however, as last season he served as officials' adviser for the Western conference. He hopes to continue in that capacity.

In his college days Masker played football at Northwestern and ran the hurdles for the Wildcat track team. He went to work for Swift's in 1898, was in the building materials business from 1905 until 1914, when he returned to the meat packing company.

Lander Starts Drills for Bout with Glenn

Eddie Lander, west side lightweight, has opened training in C. Y. O. center gymnasium for a six round bout against Ray Glenn of Indianapolis in Marigold Gardens Monday night. It will be Lander's first ring appearance since 1942, when he knocked out Joe Dupont in nine rounds. O'Neil Bell, Detroit welterweight, is paired with Robert Fowler in an eight round event on the impending card.

CUBS TO START TRAINING TODAY AT FRENCH LICK

the same camp in 1943 and 1944. The earlier start is credited, or charged, to Grimm, who says he suspects the Cub pitchers didn't have enough work last spring, lack of condition perhaps accounting somewhat for the fact the team lost 13 straight after winning its National league opener.

Hopes Pitchers Will Be Prompt.

Grimm was called back to his old job as Cub skipper as a result of this early season slump, and spent the rest of the year getting the team up to a fourth place finish. Charley never has led a second division Cub team and the fact he had a narrow squeak last year, his admirers feel, was due almost entirely to the spring setback, or discouragements traceable to the poor start.

It is suspected that the complete squad will be slow in assembling at the camp this year, but Grimm hopes most of the pitchers will be on hand within the next few days. Unlike the others, they can accomplish much working indoors.

Speculate on Nicholson.

Several reasons are given for the anticipated tardiness. There probably are some holdouts. Bill Nicholson, for instance, has been a late arrival both previous years the Cubs were at French Lick. Whether Nicholson has signed this year is a secret, but there are others who haven't signed and may not for several weeks at least. Nation-wide publicity of the rampaging of Lost river is expected to make some of the lads a bit timid about leaving their warm and dry firesides. The man power situation, of course, will have much to do with developments at the spa.

The first exhibition game is not scheduled until March 30, when a three game series with the Browns will open in Camp Girardeau, Mo., training base of the American league champs. If the Cubs don't have an adequate squad by then, the hysteria will be on, but such a dire development is unthinkable, of course.

DYKES TO ARRIVE TODAY

Jimmy Dykes will put his California sun tan on exhibition this afternoon in Comiskey park. The White Sox manager is scheduled to arrive from the west coast at noon and then proceed to the ball park later in the day. Dykes, who has managed the Sox for 10 full campaigns and part of another one, will leave with a squad of undetermined number Sunday night for Terre Haute, the team's new training quarters.

LeRoy Schalk, the Chicago native who played second base for the Sox last season after batting around in the minors for several years, yesterday signed his 1945 and announced himself pleased over a subtantial increase.

HOLD RITES FOR ROBERT FOULIS THIS AFTERNOON

Funeral services for Robert Foulis of St. Louis, Mo., and formerly of Chicago, a member of one of the nation's pioneer golf families, who died last Sunday in Orlando, Fla., will be held this afternoon at 2 p. m. in Wheaton.

Robert and his brothers, David and the late James, learned their golf at St. Andrews, Scotland. Jim was the winner of the first United States Open and inventor of the mashie niblick.

Robert was one of the nation's leading golf course architects, having laid out courses in New York City, Chicago, Minneapolis, and St. Louis. He had been golf consultant of the Bellerive club in St. Louis for the last 35 years.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Robert Foulis; a son, Ronald J.; a daughter, Mrs. Eleanora Miller; brothers Simpson and Dave, and a sister, Annie.

NEGRO BASEBALL LEAGUE TO OPEN SEASON MAY 6

The Negro American league will open its season May 6 but the Chicago American Giants will not play a home game until May 27, it was announced last night. The completed schedule runs only until July 4, the date on which the first half of the league's split season usually ends.

In response to a proposal by Dr. J. B. Martin, league president and in accordance with ODT wishes, the six member clubs drew up a schedule which reduces mileage by 25 per cent.

It was announced that Jackie Robinson, former U. C. L. A. backfield star who played with the collegians in the Chicago Tribune's 1941 All-Star game, has signed to play with Satchel Paige and the Kansas City Monarchs.

Michigan Trio Will Defend Swim Titles

Three veteran University of Michigan stars whose performances featured the Wolverines' triumph in the 1944 Big Ten conference swimming meet will return to action in the 1945 title competition Saturday in the Patten gymnasium pool at Northwestern. The presence of this trio, Capt. Merton Church, Charles Fries, and Heinie Kessler, is expected to enable Michigan to retain the team title in the 35th meet.

Beaten Once This Year.

Last year Church won the 50 yard free style and took second in the 100 while Fries won the 100 and was second in the 50. This pair also formed half the winning free style relay team. Kessler led the field in the 200 yard breast stroke and swam on the Wolverine medley relay team which also finished first.

This season these three have led Michigan to four dual meet victories in five events. The most successful venture was a 50 to 34 defeat of the Great Lakes squad, avenging a 44 to 40 setback at the naval station.

Threatens Kessler's Title.

Michigan will not be represented in the 440 yard and diving events, but will have adequate strength in the other races to support the three defending titlists. Kessler will have the hardest time defending his crown as Vern Ojampa of Minnesota has a 2:33.5 performance this season, a second faster than Kessler's 2:34.5 in last year' conference meet.

Preliminaries on Saturday will start at 9:30 a. m. Finals are scheduled for 7:30 p. m.

JIM BAGBY SIGNS CONTRACT, MAY STAY ON JOB, THO

Atlanta, Ga., March 7 (AP).—Jim Bagby Jr., elongated right hander of the Cleveland Indians, has signed his 1945 contract, he said today, adding, however, it did not necessarily mean he would play with the Indians.

"I intend to wait and see what is the government's attitude toward baseball before reporting for spring training," he explained. "I might stay right here on this job."

VIC GHEZZI TO HEAD GOLF PLAY IN ROME TODAY

ROME, March 7 (AP).—Headed by Vic Ghezzi, a former P. G. A. champion, a field of some 200 to 300 allied service men and civilian players will tee off tomorrow in a four day Rome open golf championship.

There was to have been a one-day preliminary pro-amateur tournament today but the entry list of close to 300 shotmakers made it impossible, and instead the whole show will be put on as 72 hole title play.

Half the field will play 18 holes tomorrow and the other half on Friday. The low 100 will make a one round tour Saturday with the final low 60 fighting it out over 36 holes Sunday over the not-too-tough Rome club layout.

Ghezzi, who whipped Byron Nelson in an extra-hole battle for the 1941 professional championship, now is stationed at a replacement depot in Italy after completing an 84 match exhibition tour in the United States. Aside from being a golfer he is a sergeant in the army.

EX-IRISH, ILLINI FOOTBALL STARS RETURNING HOME

Two former midwestern football players, Lt. Robert J. Saggau of Notre Dame and Ensign D. R. Borgeson of the University of Illinois, are members of the navy's air group 11 returning to the United States for leave and reassignment.

Lt. Saggau, who ended his football career in 1938 as a half back for the Irish, is finishing his second combat tour. On this one his group participated in 19 separate engagements, including fleet action last October off the Philippines and the January invasion of the China sea. Saggau, also a veteran of the Solomons campaign of 1943, has won the air medal.

Ensign Borgeson, before the war, lived with his parents at 5817 N. Talman av. He was a member of the Illini back field in 1940 and later played with the Iowa Pre-Flight eleven.

Primas Win 2; Widen Classic League Lead

The Prima Beers moved a step closer to the second half season championship of the Classic Bowling league last night at Garden Recreation, 4047 N. Milwaukee av., by winning the odd game from the Monarch Beers. In winning two against their powerful rivals the Primas increased their league lead to four games and dropped the Monarchs into a three way tie for the runner-up spot with Keeley Half and Half and Meister Braus.

Keeley's ran into tough opposition in the Washington Shirts, the latter taking a pair and taking the spotlight for the evening. Their three game total of 2,957 was tops and they also posted the high single game of 1,062. Harold Ploch paced both teams with a 634 series.

The Meister Braus dropped the middle game to Du Bouchett Liqueurs but won the other two. In other matches Congress Arcade won two from Sunkist Pies and Chapin & Gore matched the performance against Thompsons Restaurants.

EXPERT CASTERS TO SHOW SKILL FOR SPORTSMEN

BY BEN MARKLAND.

The more than 300 amateur bait and fly casters who will take part in the competitive portion of The Tribune casting tournament at the International Sportsmen's show will be represented by six former tournament winners in the floor show to be staged each night during the Coliseum event.

Show spectators who arrive too late to see the competitive events, which start at 7:30 each evening, still will have a chance to watch these six experts during the show to start at 8:30 each night. The participants in this exhibition include Mrs. Harry McDonald, national ¾ ounce lady champion; Paul Brewer, 15 year old member of the Lincoln Park Casting club, who won the national ¾ ounce junior title last fall; Miss Carol Steel, national wet fly lady champion; George Applegren Jr., national Skish fly champion; Chief Petty Officer Walter Sether, instructor at Abbott Hall, and Nick Schroeder, 70 year old veteran of many national tournaments.

At least four of these six casters will stage a five ring match in ¾ ounce bait casting each evening.

One of the most spectacular events on the nine day schedule of the show will be held during Saturday night's opening session when 100 Chicago girls will be sworn into the women's army corps as medical technicians. The ceremony will be conducted by Maj. Robert E. Lynch and Capt. Mary Stevens, WAC recruiting officers. Gov. Green also will participate in the event.

New York, March 7 (AP).—The New York Yankees today announced the names of 16 players who have signed contracts and are due to report for spring training at Atlantic City Sunday, while the New York Giants increased their list to 17 with the addition of four signed documents.

Five of the Yankees are pitchers—Floyd Bevens, Walter Dubiel, Allen Gettel, John Moore, and Joe Page. The signed catchers are Bill Drescher, Mike Garbark, Bill Steinecke, and Herb Compton. Outfielders Bud Metheny, Hershel Martin, George Stainback, and Paul Waner and Infielders Joe Buzas, Oscar Grimes, and Don Savage complete the American leaguers' list.

Brought into the fold by the Giants were pitchers Harry Feldman, Johnny Gee, and Don King, a southpaw free agent who formerly hurled for Albany and Harrisburg, and Ernie Lombardi, veteran catcher.

ACCEPT MONEY PLAN AT ONCE —MORGENTHAU

Change May Kill It, Congress Is Told.

BY LAURENCE BURD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—Treasury Secretary Morgenthau asked congress today to accept the New Deal's plan for a huge post-war world bank and world monetary fund just as it stands and to pass it without delay.

The treasury chief, opening the administration's fight to push the 18 billion dollar Bretton Woods financial program thru congress, told the house banking committee the entire plan faces almost certain collapse if congress makes any major changes in it.

The witness asserted it is "very important" that congress adopt the multibillion dollar program without revision before April 25, when allied nations delegates will meet in San Francisco to chart post-war peace machinery.

Would Show "Good Faith."

Congressional approval in advance of the San Francisco meeting, he said, would demonstrate the United States intends, "in good faith" to join other nations in global economic and political controls after the war.

The Bretton Woods plan, drafted by delegates of 44 nations last summer, contemplates a 9.1 billion dollar world bank which would make reconstruction loans to war-torn and backward nations. It further calls for an 8.8 billion dollar monetary fund to stabilize national currencies. The United States would contribute nearly 6 billion dollars initially to the two funds—or more than any other nation.

Morgenthau's demand for quick rubber stamping of the program brought immediate protests from committee members, who asserted a matter of such dimensions should be subjected to thoro scrutiny.

"You are asking the United States to take the lead on this," Rep. Sumner [R., Ill.] told Morgenthau. "None of the other 44 governments has approved it.

Seeks Bargaining Power.

"If we adopt it before the San Francisco meeting, we shall weaken, rather than strengthen, our hand. If we take our time, as we should, we may retain some bargaining power with other countries as to all international post-war proposals.

Rep. Wolcott [R., Mich.], ranking minority committee member, declared it is impossible for congress to digest and act on the plan in so short a time. Rep. Barry [D., N. Y.] protested that even if congress swallows the proposal in its entirety, any of the other 43 nations may object to the plan and demand changes in their own interest.

The secretary replied that the other 43 nations are waiting for the United States to take the lead.

"If congress adopts this program," he said, "I believe the other nations will quickly follow suit. If congress refuses, or makes any major change, others will do the same. In that event, we might as well forget the whole thing. It would mean another Bretton Woods conference and we would be right back where we started."

"U. S. Has More to Gain."

Morgenthau said the United States has perhaps more to gain than any other country from the passage of the pending legislation embodying the Bretton Woods proposals.

"This is the first practical test," he said, "of our willingness to cooperate in the work of world reconstruction and stabilization. It is also one very important step toward the orderly, expanding foreign trade upon which the future prosperity of our agriculture and industry depends."

Dean Acheson, assistant secretary of state, urging approval of the plan, said it is a step toward collective security as against unplanned economic struggling among nations for survival.

Repeal of Johnson Act Asked by Sen. Fulbright

Washington, D. C., March 7 (AP).—Sen. Fulbright [D., Ark.] today proposed legislation to repeal the Johnson act and other laws which prohibit loans to foreign governments in default on World War I. obligations. The Johnson act prohibits any private loans to defaulting foreign governments, and a later measure prevents the United States Export-Import bank from lending federal funds to them. The state department seeks repeal of these restrictions to prepare for post-war trade financing and reconstruction.

Plea for Haste and No Advice Held Typical

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Events that preceded the convening of the international monetary conference at Bretton Woods, N. H., last July were recalled by testimony yesterday in Washington before the house banking and currency committee by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau.

The secretary urged hasty congressional approval of the twin Bretton Woods agreements and contended that for congress to seek to revise the plans would jeopardize the entire program and weaken the United States' position in the whole field of international coöperation.

Morgenthau's statement made clear that the administration will insist on all or nothing as far as the agreements are concerned. That means it will ignore, or attempt to ignore, the vigorous opposition to a large part of the program by a preponderant majority of the country's bankers and monetary experts.

Outside Views Scorned.

Prior to convening of the conference last July work on its agenda was carried on entirely by a small group of government economists and technicians who scorned the advice of qualified experts not occupying spots on government pay rolls.

Altho the proposals for international stabilization were getting a public airing in England thru the speeches in the house of lords by John Maynard Keynes, the question was treated by administration spokesmen as a technical problem, public discussion of which would await its introduction in congress.

Further, when the President appointed the American delegation to the conference its members were specifically instructed to stay within the limits of proposals prepared by the technical staff.

Some eminent members of the American delegation were ignorant of the details of the program until a short time before the conference met. But they were instructed to accept the program as laid out.

No Skeptics Appointed.

Meanwhile, deepest concern was developing outside government circles about the trend of affairs. Men like John H. Williams of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, a recognized authority, voiced alarm at the program to which the administration was tying itself.

Williams and all others skeptical of the progam were passed up when the President named the American delegation. So the only viewpoint that ever got serious consideration was that held by the government economists from the beginning.

Only after the conference adjourned, having reached tentative agreements on two agencies, did details of the program come in for public discussion for the first time. The most intensive study of the program was undertaken by the American Bankers association.

Either Too Late or Too Early.

The bankers condemned the monetary fund in the strongest language, describing it as a dangerously inflationary scheme that would cause an endless drain on United States resources. The only reactions this produced in Washington were treasury press releases that the program had been approved by a majority of a group of selected economists and by something known as the Independent Bankers association, whose make-up still is a mystery.

In his appearance yesterday Morgenthau suggested it was too late for a thoro public discussion of the program. Before the conference it was too early for discussion except by the technical experts.

GURLEY FIGHTS BILL TO WIDEN RAIL BENEFITS

Places Jobs Above Untried Ideas.

Washington, D. C., March 7 [Special].—Millions of dollars needed urgently by the railroads would be taken annually from them for "untried social purposes" if the Crosser bill to broaden the scope of the railroad retirement and unemployment act is passed, Fred G. Gurley, president of the Santa Fe railroad today told the house interstate and foreign commerce committee.

Fred G. Gurley.

He urged a two year suspension of collections for the railroad unemployment insurance tax, explaining that more than a half billion dollars had piled up in the fund held by the treasury department since the act became effective in 1939. He said the money represented by the taxes could be put to productive use by the railroads.

Tells Improvement Need.

The Crosser bill would impose on the railroad retirement and pension system a new plan of life insurance annuities for survivors of employes, former employes, and retired employes, and would provide insurance covering nonoccupational sickness, accidents, and maternity cases.

"The nation cannot afford to forego the benefit of restoration and improvement of railroad plants as a sensible, orderly, productive, and businesslike means of meeting problems of post-war unemployment," Gurley told the committee. "The work needs to be done. It can be done with private funds if they are not diverted to proposals such as those of this bill.

"The ambition of those who propose this bill is to divert large sums of money to purposes which they characterize as 'social.' It is a deterrent to restoring railroad properties to the standards which are essential. This bill would dampen the opportunities for jobs.

Debt Cut Held Essential.

"Modern thought demands that railroad debt be decreased, not increased. On the Santa Fe we have made debt reductions since 1940 which permit a total annual interest saving of $4,653,000. Had the Crosser bill been in effect in 1944, however, our pay roll taxes in that year would have been increased by $4,767,000, which would have more than wiped out the saving resulting from the reduction in our debt."

In urging suspension of railroad unemployment insurance taxes Gurley explained that the fund totaled $572,710,000, of which $132,369,000 was collected in 1944 against idle benefit payments of only $579,000.

"The existing fund and additional sums which are piling up constantly are not needed for the purpose of the unemployment insurance act, Gurley said. "This money, however, presents a great temptation to the proponents of the Crosser bill. They want to get hold of it."

GRAIN FUTURES PRICES UNEVEN; MAY CORN GAINS

Purchases of more than 1 million bushels of cash corn for deferred shipment from the country at the ceiling price of $1.16 a bushel plus permitted markups failed to check the rise in corn futures yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. The May delivery sold at $1.15⅞, up 1 cent from Monday's close and a new May delivery high, before profit taking caused a reaction. Final sales were ⅝ cent higher on May to ¾ cent lower on the December option.

March wheat sold at $1.77⅝, the ceiling, and after the close tenders of 25,000 bushels of cash wheat were made on the contracts. The deferred deliveries were under pressure, with September off 2¾ cents at one time. Late strength in corn caused a rally, with the close ⅛ to 1⅜ cents lower. Rye closed ⅛ higher to ¼ lower. Oats gained ⅛ and barley was ⅛ to 1 cent lower.

WARD BUSINESS RISES TO NEW FEBRUARY HIGH

Sales of Montgomery Ward & Co. in February rose 18.8 per cent above a year earlier to set a new record for the month of $44,561,921, the company reported yesterday. The highest previous February sales were in 1943, a total of $41,443,487.

Walgreen company sales decreased $441,440, or 4.8 per cent, below the $9,246,743 volume of a year ago.

Consolidated net sales of Spiegel, Inc., totaled $4,479,861 in February, including mail order and retail sales. No comparison with 1944 February sales was made because only mail order sales were reported then.

Propose New Directors for National Tea

Changes in the personnel of the board of directors and the executive staff of the National Tea company were proposed to stockholders yesterday in a move to harmonize differences which have existed for some time between the management and certain stockholders over the operation of the large food chain. The proposal was contained in a proxy statement mailed with the company's annual report.

The stockholders were asked to approve at the annual meeting to be held March 21 a board composed of nine persons, four chosen by R. V. Rasmussen, president, four by John F. Cuneo, leader of the objecting stockholders, and one approved by both groups.

Includes Former Kroger Aid.

In the Cuneo group are Cuneo, president of Cuneo Press; Guy A. Thomas, chairman of the Colorado Milling and Elevator company, Denver, Colo.; Harley V. McNamara, former manager of the Chicago branch of the Kroger Grocery and Baking company, and Raymond P. Fischer, a Chicago attorney.

Selected by Rasmussen were himself, Arthur J. Hansen, vice president of the company; William E. Russell, secretary-treasurer, and John V. Farwell III., president of the Sanitary Scale company, Belvidere, Ill., and a director of the La Salle National bank.

Increase Board Membership.

The directorate will be increased from seven to nine. R. V. Rasmussen, Russell, and Hansen are the only continuing members.

In managerial positions, the proxy recommends R. V. Rasmussen as president, Cuneo as chairman of the executive committee, and McNamara as executive vice president. The office of chairman of the board is to be abolished.

The annual report released by Rasmussen was identical with that issued by McKinlay last week except that it omitted the latter's "complete answer" to Cuneo's charges that his management was "ineffectual."

SELLING CHECKS EARLY RISE AND STOCKS DECLINE

Pivotal industrials and rails generally finished fractions to a point lower, altho some reduced declines. Sugars and a few specialties showed gains. The oils also had good support late. Turnover was 1,400,000 shares, compared with 1,690,000 yesterday. The Associated Press 60 stock composite was unchanged at 62.6. The rail average was down 0.4 at 37.4.

The market's reversal appeared partly the result of technical considerations as well as failure of the steels, yesterday's leaders, to carry thru on their morning rise.

CHICAGO LIST MIXED.

Prices were uneven yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange as turnover increased to 61,000 shares. Volume leaders included Kellogg Switchboard, up ¾; Pure Oil, up ½; Central and South West Utilities, and Pressed Steel Car, each down ⅛, and Chicago corporation, down ⅝. Eight new 1944-'45 highs were reached.

BOND PRICES MIXED.

New York, March 7 (AP).—Railroad bonds were unsettled by a slight increase in offerings today, but other sections of the market held up well on renewed investment demand. United States government issues were steady.

INDEX OF INDIVIDUAL INCOME PAYMENTS AT NEW PEAK IN JANUARY

Washington, D. C., March 7 (AP).—The commerce department's index of "income payments to individuals" reached an all time high of 241.3 in January, the department reported today. The previous high was 239 in December.

In actual dollars, January payments of 13 billion 320 million dollars were below the all time high of 14 billion 405 million in December, a month of heavy dividends and interest payments. The decrease was less than usual, and the index rose because it is adjusted to allow for seasonal factors.

Payments in January were 6 per cent higher than a year ago. The flow of income in January indicated an annual rate of 162 billion 100 million dollars, compared with the actual total of 150 billion 800 million in the calendar year 1944.

Quiz Eccles on Speculator Tax Proposal

Washington, D. C., March 7 (AP).—The heavy tax suggested by Chairman Eccles of the federal reserve system on gains from war time speculation was assailed in the senate banking committee today by Sen. Tobey [R., N. H.]. He asked Eccles whether such a tax would not tend to increase inflation of stock prices.

Tobey said it seemed to him the tax would deter sellers and thus leave a smaller volume of stocks in the market on which buyers could bid.

Starts Tax at 90 Per Cent.

Eccles contended the tax would not deter sellers who had held their stocks a long time, but would deter buyers who sought to make a quick turnover. He has proposed a tax of 90 per cent on profits realized from sale of capital assets held for less than two years after a fixed date, perhaps Jan. 1, 1945. The tax would be reduced 10 per cent for each year longer than two that the capital assets were held.

The federal reserve chairman told the committee he had read in a magazine that one man had run an initial $2,000 up to $250,000 by trading in low price stocks since 1942.

Home Prices Double.

He also read a letter from George H. Pannell, a Los Angeles real estate appraiser, who said houses he had sold in 1943 for $6,000 were now on the market for $12,000.

Eccles was drawn into the tax discussion during testimony on a bill to reduce the minimum required gold reserve of federal reserve banks to 25 per cent of their deposits and notes in circulation. At present it is 40 per cent on notes and 35 on deposits.

CHAMP CARRY IS ELECTED TO GYPSUM BOARD

The new director is Champ Carry, executive vice president of the Pullman company, who succeeds M. H. Basquin, resigned. The others are W. B. McMillan, Solomon A. Smith, J. W. Fowler, and W. A. Avery, brother of Sewell L. Avery, chairman of the board. All terms are for three years.

Joseph F. Ryan, a stockholder from Elgin, proposed a resolution commending the chairman for his vigorous stand against New Deal directives in the Montgomery Ward case, but withdrew it after Avery, who also is chairman of Ward's, expressed his thanks and suggested humorously that Ryan attend Ward's annual meeting.

N. AM. AVIATION SHATTERS PAST OUTPUT MARKS

Eclipses 1935-'43 Total in One Year.

North American Aviation, Inc., surpassed all previous output levels by a wide margin in the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, delivering almost 13 per cent of all airplanes produced in the United States during that time, Henry M. Hogan, chairman, said in the annual report yesterday. In 1944 alone the company produced 121.7 million airframe pounds, compared with 109 million in the nine years from 1935 thru 1943.

Consolidated net sales were $718,003,498, compared with $509,139,649 in the preceding year. Net income rose to $8,389,967, equal to $2.44 a capital share, from $6,790,323, or $1.98 a share.

Since the start of the war program the company has delivered 29,000 planes, including B-25 Mitchells, B-24 Liberators, P-51 Mustangs, and AT-6 Texans, Hogan said.

New Designs Described.

On Sept. 30 orders were held for more than 16,000 planes and more than 5,000 equivalent units in spare parts at a total contract value of more than 845 million dollars.

Among new designs under development by company engineers are fighter planes that will be 30 per cent faster and have a rate of climb far quicker than present fighters, and bombers that will be 50 per cent faster and operate at altitudes 25 to 30 per cent higher than present bombers, the report said.

Production and net earnings of the American Locomotive company also showed substantial increases in 1944. Steam locomotive production reached the highest level since 1923 and diesel locomotive tonnage delivered was 60 per cent above the previous peak in 1943, said William C. Dickerman, chairman.

Net profit was $8,664,668, against $6,626,515 in 1943. Common share earnings were $3.86 and $2.78, after allowing for preferred stock sinking fund requirements of $1,000,666 last year and $350,000 in 1943. Before sinking fund requirements, share earnings were $4.58 and $3.03.

Sales last year of the company's entire holdings in Superheater company and of approximately 29 per cent of its investment in common stock of the General Steel Castings corporation resulted in a net profit on investments of $2,295,260.

After reconversion of facilities to peace time production last year the company was called on in January to resume large scale manufacture of combat tanks, Dickerman said.

HOG SUPPLY DIPS AGAIN; BETTER STEERS ADVANCE

Hog receipts at the 20 principal markets are running below year ago totals of the two or three largest markets alone, it was disclosed at the Chicago stock yards yesterday. Arrivals at the 20 points totaled only 49,000 head, a decrease of 24 per cent compared with last Wednesday and 62 per cent compared with the corresponding day last year.

Only 8,000 hogs came into the Chicago yards, or 2,000 fewer than Armour & Co. alone butchered daily last winter. The scant supply went to the large number of buyers in the yards at ceiling prices.

Top grades of steers rose 10 to 15 cents in brisk competition by buyers. Five carloads reached the $17.50 a hundred pounds top, equal to the highest sale since Jan. 16.

Lambs were in good demand at fully steady prices. Most shipments sold at $16.65 to $16.85, the latter the top.

'Can't Have It' Termed U. S. Butter Policy

Government butter policy can be summed up in four words, "You can't have butter," Owen M. Richards, general manager of the American Dairy association, asserted yesterday at the association's annual meeting in the Morrison hotel.

"The man who wants to make more butter is discouraged from doing so and the housewife who wants more butter is fenced in by tight rationing at 24 points a pound," he said.

Milk Diverted Elsewhere.

The government's program has taken butter away from America's tables despite record production of milk, said Richards. He assailed the lack of price and man power encouragement of butter production, necessary to reduce ration point values.

Minnesota, which produced 326 million pounds of butter in 1941, turned out only 250 million pounds last year, he said. The same trend prevailed in Wisconsin and Iowa, second and third largest producers.

"The government program has brought about the loss in butter," he contended. "In other areas, farmers short of help and machinery often have had to turn the milking of their cows over to the calves."

Warns Against False Hopes.

Richards warned there had been "wide misinterpretation" of war food administration production payment schedules to mean that more butter would reach the civilian market. He reported that many in the industry believed the most the revised schedules would do was check the decline in butter production "under abnormal price conditions arising from the war and the government's war time regulations."

Elected Illinois directors of the association were A. H. Lauterbach, M. G. Van Buskirk, and Wilfred Shaw, all of Chicago.

OWN QUESTION MAY BE FIRST FACED BY DAVIS

Inherits Vinson's 'Fringe' Problem.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—William H. Davis, national war labor board chairman appointed by the President to succeed Fred M. Vinson as economic stabilization director, left unanswered today the question of whether he will settle the existing Vinson-WLB impasse over "fringe" or secondary wage adjustments when he takes his new office.

William H. Davis [top] and George W. Taylor.

Remarking that in leaving his WLB post and accepting the stabilization job he was "jumping from the frying pan into the fire," Davis told a news conference that he hoped Vinson would dispose of the pending wage questions before leaving to become federal loan administrator. Davis refused to discuss what action he might take if Vinson does not.

Davis will be succeeded as WLB chairman by Dr. George W. Taylor, who has been vice chairman since

Go Straight-with Old Poindexter

● These days men will advise you—Go Straight with Old Poindexter—a Kentucky Straight Bourbon, a 40% small grain whisky. Drink for quality rather than quantity.

Consider their suggestion—fill a liqueur glass with Old Poindexter. Lift it to your nostrils and inhale, gently and slowly. Then touch the edge of the glass to your lips. Let a drop or two linger on your tongue—analyze this rainbow flavor, a riot of aromatics.

This, sir, approaches the stratosphere of whisky enjoyment. This kind of drinking will give you happiness without regrets.

PROBLEM HE PUT UP TO VINSON TO BE DAVIS' FIRST

"Fringe" wage adjustments are those of a relatively minor nature, such as shift differentials and vacation pay, as distinguished from general, industry-wide increases.

It was observed that if Vinson does not take action in the next day or two before becoming loan administrator, Davis will be placed in the position of passing upon a controversy in which he and the WLB were principal disputants. The WLB already has approved certain wage adjustments for thousands of meat packing and textile workers which have not been put into effect because of differences between Vinson and the WLB.

Protests OPA Veto Power.

These differences involved Vinson's ruling of 'ast December that the WLB could not approve "fringe" wage adjustments until the office of price administration had investigated and determined that price increases would not be necessary as a result of the increases. The WLB objected on the grounds that to submit the issue to OPA would mean that OPA would have veto power over WLB's wage decisions. The deadlock has resulted in a jam of important wage cases.

It was reported that before leaving office, Vinson might announce a revision of stabilization policy to permit the grar.ting of "fringe" adjustments, even if the increases result in higher prices, and thus break the deadlock. Under the reported forthcoming revision, the WLB would receive authority to make wage adjustments within specific limits without the approval of the economic stabilization director. The WLB has recommended such a plan to Vinson.

Asks Continued Wage Control.

Davis said today that when he takes over the Vinson job, his basic policy of national economic stabilization will be that "avoidance of inflation is of paramount and controling importance." He said that at present he did not know whether he would change any of Vinson's policies or procedures.

Earlier in the day Davis had appeared before the senate banking and currency committee and testified that present wage stabilization laws should be continued unchanged during the next 18 months. He said it was essential that the stabilization act be extended for both price and wage control.

Davis, whose appointment does not require senate confirmation, is 65 and a New Yorker. A patent lawyer by profession, he was with the NRA in 1933 and 1934 and was chairman of the national defense mediation board in 1941 before WLB came into being.
